At transfer station:
Haulers, residents could face fee hike

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Proposals to increase user fees at the transfer station drew opposition from commercial trash haulers and residents. But some sort of fee increase is likely in light of the town's fiscal crisis.

Selectmen held a public hearing Tuesday night to receive input on the possibility of increasing fees at the Transfer Station. Options outlined by Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer range from retaining the current fees, which partially fund the operation of the station, to full cost recovery.

Winchester was hit with a $775,000 shortfall due to recent cuts in local aid by Governor Michael S. Dukakis. Now, it is up to selectmen and Town Meeting to decide where additional revenue can be found, or if cuts will have to be made in the present budget.

"This is a fairly complex issue. There are a number of alternatives we can consider," said Selectman Chairman Thomas Schmitt.

"The reason the transfer station becomes a target of opportunity is the large number of potential fees (which can be raised)," said Schmitt. "We can spread the fees among a larger number of people."

Selectmen were generally in favor of an increase to some degree in transfer station fees, but are not scheduled to take a formal vote until their next meeting on Sept. 11. Only Selectman Robert Deering was completely opposed to raising fees.

Deering said he believes "transferring the fault of our state government onto the backs of the taxpayers" is unfair.

Selectman Judith Muggia said she believes the fees are inequitable. Muggia said residents should know what services are covered by taxes. Once that is defined, the town should implement user fees for other services provided.

Selectman Steve Powers said he favors some increase, but asked Maurer to look into what surrounding towns are doing.

According to Maurer, in fiscal year 1990, the facility will cost approximately $1.187 million to operate. The figures are based on the sale of 6,000 permits. This year, the station is expected to generate Selectmen are considering the possiblity of either selling or raising rent at the Waterfield Road train station building.

"There is an interest in raising more revenue from the station," said Chairman Thomas Schmitt.

Owned by the town, Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer said the building has been leased on a tenant-at-will basis for the past several years. Approximately 817 sq. ft. of the building is rented by the Chamber of Commerce, while the upstairs half, totalling 1153 sq. ft., was rented by Maxwell Design.

However, since Maxwell Design recently vacated the premises, selectmen are now looking at options for dealing with the property.

Maurer said the two options for the building are to either lease the property at current market prices for downtown Winchester, or sell the facility.

If selectmen decide to sell the building, Maurer said the town should do so on the basis of proposals from developers which are consistent with the downtown area. However, he noted that parking problems in the area and certain improvements the town would be required to make on the property relating to the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA) and commuters must be taken into consideration.

Chamber of Commerce President Tony Albiani said the Chamber has three options open to it if the town decides not to sell the building. Either the Chamber could pay the additional costs of renting the facility; consider renting a smaller area of the building; or move to another building.

"The Chamber plays an active role in the town," noted Albiani. He cited Town Day, the annual haunted house, and Christmas tree lighting ceremony as examples of functions the Chamber sponsors.

"There is no question it was token

Display softens death's sting

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

When Winchester lost Ambrose School principal George Flynn and schoolgirl Patricia Swartz in unrelated tragedies last spring, many families found their grief deepened and complicated as they tried to explain the concepts of death and dying to their young children.

For Genevieve Lynch the experience of explaining the death of a principal and a playmate to her three children seemed almost overwhelming. She resolved to do what she could to help other parents make the tough decisions about what to tell their children about death and dying, grief and loss.

Her experiences led to the creation of a new display at Winchester Public Library. A collection of books, pamphlets and videotapes, the display gives insight into the discussions that can take place between parent and child when a death occurs.

As a nurse, Lynch has talked with children on the topic of death professionally. But she stresses that there's no set way to give answers to children and the answers are often found within each individual family.

For her own family, particularly children John, 6, Christopher, 4, and Brendan, 3, the deaths of Flynn and Swartz caused considerable distress. Lynch felt there must be somewhere for families to turn.

"Our family was affected by both of those deaths," said Lynch, "By education, I'm a nurse, but it was the first time I dealt with (death) as a mother ... I was struggling with my own feelings and those of my children."

And she and her family were not alone. Mourning took hold of much of the community and was for many youngsters a first glimpse at the reality of death.

Lynch decided to pull together resources for parents and children which could help in these stressful times. A bibliography listing a number of books as well as two videotapes are now available through the library. Also, a pamphlet coauthored by Fred Rogers of "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" is on hand entitled, "Talking with Young Children About Death."

"I thought it would be a nice and positive way to remember George Flynn," said Lynch of the display, "It's nice to know you have a resource."

The books are generally categorized by different age groups for children. Some of the books are for children's reading, others are to inform parents about how to talk with their children on the subject. Lynch and her husband have donated several copies of books as well.

Lynch says what these books offer are guidelines, and reassurance. Answering children's questions with straightforwardness and honesty is often the best approach, says Lynch.

When Lynch began to put together the display, she sought information from a number of sources. Rabbi Earl Grollman, a resident of Belmont, has spoken on the subject and has written several books, which are now available through the display.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Charles Mitsakos also gave useful advice to Lynch. It was Mitsakos who suggested the display be set up at the public library, where everyone could have access to the materials. Also, library personnel took a great interest in getting the display on its feet.

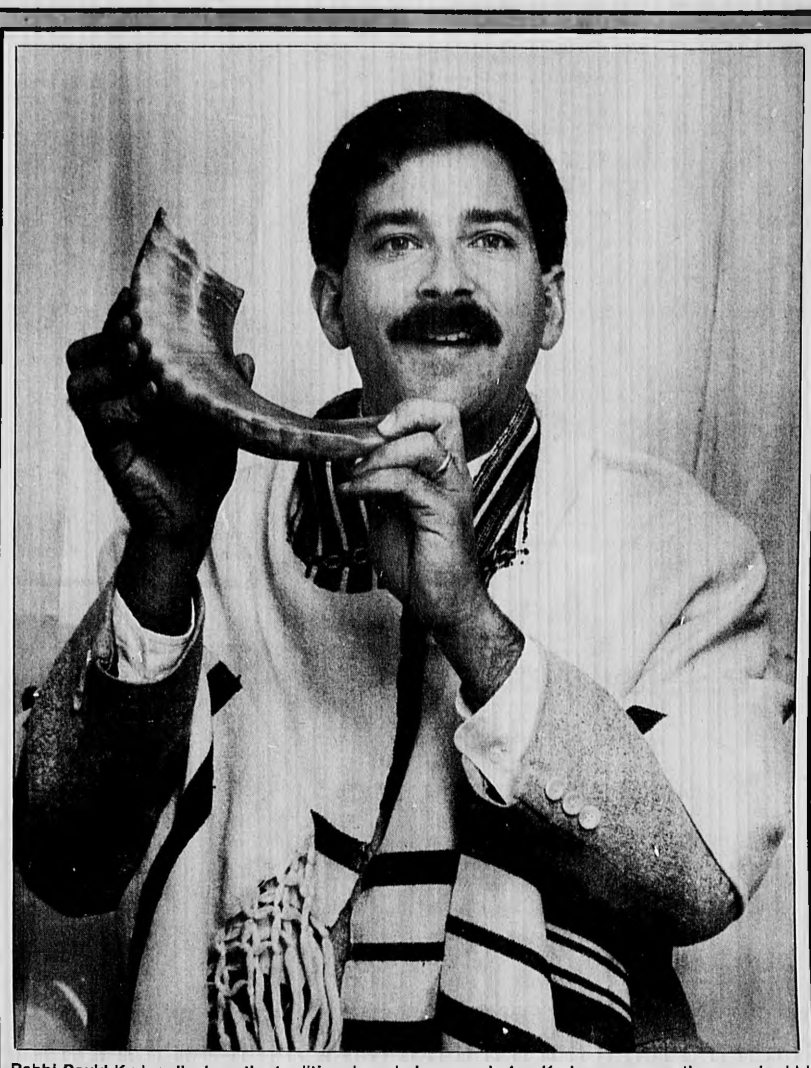

Lynch says the support of Winchester teachers throughout the troubling weeks this past spring was invaluable. "The teachers were just wonderful," said Lynch, "As a parent I felt taken care of because the teachers were so sincere and supportive with the children."

Lynch hopes in the future, the collection will grow and possibly become a traveling display that could be featured at local schools, churches and libraries. She would also like to incorporate a speaker to give lectures on the topic.

The display will be exhibited through Oct. 15 in the Children's Room of the Winchester Public Library.

Rabbi David Kudan serves Congregation Shir Tikvah

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Rabbi David Kudan recently joined the ranks of religious leaders in Winchester, settling into his new position as rabbi and setting goals for growth and change within his congregation.

Kudan, 31, became the official rabbi of the three-year-old Jewish congregation of Shir Tikvah in Winchester Aug. 15.

The temple holds services in the First Congregational Church and serves residents of many surrounding communities — a large percentage from Arlington and Winchester.

And Kudan says their numbers are growing quickly and steadily. Presently there are 93 families who take part in weekly services at the temple. Shir Tivka also offers a school program for children to learn about Jewish traditions and culture.

According to Kudan, the program is an excellent way to "transmit to the next generation ... It's a bridge between the synagogue and the home."

> "Religion should not be seen as the answer, but seen as the question."
> Rabbi David Kudan

Kudan describes himself as a Reform Jew, coming from a branch of the faith that seeks to reconcile traditional Jewish practices and present-day life. Reform Jews, says the rabbi, believe their religion, while structured, must be fluid and able to give people energy.

"Our belief is that religion must change with the times, while being anchored in religious traditions," says Kudan, "We must always push forward, to re-examine the riches in religion that are waiting to be unlocked.

"Religion should not be seen as the answer, but seen as the question," says Kudan.

Kudan likens Judaism to the lunar cycle on which the Jewish year is based. Now is a period of waxing, says Kudan, of growth and change, but periods of waning, of struggle and strife, still linger in the minds of Jews.

In an effort to bring his congregation closer to Judaism and its sometimes turbulent past, Kudan hopes to plan a trip to Israel for his congregation "to understand the problems and affect change,

Chief seeks semi-automatics

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Police Chief Joseph Perritano thinks his officers need more firepower to deal with today's "bad guys," and he hopes that private donations will raise the $20,000 needed to equip Winchester's police force with semi-automatic weapons to replace their current revolvers.

"I realize the town can't afford to do it right now," said Perritano. However, through private donations, Perritano is hoping to raise the funds needed to purchase new weapons and train officers. To start off the fund, the police department received a $1,000 donation from the Christopher Columbus Club, and Perritano is hoping other groups and organizations will donate to the project.

Perritano said he wants his officers to carry semi-automatic weapons rather than the six-shot revolvers they presently carry. The semi-automatics provide more fire power, he said. Both the semi-automatic weapons and revolvers fire each time an officer pulls the trigger. However, the type of weapon Perritano has in mind is a clip-fed weapon, which carries 15 rounds of ammunition. Officers carry a spare loaded clip, and can replace their ammunition in one step, rather than bullet by bullet as in the revolver.

"As far as I'm concerned, it's for the safety of the people and the officers themselves," he said in reference to his decision to upgrade the department's weapons.

"It's not a popular subject. I realize that," he said of guns and the need for his officers to carry them. "It's more of a necessary evil than anything.

Perritano said in today's society, police departments are facing "more and more crimes with more weapons being used ... more sophisticated weapons."

"Hopefully an officer will never have to use his gun," he said. "In the event they do, I want to give them a fair chance on the street."

While Perritano is anxious for his officers to have upgraded equipment, he said training is extremely important. Each officer will be required to train for a minimum of 24 hours, he noted.

Perritano said he plans to send three or four members of the department to a week-long training program. "They will come back and instruct the officers individually," he added. "As much as possible, we'd like to utilize our own people. It's more cost effective."

Perritano cited two examples of bank robberies in recent years where Winchester police were required to use their weapons.

In one, Perritano said shots were exchanged. "And it was the bad guys that had the automatic weapons," he added. In the second, a sawed-off shotgun was used. "Our weapons are no match for those type of weapons," he said.

Perritano said many communities like Winchester are looking at upgrading weapons as well, such as Reading and Stoneham.

The cost of the project, $20,000, is based on 40 police officers, and includes semi-automatic pistols, holsters, clips, holders, and "most importantly, training," said Perritano.

POLICE LOG

Sunday, Sept. 3
4:30 p.m.

Officer Kurt Ellis was on patrol in the area of the middle reservoir with a water department employee when they spotted two individuals swimming 25 to 30 feet offshore. The two persons were cited for tresspassing.

During the day, numerous walkers and bicyclists were also informed of the restrictions and asked to leave the area.

3:17 p.m.

Officer Theodore Yeanacopolis was called to a Main Street restaurant to take a report of a burglary. An employee of the restaurant told police an unknown party had entered the restaurant through an atrium door on the side of the building. The burglar removed $60 in $1 bills from a cash register and left behind $40 in rolled coins, said police reports.

The employee told police she had locked the door before to leaving work at 10 p.m. the prior evening. When she arrived the next day at 3 p.m. the door was open and the dead bolt was unlocked, according to police reports. Police found no signs of forced entry and determined that either the employee forgot to lock the door or someone with a key had entered the building. An investigation continues.

1:45 a.m.

Officers Joseph O'Connor and Lawrence Hill were on patrol and stopped at a red light on Highland Avenue at South Border Road when they observed a blue Chevy Coupe make a wide turn onto Highland Avenue.

Police clocked the speed of the car at 47 m.p.h. in a 30 m.p.h. zone. The car was weaving as it passed Hancock Street and began to straddle the solid double line and then swerved completely into the other lane, according to police.

Police pulled the car over on Highland Avenue at Fells Road. The operator was identified as an Arlington Street man, said police reports.

The operator was placed under arrest for being a minor transporting alcohol and driving under the influence of alcohol, said reports. The operator was also cited for not driving within marked lanes and for speeding.

Friday, Sept. 1
6:32 p.m.

Officer Peter MacDonnell was on patrol when he observed a motorcycle with repair plates stopped at light facing south on Main Street at the intersection of Skillings Road.

The operator, a 32-year-old Brockton man, told police the vehicle belonged to a friend, a resident of Medford.

According to police reports, a computer check showed the motorcycle had not been registered since 1987. The vehicle was towed and the owner was cited for illegal use of repair plates and allowing the unregistered and uninsured use of a vehicle.

9:12 a.m.

Officer Steven Fields observed a Volvo on Pond Street with an expired registration sticker dated 6/89. The operator, a 35-year-old Dunster Lane resident, was pulled over and cited with operating an unregistered vehicle.

The car was towed from the scene.

Thursday, Aug. 31
11:31 a.m.

Officer James Covino was on a traffic detail for Boston Gas at Main Street by Swanton Street when he observed a brown Chevy Camaro traveling south on Main Street behind another vehicle. The driver of the Camaro passed the other car on the inside of the southbound lane at a high rate of speed.

Covino attempted to flag down the driver, but the car instead accelerated. The car was estimated to be traveling at 60 m.p.h. in a 30 m.p.h. zone, according to police reports. At this time, Covino radioed to all cruisers to keep a look-out for this vehicle.

Seconds later, Officer Kenneth Green spotted the car on Washington Street and the driver was charged by Covino for improper passing, failure to stop for a police officer, speeding and driving to endanger, said police reports.

9:29 a.m.

Officer Steven Fields was called to a Swanton Street address for a report of a motor vehicle accident hit-and-run. The operator of the vehicle that had been hit, told police he had been driving east on Swanton Street when a blue Mercury Monarch backed out of Parkview parking lot and struck his car on the right front fender bumper area.

The man, a resident of Auburndale, told police the other car continued traveling up Swanton Street.

The rear bumper of the other car had fallen off and was left at the scene with the registration plate attached. A check showed the car belonged to a 48-year-old Swanton Street woman. At this time, police saw the hit-and-run vehicle and questioned the driver.

She told police she was frightened when the accident occurred and admitted she had fled the scene. The driver was cited for leaving the scene of an accident with property damage and her car was towed for her own safety, said police reports.

Wednesday, Aug. 30
7:38 p.m.

Officer James Covino was called to a High Street address to take a report of a cold breaking and entering. The owner of the home told police the break occurred sometime between 6:45 a.m. and 7:15 p.m. The resident showed police where the front window had been opened.

Several items of value were taken from the home. Fingerprints were lifted and an investigation continues.

WTA donates water project to town

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Water conservation is on everyone's mind lately and the Winchester Tennis Association is getting into the act, too.

Don Ellis, a Winchester resident and member of the Winchester Tennis Association (WTA), recently launched a program to use water from Wedge Pond to water the clay surface of the Packer Tennis Courts on Palmer Street — instead of using costly water from the Massachusetts Water and Resources Authority (MWRA).

Since the courts are made of clay, water is essential to their playing condition, according to WTA member and spokesman Andy Oxenhorn.

Without twice-daily watering, the topping of the clay courts will dry up and blow away with the wind, which leaves an uneven playing surface, says Oxenhorn. Also, replacement of these top materials is costly and time-consuming.

To prevent this natural drying and, in turn, to conserve natural resources, WTA members and residents joined together to get a water pump project off the ground.

Because of water restrictions and bans during the spring and summer, Ellis was well aware the shortage could be particurlary damaging to the courts.

Under the guidance of Ellis, a plan to gain approval from the town to use the Wedge Pond water was submitted. The WTA first discussed the proposal with the Department of Environmental Quality and Engineering (DEQE) and then asked the Winchester Board of Selectmen for approval. This process was successful and design of the pumping system started.

Winchester residents Gordon Nicholson and Gordon Grant drew up the plans and supplied information on materials and prices. And WTA Secretary Jim McGeehan and Ellis put the whole plan into motion.

With the help of the Department of Public Works (DPW) trenches were built to lay the pipe and the town electrician hooked up the electrical components. Volunteers from the WTA completed the rest of the work, including laying the pipe and leveling out and extending the trenches.

The system is currently operated manually with a series of sprinkler heads positioned around the courts that trigger the pump into action.

And on July 27 the pumping system was used for the first time. Oxenhorn says the savings to the town in water conservation and actual cost savings is inestimable. The final cost of the project, all materials included, was $2,500, which was money donated by the WTA.

Although it's difficult to accurately assess the savings in dollars and cents to the town, Oxenhorn estimates that hundreds of dollars will be skimmed off the town's water bill each year, thanks to the WTA water project.

'Nick' Molea is a dog's best friend

By DAN CHANE
Special to the Star

Remember the crabbed old dogcatcher of yore — the nemesis of every young boy with a dog and the target of many a nickle pea shooter?

Nowadays when the battered grey van of the Winchester Police Canine Control passes, most dogs in Our Town sit up and beg — for Winchester's Dominic "Nick" Molea has earned the deep affection of man and beast alike in his 17 years as town dog officer.

Long an asset to Winchester, Nick grew up in town, having been born on Irving Street, and graduated from Winchester High School with the Class of 1941.

Right out of school, Nick served admirably in the Fifth Marine Division – the same division that raised the flag on Iwo Jima — and served in Hawaii, Japan and China before finally arriving back stateside on a merchant marine ship.

It's easy to see why animals and their owners love this amiable man, for a conversation with him reveals how intensely devoted he is to his job. As he says, "I care about the animals and always try to get them good homes.

Nick has ties throughout this area and works closely with Northeast Shelter in Salem – and with Yvonne Brown in the placing of his dogs.

In an apt twist, Nick mentions that much of the time "It's the people, not the animals that break the law." And he reflects that just in licensing alone there will be 300 fines levied, this year, out of a known canine population of 1,200.

Up on McKay Avenue, the pound is a credit to Nick and the personal care he gives his charges — an immaculate holding area, soft bedding and a fan for hot summer days.

Nick allows that work around the pound was more efficiently accomplished prior to Proposition 2½ when he had the services of a local student worker part time.

Nick was sorry to have seen the override fail for as he says, "All my life, Winchester has wanted all types of services." He feels, as many do, that loss of these services has had a negative effect on the quality of our lives.

The decrepit grey van, with 1,100,000 miles on it, while something of a local institution, says something about local pride as it makes its way about Winchester (and surrounding areas) the town seal emblazoned on its sides.

Most who see Nick tooling around in his infamous van are amazed to realize he recently lost one leg just below the knee to diabetes.

Indomitable soul that he is, he was up and about — doing his job — before most heard the news via the town grapevine.

This dedication, as he quietly goes about his humane work largely unnoticed, has made Nick Molea one of Winchester's true class acts and a credit to all of us.

Thanks, Nick!

Footprints on the beach of time

By TERRY MAROTTA
Special to the Star

When you go to the seashore at summer's end, just for the day even, you see things in a different light. Maybe it's the way the ocean erases the beach so completely every few hours; or the way seagulls patrol it like corridor monitors, looking alert. The place feels like a big schoolroom suddenly, and you're wide awake in it, and noticing things you normally don't.

Like about your own children. Here they are now, all enjoying the day in their own way, one reading, one begging to be buried in the sand, one poking with a stick a smelly citizen of that mysterious realm where animal and vegetable kingdoms meet.

Watching them, you realize how different humans are, one from another, even these three, cast from the Scrabble-Box of genes by way of the same two parents.

You know you raised them pretty much the same. How is it then, that when you get done reading the same fairy tale to each at age five or so, and close the book on those crafty elves and benevolent giants, one sighs and says "Tell me again of the night I was born?" Another turns and demands "So, have you ever seen Santa?" And a third gazes at his night-light in somber philosophical way and asks, "Why don't dogs wear underpants?"

It's because they're different from the start, and so of course respond differently to every experience.

"What am I like?", they want to know, and how can we answer, except in metaphors? "You're like a lily," I've said to the fair and quiet one, the only member of this family with eyes that are not brown. "You're like a rose," I've told her more prickly sister, she of the glad and angry outbursts, the only fourth-grader in America who wore her Easter hat for the official school picture. "You're like a geranium," spicy more than sweet, sturdy more than graceful, I've told the little man with the underpants on his mind.

It's fine we're all so different. We can't help but be, between the dicey toss of chromosomes and the order in which we arrive. The first-born comes along and stakes out his claim. Then the second, to get along at all, must clear new territory for himself. It explains a lot about the development of personalities.

My spouse's big brother, as a youth, made flash cards, the better to study, and took notes on his notes. My spouse, following close behind him in fifth grade, waited 'til the very day the big project on Egypt was due, according to the story, the culmination of a four-week unit; went home for lunch, got a cake of soap and started carving; handed it in an hour later, a greasy, slightly soiled lump of tallow. "Uh, this is a dog in the old days. In Egypt. What this is, it's an Egyptian dog..." The teacher wasn't fooled for an eyeblink. Brother Number Two did well in school, but never as well as his predecessor. But then he could always say, "Hey, I didn't try as hard."

So it's genes and birth order, and some other combination of things besides, like who was president and what's the latest thinking on Free Will and a broth of other cultural assumptions we can't name or even see because we're too busy swimming in it.

A moment ago, the oldest child was deep in a 1,000-page book about a cool blue-eyed prehistoric lady. The middle one had set up a hotel in the sand and was interviewing a host of characters to work in it. Her little brother got a job as room service clerk, but big sister was told to call back in a month. The brother himself was prancing at water's edge chanting, a towel, hanging sheik-like from his head, held in place by a pair of boxer shorts.

Now the sun has begun a deep curtsy at the horizon, and lingers there. The ocean creeps up to our toes, itching to erase what we have written today. The three children walk together down to the beach, two long-legged fawns and a little squat gnome, as different one from another as the shells on which they so lightly tread.

40 years ago: 1949

The Winchester Star reported that according to Tax Collector Donald Heath, the real estate tax collections that year were actually ahead of the year before, despite the reported tightness of funds.

In 1948, 14.3 percent of the real estate taxes had been collected. In 1949, 18.7 percent were in on that date. Assessors' commitment this year was also larger, the figure being $1,247,380.20 against $1,206,156.60 in 1948.

On Saturday morning, several reports came in to the Central Fire Station that a duck was in some sort of trouble at the Mill Pond across Mt. Vernon Street. An investigation was made and it was discoverd that a duck had gotten itself caught on a fish-hook and the line on the hook was fastened to a good-sized stick, too big for the duck to disengage himself.

With the help of dedicated firemen, the duck was freed.

WINCHESTER PAST AND PRESENT

Historic Lyceum Hall's renovation

By ELLEN KNIGHT
Special to the Star

In the center of Winchester's downtown National Register Historical District stands a witness to a large part of Winchester's history. Like the town itself, it is much changed from its beginning. Though no longer of the grandeur and dignified standing of former years, through recent work and care it has reappeared as a structure of note in the community — standing now, among other things, as testimony to historic restoration.

The most cursory glance at any historic photo of Lyceum Hall raises the question whether the recent renovation of the building may be termed a restoration. The missing upper stories are still missing. The latest renovation was, in fact, not a complete restoration but rather a facade restoration. Even so limited, the transformation of Lyceum Hall is still remarkable.

"When the opportunity arises to work on a building in the town center," says architect Alan Schoenegge who handled the project, "it is very important that we do our best to knit it back into the fabric of the town."

Schoenegge had several options to consider in renovating the facade of Lyceum. The original building, built in 1851 by Summer Richardson, was constructed in the Gothic Revival style with pointed arched windows, leaded glass, and ornate verge boards and finials. About the turn of the century, because of fire damage, the exterior was restyled. The Gothic decorations and arches were removed, the facade was covered in shingles. An addition was built on the Shore Road elevation. Thus altered, it remained an impressive building.

The third extensive change, however, occuring after a catastrophic fire in 1950, destroyed any pretentions to eminence the building once had. Lyceum was leveled off above the second floor, the facade covered with stucco, and, with other alterations, the building hardly resembled its former self in any regard. Once imposing, the structure became unsightly.

In the Spring of 1987 the present owners approached Schoenegge to handle a renovation project. Schoenegge welcomed the project, despite the decision not to rebuild the upper storeys.

From the historical perspective, it is regrettable that the upper structure was not rebuilt since the former spacious building was not only the site of shops and offices but also of a large hall that was the scene of events that gave the building much of its historical significance — lectures, town meetings, entertainments, church services, temperance gatherings, and meetings of an array of civic and social groups.

Lyceum Hall gets a facelift

From other perspectives, however, reasons for not undertaking a complete restoration are understandable. The income from a building such as Lyceum cannot, of itself, support historic renovation. (And if any lesson has been learned from Town Hall, it is that renovation is a very expensive undertaking.) Fortunately, however, when repair became necessary, the owners opted, like the architect, for as much restoration as possible. "In keeping with the historical significance of the building," says co-owner Henry Quill, "we thought historical renovation was very important."

Schoenegge drew his inspiration for the project from the old shingle building, remnants of which he could still see in the back. He studied archival photographs of the building and examined the existing structure.

The two shop doorways on the addition were the only original store fronts on the building. Schoenegge rebuilt the rotted stock on these two storefronts and took the motif of wood and glass windows alternating with brick piers around the building, removing aluminum and stainless steel around the windows and the aluminum fronts covering two of the brick piers. The stucco was removed from the knee walls and beaded sheathing restored. The windows were transformed into transom windows (without air conditioners), and, above the windows, sings in keeping with the period, on a dark background with goldleafed V-cut lettering, were installed.

On the second storey, the stucco was removed and the old shingles replaced with new white cedar shingles. The flair below the second-storey windows was restored. Ornamental head trim was restored to the windows. An ornamental cornice, like that which originally ran above the third storey, was installed to crown the building. Finials, also part of the original building, were used to make up the difference in elevation between Lyceum and its neighbors.

Looking at photographs of the 19th century building, one may still regret that the upper storeys, the gable roof, the triangular and oval windows of the upper storeys are still gone. Yet those responsible for the renovation (the owners, Schoenegge, and Jonathan Kruger to whom Schoenegge credits the detailing) must be commended for the present restoration. The result is a rather handsome, harmoniously composed exterior, with attractive historical details.

Some other building renovations in town have lacked the historical perspective and have, consequently, lacked the success of Lyceum. Other projects may be undertaken in the future and, hopefully, will consider the fabric of the town. Across the street, for example, the Brown and Stanton Building, which houses Schoenegge's own office, awaits renovation. Also important to the town's social and cultural as well as architectural history, it has also suffered from changes imposed upon its exterior. With care similar to that given Lyceum, it may be restored to renewed dignity.

Appearances do matter. The appearance of the Lyceum Building should stand as an example of the difference made by accompanying renovation with an historical perspective.

What happened to that vacation?

By DARRYL NASH
Special to the Star

When we were all in elementary school, summer vacation seemed twice as long as the school year. But now that we have reached high school, the summer break seems to be no longer than Christmas vacation or Spring Break.

Yes, the time flies and before we know it, we're back. Set those alarm clocks, fill your closets fuller (clothes-wise), and bring on the new school year. Yes, it's me again, Darryl Nash, back for year number two at the Winchester Star, and giving you a rundown of the year's events and happenings.

Welcome back to the corridors of Winchester High School, and let's get on with the year. And always keep in mind, there are only about forty Mondays to go.

Summer Was Full of Ups and Downs

This past summer will live in mild infamy with the people of Winchester, and especially the older school children of the town. It was one lazy summer night back in mid-July when tires skidded and lives were lost. The story is well known to all; it bears no repeating. But it's message must always remain in the minds and hearts of school kids across not only Winchester, but our entire country.

Winchester lost one of its high school graduates this night, while another lost the chance to enjoy her banner year at Winchester High School. For years we have read about such tragedies outside of town, but never before had it hit home with such magnitude.

In today's society, drinking is too common to contain and cease. Teenagers have come to accept drinking among their friends and companions. "Parents Against Drunk Driving" and "Students Against Drunk Driving" are only mild counterparts to teenage alcohol abuse. They cannot be at every party on Friday nights. They cannot read their child's mind and know where they are going and what they are doing. It is up to the kids themselves to protect their friends.

What we have to do is show our loyalty to our friends by watching over them. We must be each other's guardian angels because if we don't, we could pay the ultimate price.

For those of you that did not know those who were lost this past summer, imagine the effect it would have on you if you did. And for those that were associated with those whose lives were lost, how would you feel if it happened again? Don't let it.

Finish Your Homework

For those students who are entering higher levels of classes this September, many have already received assignments back in June. For the amount of time that a student spends on school work during the school year, why must students spend a portion of their much-coveted summer vacation doing the same?

Included in these summer assignments is a bundle of reading, assigned to assure teachers that students have taken time to broaden their horizons through the art of literature.

Unfortunately, some teachers do not realize that some students can only greatly appreciate a good book when it is their choice to pick it up and read it. When assigned, a book tends to lose it's appeal, as along with chapters of fine reading comes deadlines and reports. The books that students would like to embark on must take a back seat to those that have the deadline. Eventually, the books that the students want to read never come to be.

Other students also receive lengthy reports to do along with textbook reading over the summer. If this cannot be placed into the September-to-June itinerary, it is the responsibility of the administrator to work it into the schedule. It should not have to be the job of the student to work it into what may already be a busy schedule, between travel and summer work.

In the future, it would be in the best interest of the student to grant them their vacation to do with it what they may. Students do realize that summer reading is recommended, and it is their responsibility to help themselves while they are away from the deadlines and long-term papers that they must conquer throughout the school year.

W.H.S. notes

Rabbi Kudan welcomed

learn love for people and respect," said Kudan.

But the rabbi stresses that his role for his congregation is not as a mediator between God and individuals, but rather as a teacher.

"I'm not here to generate light, rather I'm here as a lens, to focus the energy of the community," says Kudan, "Everyone has their own relationship with God."

Currently, Kudan is working on his Ph.D. at Harvard University in near Eastern languages and civilizations.

A graduate of Hampshire College, Kudan was first drawn to the stock market, not rabbinical training. It wasn't until after a stint in Chicago as a stock options consultant that Kudan enrolled in rabbinical school and studied at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, University of Paris in Sorbonne, the Institut Catholique de Paris and the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion in Cincinnati.

Kudan's extensive background of education mixed with his experience as an assistant rabbi, student rabbi and a rabbinic intern is just the combination he was looking for.

"Knowledge with a basis in experience," says Kudan, and is the key to successful teaching.

For Kudan, becoming a Reform rabbi was somewhat of a "natural choice ... a family tradition." Kudan's father was a rabbi and his grandfather a scholar of Jewish theology. In his family, Kudan says there is "a tremendous love of Judaism and scholarship."

Three members of his family in his generation are also rabbis — he and one other are Reform, while another cousin is an Orthodox rabbi.

Kudan's household includes his wife, Barbara Abrams, whom he met on trip to Israel when he was just 15, and their newest arrival, son Ariel Nadav, who recently celebrated his first birthday.

Winchester's newest rabbi looks with anticipation toward the coming year and the High Holy Days that are just around the corner. The cycle of holidays is composed of Rosh ha-Shanah, Sept. 30, the Jewish New Year, which is observed for one day and Yom Kippur, Oct. 9, or the Day of Atonement, a day for reconciliation with God.

Shabbat services are held on alternate Friday nights at 7:45 p.m. Additional children-oriented Shabbat services are held once a month at 10 a.m. on Saturday. For more information, call Kudan (643-8282), President Jerry Blaine (721-2561) or Membership Chairman Fran McClintock (729-7612).

Inquiry program for non-Catholics

St. Eulalia's Parish, Winchester/Arlington and St. Mary's, Winchester, once again will begin its program — an inquiry program — especially for non-Catholics who are interested in learning more about what and why Catholics believe, how they worship, the traditions, etc. It is an opportunity to satisfy curiousity people might have about the Catholic Church.

Interesting topics will be addressed. Later sessions of this program for those who are interested in continuing, will lead into the process called the Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults (RICA). The program is open to all those who are interested. Please come and meet the staff of the parish, share your questions about the church. The introductory session will take place on Sunday evening, Sept. 10 at 7:30 p.m. in St. Eulalia's Parish Center.

For further information, please call Sister Rose Marie at 729-8220.

Cyr is ordained deacon

Mark B. Cyr, assistant in youth ministry for the Parish of the Epiphany, was ordained a deacon in the Episcopal Church, Sept. 2 at 10:30 a.m. The Rt. Rev. Otis E. Charles, former Bishop of Utah and now Dean of the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge, presided.

Cyr graduated from the Episcopal Divinity School a year ago and joined the parish staff last September.

In the Episcopal Church there are three orders of ordained ministers — deacons, priests, and bishops. It is customary for a deacon to be ordered a priest following a period of further testing and examination.

Members of Cyr's family and personal friends took part in the service Saturday. His mother, Aline Cyr, and his uncle, Robert Beaulieu were lectors. The Rev. Elizabeth Keaton, who serves on the staff of the Episcopal Diocese of Maryland, has the litanist, and the Rev. Jane S. Gould, assistant at the Epiphany, was the gospeler. The senior and high school choirs, under the direction of Laurence N. Berry, provided special music.

Dump fee hikes discussed

$412,000 — $87,000 from residential permits, $325,000 from commercial.

Residents currently pay $20 per year for a transfer station sticker. Commercial haulers presently pay $90 per ton each for commercial refuse, brush and limbs, mixed, and white metal; $30 per ton for compost; and $35 per ton for commercial/residential trash.

Option A would result in full cost recovery of all transfer station costs — $1,187 million. Through this option, all commercial haulers would be charged $100 per ton. Residential stickers would increase from $20 to $88 for the first vehicle in a household; the second vehicle sticker would remain $5. Commercial hauler permit fees would not change.

Under Option B, residential stickers would increase from $20 to $65 for the first automobile. The second sticker would remain at $5, and the commercial hauler fee would not change. This option would raise a total of $715,000.

The cost of stickers for residents does not change under Option C. All commercial haulers will be charged $100 per ton, but the fee for permits does not change. Option C raises $746,168 for the transfer station.

Under Option D, commercial haulers are charged $90 per ton for all refuse except brush and building debris. The cost for brush and building debris would be $200 per ton. This option assumes that commercial hauler tonnage remains constant, and that brush and building debris is virtually eliminated. Residential stickers would increase from $20 to $40. This option raises $736,603 for the operation of the facility.

Resident Michael Saraco said he was troubled that selectmen were referring to the increased fees as "user fees."

"I don't look at this as a user fee. I look at this as another form of taxation because I have no choice," he said. "Every single resident, regardless of their age, must use the transfer station." Saraco said he believes user fees refer to those services a person choses to take advantage of, such as the charge to use Leonard Beach last summer.

Saraco, who was an active spokesman for the Winchester Taxpayers' Association during its campaign against an override of Proposition 2½, said areas other than the transfer station should be considered to raise revenues. He cited the Aberjona parking lot near the train station as one example where the town is losing money because the parking meter does not work.

Resident and Chairman of the Alliance for Winchester's Future Lawrence Smith said, "I do not think it is inappropriate to raise fees to deal with this difficult fiscal situation." However, he also agreed that it is a "regressive solution, because it does require the participation of all households," and does not take into account the ability to pay.

He suggested the town look into how relief could be granted to those who cannot afford to pay.

"I guess I'm just getting hit with increases a little bit and I'm getting a little aggravated," said resident Guy Miranda. Miranda noted that with recent increases in both property valuation and water and sewer bills, increased fees at the transfer station are troublesome. Miranda said he is willing to pay an increased fee if other areas are addressed as well, such as eliminating "free" parking at the Aberjona lot, where the parking meter is presently broken.

Schmitt noted that selectmen plan to implement a downtown parking plan by Oct. 1, which will likely include parking fees.

Hauler John Edward Airey pointed out that many commercial haulers affected by the increased fees haul residents' trash to the station. Any increase in fees will ultimately be passed on to customers, he said.

Airey noted that he lost approximately 50 customers when selectmen raised the transfer station fees last year. "Little by little, these proposals are eliminating us in business, and there is still going to be trash in Winchester," said Airey.

While other haulers said they are willing to pay an increase, they are concerned fees are not shared equitably between residents and commercial haulers.

George Nowell, of G.R. Nowell and Sons, suggested selectmen work out a compromise involving parts of each option. "Maybe mishmash them together. There isn't really one I'd be happy about (on its own)," said Nowell.

Selectman William O'Leary asked haulers to make suggestions about how the town could handle the situation at the transfer station.

Hauler Wayne McDale suggested better policing of the facility. He said he believes many people, including haulers, are coming from other towns to dump refuse. Another hauler said he believes there are residents who dump at the transfer station without a sticker.

HEALTH

Alzheimer's support group begins Sept. 12

An Alzheimer's Support Group for families and friends will begin at St. Eulalia's, 50 Ridge St.

Many families feel alone when one of their own loved ones is afflicted with Alzheimer's Disease. It is common that family members do not always understand what is happening and don't know the sources of information available. The main focus of the support group is to provide assistance and information to concerned family members and friends. The caring that occurs at a support group meeting can be most helpful as shared experiences aid in the coping; information about the disease and community resources; understanding the behavior of the patient; receiving emotional support; learning specific strategies to handle their relative's behavior and deminished communication skills; to give encouragement, etc.

In the beginning the meetings will be opened with a key note speaker on a specific issue relative to Alzheimer's Disease. The first meeting will be Tuesday, Sept. 12, at 8:15 p.m. Peg Jemison, Lexington Council of Aging, will present the overview of Alzheimer's Disease. Following the presentation there will be discussion-questions, etc.

Future meetings will be held on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month. Information on the Caregiver, Legal Aspects, Community Resources, etc. will be some of the issues addressed at the meetings. For further information, please call St. Rose Marie Lipke at 729-8220.

rent and we appreciate that," said Albiani. "If we do have to move out, which we hope not, we'd ask for some help from the town in relocating. I don't believe we're in a financial position to pay market rate (for rent)," he added.

"We're non-profit," said Albiani of the Chamber. "None of the events we run are profit oriented." Albiani asked that the Chamber be involved or kept informed of decisions regarding the building.

"I think it's fair to say, given the town's fiscal situation, the rent is likely to go up if we keep it on a rental basis," said Schmitt.

Selectman Steve Powers asked if the Chamber would be interested in space in Town Hall if it became available.

"Obviously, we would be most interested in any space that would be affordable for the Chamber," said Executive Director Catherine Alexander. "We not only represent the business community, but in the last five or six years, the community (as a whole). The Chamber contributes a significant amount in making the quality of life better (in Winchester)," she added.

SUFFERING IS OPTIONAL. If you nave tried dieting in the past and failed, you are not alone. For many, diet is part of the problem, not its solution.

Thin people don't want to eat more than they should. So how come you do? When you learn to think about food the way thin people do, then you will eat casually and controllably, just as they do.

Based on successful work with overeaters in therapy, this unique, ten-week program was developed to help healthy people to finally control their eating without the need for discipline and the constant struggle against temptation.

WHY WAIT?
This small-class experience is not another diet or food supplement program, but a new opportunity for a permanent change in your relationship with food and your body. You can be happy with both, now.

PREVIEW: To give you a full description of this effective solution to over-eating, we offer a full, two-hour preview at our offices. Admission is $10. Call early to reserve your place, as seating is extremely limited.

ARTSMART at Wang Ctr

More than 120 cultural groups participating in Sept. 9 gala

More than 120 cultural organizations from the Boston area will take part in a festival of the arts, ARTSMART, on September 9 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at The Wang Center for the Performing Arts.

WCRB, The Wang Center, and Bull HN Information Systems have joined forces to present ARTSMART in celebration of the Massachusetts Cultural Alliance's 20th Anniversary.

ARTSMART, with the flavor of an old-fashioned fair, will feature a day of entertainment by many of Boston's most popular artists including the acclaimed jazz singer, Rebecca Parris. WCRB personalities Mary Ann Nichols, Laura Carlo, Peter Ross, and Station Manager Dave MacNeil will be on hand to broadcast the entire event live.

The day will begin at 9:45 a.m. when the Bay State Brass will perform the ARTSMART Fan Fair, composed by David Rakowski and Beth Wiemann, on the sidewalk under the marquee. At 10 a.m. the Bay State Brass will move into the Grand Lobby to entertain the early arrivals and the 120 exhibitors located on all floors of The Wang Center. The Bay State Brass is a chamber ensemble formed at Boston University in 1987; they are known to Boston audiences for their performances of music of all styles. The Bay State Brass performed the Fifth Anniversary Fanfare, composed by Timothy Geller, for the The Wang Center's gala celebration last December. David Rakowski, Beth Wiemann, and Timothy Geller are members of the Griffin Music Ensemble, currently presented under the auspices of The Wang Center.

At 10:30 a.m. actors from CityStage will present an audience participation play, "The History and the Adventures of Tom Thumb" in the Lower Lobby. "The History and the Adventures of Tom Thumb," a comedy, depicts the epic tale of the child who was no bigger than his father's thumb. Their performance will be repeated at 2:30 p.m. in the Lower Lobby.

Northern Lights, a bluegrass band known for its appearances at the Winterhawk Bluegrass Festival in New York, the Newport Folk Festival, and the Cajun & Bluegrass Festival, will perform in the Grand Lobby at 11 a.m. Northern Lights' eclectic tastes and original songs, featuring dazzling instrumentals and high, close harmonies, have created a fusion with folk, gospel, country, rock, and jazz that has entertained audiences from Maine to Kentucky.

At noon a roster of Boston's leading dignitaries will speak briefly on the state of the arts in Massachusetts, and congratulate the 120 participating organizations and individuals.

Patrick Coughlin, a six-year-old pianist from Quincy, and a star student from The Wang Center's Young at Arts program, will perform at 12:30 p.m.

Students from Project STEP (String Training and Educational Program for Minority Students) will perform at 12:45 p.m. Project STEP, sponsored by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Boston University, GBYSO, and the New England Conservatory, was established in 1982 to foster the development of young minority musicians. Many of the earliest students in this program are now enrolled in leading universities.

At 1:15 p.m. an honors quintent from GBYSO, Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra, will perform Serenade by Albert Roussel. GBYSO, now in its 32nd season, provides talented young musicians throughout New England and upstate New York with opportunities to perform symphonic music. The honors quintet includes Clinton Dewing, violin, of Newton; Nikki Marshall, viola, of Ballston Lake, New York; Jenny Petro, cello, of Watertown; Emma Dassori, flute, of Hingham; and Elisabeth Remy, harp, of Brewster.

At 2:15 p.m. Opera Lab will present a brief performance in the Grand Lobby. The purpose of the Opera Lab, established in June 1988, is to deal with social issues of local importance and thus function as an educator and consciousness-raiser; to perform for a wide range of audiences in a variety of spaces such as churches, synagogues, schools, universities, museums, and theaters; to limit the dimensions of opera, thus making it more theatrical, more accessible, more intimate, and ultimately more meaningful for both audience and performers; and to stretch the limits of the genre by developing an ensemble which, over time, redefines opera.

Improv Boston, established in 1982, is the longest running comedy troupe in Boston. They use suggestions from the audience to create hilarious scenes on the spot. Improv Boston will perform at 2:30 p.m. in the Grand Lobby.

Rebecca Parris, accompanied by Eddie Higgins, will perform at 3 p.m. Ms. Parris, a renowned jazz singer, is known to Boston audiences for her versatility. She was voted outstanding vocalist at the first annual Boston Music Awards (1987), as well as at the most recent Boston Music Awards (1989). She has been praised by Boston's music critics for her performances and her three albums, A Passionate Fling, Live at Chan's, and Double Rainbow. Eddie Higgins, born and raised in New England, started his professional career in Chicago, while studying at the Northwestern University Music School. For many years Eddie worked at some of Chicago's best known jazz clubs, and he has many recordings and awards to his credit.

At 4 p.m., the Greg Abate quintet will perform a progam of jazz. Mr. Abate has been performing professionally for more than 20 years. He first appeared in the Boston area in 1979. His career has included working in the Los Angeles area, playing alto in the Ray Charles Band, touring with Petula Clark, and leading his own bands.

In addition to the schedule above, there will be performances by CityStage and the Mandala Dance Company will present sidewalk performances of Appalachian Suite. Storyteller Cynthia Clay will tell stories to children in the Lower Lobby. Sidewalk Sam will create mythical cities with chalk and crayon on the plaza outside The Wang Center, weather permitting. Boston Ballet's Nutcraker will be touring all the floors throughout the day. In addition, children's entertainment will include live animals, mimes, and jugglers.

Jazz performer Rebecca Parris will be among the stars shining for the ARTSMART gala on Sept. 9 at the Wang Center for the Performing Arts.

ARTSMART, originated by radio station WCRB 102.5 FM as a community service in response to recent cutbacks in the arts, will be presented as an annual event in Boston. The Wang Center for the Performing Arts and Bull HN Information Systems joined WCRB in this venture to celebrate local artists and to salute the 20th anniversary of the Massachusetts Cultural Alliance.

The Massachusetts Cultural Alliance is the oldest cultural service organization in the United States. Incorporated as the Metropolitan Cultural Alliance in 1969, the Alliance seeks to strengthen and promote the statewide cultural community by providing management assistance, forums for communication and collaboration, and advocacy on issues on common concern. They have over 300 organizational and individual members.

WCRB 102.5 FM, Classical Radio Boston, celebrated its 40th year of broadcasting in 1988. The oldest full-time FM radio station in the Boston area continuously operating in the same format, WCRB is also one of the top commercial stations broadcasting classical music in the United States. While remaining committed to making fine music accessible to new and large audiences, WCRB has also been a pioneer in broadcasting. Its list of achievements includes the first stereo broadcast in New England and one of the first broadcasts of compact discs in the nation.

Bull's strengths in information management technology stem from 20 years of cooperation among Groupe Bull of France, Honeywell

The Wang Center's mission is to return to its original purpose and bring the finest performing arts nationwide to the city of Boston and to make the theater accessible to all those in need — children, the elderly, and the physically challenged — through "Young At Arts," its educational outreach program in the visual and performing arts. "Young at Arts" a program for people of all ages established in September 1988, succeeded in involving more than 5,000 children in workshops and performances during its first year. Its purpose is first and foremost to bring the performing arts to school children and families in Boston communities and the state of Massachusetts. The second purpose of "Young at Arts" is to provide ticket subsidy. In support of local artists, The Wang Center will present the Griffin Music Ensemble in its new four-concert subscription series during the coming season.

Bask in the beauty of Berkshire Fall

The rich foliage of the Berkshire Hills provides a perfect backdrop for a relaxing fall getaway. There's something for everyone to enjoy, music and museum, antiques and art, foliage and festivals.

A visitor can enjoy the spectacular view from atop Mt. Greylock or Monument Mountain, or hike the many trails in the wildlife sanctuaries and state parks.

There are many fall festivals and other special events which celebrate this season. Balloon rides, pumpkin contests and an annual triathalon are just a few of the many attractions. A different way to see the vibrant foliage is to take a ride on the Berkshire Scenic Railway and get onto a different track. If you are looking for quieter excursions, explore the many antiques shops, museums and art galleries throughout the county, which feature continually changing exhibits.

All of the county's historic sites stay open through October: the homes of prominent authors and artists and 19th century business tycoons and two restored Shaker Villages. Visitors may experience first hand an area that is rich in culture and history.

Shir Tikvah holds open house

Now that it is September, Temple Shir Tikvah will once again begin hosting its open house. The purpose of the open house is to give families an opportunity to meet informally with members of the congregation, as well as learn about the temple's many educational and social programs. This is also an opportunity to meet the temple's new rabbi, David Kudan.

This year, there will be three open houses, each held in a different town. Everyone is welcome to attend, especially people new to the area that have not otherwise had the opportunity to learn about Temple Shir Tikvah. Each of the three open houses will begin at 7:45 p.m. with coffee and dessert being served.

The dates of the open houses are as follows:

Sept. 13 at the home of Dick & Sue Pallan, 13 Norwood St., Winchester; Sept. 14 at the home of Gary and Candace Shostak, 4 Pamela Drive, Arlington; and Sept. 20 at the home of Bruce Ball and Judie Feins, 121 Slade St., Belmont.

The temple has a religious school for all ages, as well as regular children's and adult shabbat services. Services are held in the First Congregational Church by the Winchester Common. The temple's goal is to serve the religious and social needs of the Jewish families living in Winchester, Arlington and the towns surrounding them.

Stress reduction course at YMCA

The North Suburban YMCA is starting a program, which can help you learn to relax to manage stress. Visualizing yourself in better health and using the power of your breath to increase endurance and to reach energy potential will be a part of this program.

The course will teach the use of inner focusing techniques to heighten concentration. It will use tension reduction techniques, imagery, and music to foster relaxation. Each of the groups will consist of 20-minute relaxation exercises and 25 minutes of pratical tools for integration into your day-to-day life. Participants will leave the course with the ability to utilize stress reduction tools when appropriate, develop greater body awareness, and feel more energetic.

The instructor is Terri Halperin-Eaton, M. Ed. CAGS, ATR. She has adapted various uses of arts therapy, relaxation, and stress management to help people to learn to regulate and take better control over their lives. She has taught classes at Lesley College Graduate School in focusing techniques and internal imagery. Halperin-Eaton presently works at New England Rehabilitation Hospital as a stress management specialist with a chronic pain population. She also maintains a private practice in Winchester.

EA holds support group meeting

Emotions Anonymous announces the opening of a new chapter. It begins with a Public Information Meeting on Friday, Sept. 8, at 7 p.m. at the Choate Hospital, 2nd Floor Conference Room. Each week thereafter regular meetings will be held at the same time and location. Everyone is invited to attend.

EA does for the person seeking emotional health what Alcoholics Anonymous does for the alcoholic. EA follows the 12-Step Program of Alcoholics Anonymous, adapted by their permission for persons with emotional (or living) problems.

There are no dues or EA membership. EA is a non-profit fellowship, supported entirely by the voluntary contributions of its members.

EA is a spiritual program — not a religious program and is helpful to people of all faiths or of no recognized faith. Members share their experience, strength, and hope with each other while practicing the 12 Steps to the New Way of life one day at a time.

If you have gone the whole route of other methods of treatment and have not achieved inner peace and serenity, if your life is "like a shoe that pinches," if you are not as happy as you would like to be or if your emotions interfere with or curtail your daily activities and your wholesome relationshpis with others, you are invited to discover as others have, that the EA fellowship of weekly meetings is warm and friendly, and that it is also important in achieving and maintaining emotional health.

Electronic music Studio acquired by Powers

Powers Music School recently announed the acquisition of an electronic studio for the use of adult and teen music students. Beginning in September, students who have attained an intermediate level on their instruments, will have access to a number of projects involving the studio. Powers is the only community music school in the Boston area to offer the benefits of an electronic music studio to its students.

In recent years, electronic instruments have been used more and more in all kinds of music. Keyboard synthesizers are widely used by amateurs and are rapidly becoming the folk instrument of our time. Similarly, more and more people have become familiar with personal computers and find using them challenging and fun.

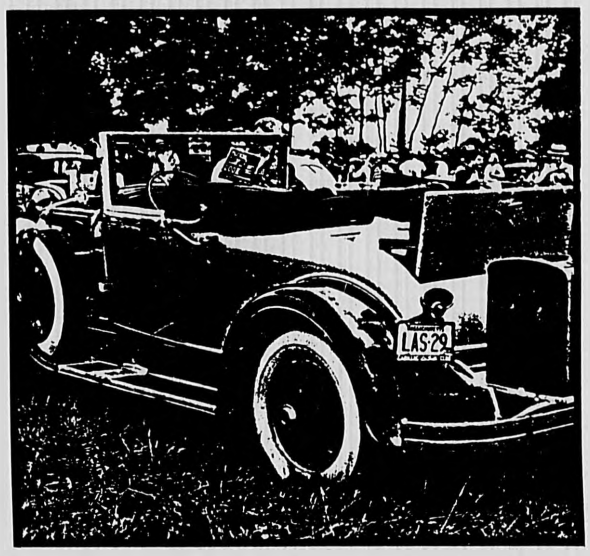

The electronic studio will harness this new technology for the purpose of engaging more people in the process of creating and learning about music. Each semester, students at Powers Music School will have the opportunity to choose one of the following areas of concentration:

Basic Music Skills — playing by ear, learning basic scales and chords, and improving sightreading skills.

Synthesizer Techniques and Recording — learning to run the MI synthesizer and creating new sounds, performing and changing music computer software.

Computer-Aided Composition — learning to build one's own piece, using computer and syntesizer, enhancing improvisation skills and making arrangements of favorite songs.

The person who will bring this program to life is Caleb Morgan, a Boston composer who is also a teacher and jazz-guitar performer. He earned a MM degree, with honors, from the New England Conservatory, studied jazz composition at Berklee and electronic music at the MIT Experimental Music Studio, where he also served as a tutor. Caleb Morgan has written hundreds of compositions ranging from chamber music to film scores.

Business Spotlight

Landmark Exterior Restoration
FIRM RESTORES BEAUTY OF BUILDINGS

A new, chemical spray-on, cold water rinse-off system offers a practical way to wash the face of your building. A clear composite chemical liquid is diluted with water and sprayed on the dingy, soot-stained building walls.
Then it's rinsed off with a spray of cold water. No abrasive sandblasting. No scrubbing. No scraping. No raw additives or etchants. No harm to the surface.
Yet, the effect is astonishing. The original surface appears in all its beauty. This is Landmark Exterior Restoration in action.
"This system has proven itself over the last several years to be highly satisfactory in the cleaning of building exteriors of all types of masonry and metal surfaces," says Vincent Spierto, president.
It is used to clean statues, sculptures, carvings and buildings of historic value because it cleans without harming the surface and it restores the original beauty.
"The method solves cleaning problems, which have been the despair of architects and engineers for hundreds of years."
Landmark Exterior Restoration came into being after many years of development and operational experience.
"We are founded on the premise that something had to be done to restore the beauty of our nation's cities and suburbs," Spierto says.
"We now provide the practical ways and means to clean building exteriors and keep them clean. Landmark Exterior Restoration represents more than 19 years of successful operations in every facet of the mobile cleaning industry, combined with a background of more than 20 years in the development and manufacture of diverse industrial cleaning chemicals.
"We are fully insured and will provide references. Also, for the last 19 years we have provided expert waterproofing. These techniques can save you thousands of dollars and should be considered normal maintenance to protect your investment."
For a free, no-obligation test and estimate of this amazing chemical cleaning system, call Landmark Exterior Restoration at 617-862-2559.

Girls' strength could recapture soccer title

Returning veterans give Scanlon's Sachems strong starting position in Middlesex League

By MARK NADEAU
Sports Editor

For the first time since the Middlesex League formed in 1978, the Winchester High girls' soccer team will not enter the fall season as defending champions. Coach Chris Scanlon and his troops aren't comfortable with the role of second fiddle and they plan to make their absence from the top a brief one.

"Our goal this season is to win back the championship we lost last year," said Scanlon. While this would be an ambitious goal for most teams, it's a modest one in light of the firepower of the 1989 Sachem girls' squad. This year's team is loaded with talent and features an excellent blend of veterans and newcomers. The players worked hard over the summer and Coach Scanlon was impressed with how well prepared they were for the start of the two-a-day workout sessions.

"The outlook for this season is very positive," said Scanlon. "Depth is probably our biggest strength. We have 22 players who will be able to contribute in every game." Most coaches are happy if they have 15 players who could do the same.

If there are any question marks on this team, it would have to be at goalkeeper. Allison Price has graduated after two seasons in the nets, leaving the door open for junior Kathryn Ford to take over. Ford saw some varsity action last year against weaker opponents, but she hasn't really been tested yet. Furthermore, she was injured last week, which provided an opportunity for freshman Jen Russo, who was impressive in two scrimmages last weekend. Coach Scanlon sees Ford as the starter but Russo and sophomore Dauren Nowell should get there chances.

The goaltending situation could become a moot point in light of the awesome strength of the defense in front of the net. Quad-captain Jenna Maconochie anchors the defense at sweeperback and she will share time with senior Danielle Berkhout. The wingback positions are solid with returning starters Sara Noonan (right side) and Courtney Perkins (left side) back in place. Juniors Emily Lewis and Amy Coakley will also see plenty of action on defense. Quad-captain Sonja Johnson will be the starting stopperback and she will be pushed by sophomore Julie Struthers.

Moving on to the midfield, quad-captain Margaret Cunningham will start at center halfback and she will be backed up by sophomore Jessica Murphy. On the right side, senior Denise Delaney returns and she will be spelled from time to time by sophomore Daisy Lewis. Senior Shana MacConkey will patrol the left side and Coach Scanlon feels that sophomore Melissa Mandracchia will make an impact there as well.

Equally strong is the talented front line which is led by quad-captain Shalagh Murdock and junior Brittanny Boulanger on the wings and sophomore Jenny Gilpatric at center forward. Gilpatric made a big impact on the offense as a freshman last year and two new freshmen, Liz Kelley and Renee Bussell, are expected to do the same this fall. Sophomore Jessica Lanzo will also get playing time on the wings.

With a few days still left before Monday afternoon's season opener against Melrose, some juggling of the starting line-up is still possible, according to Scanlon.

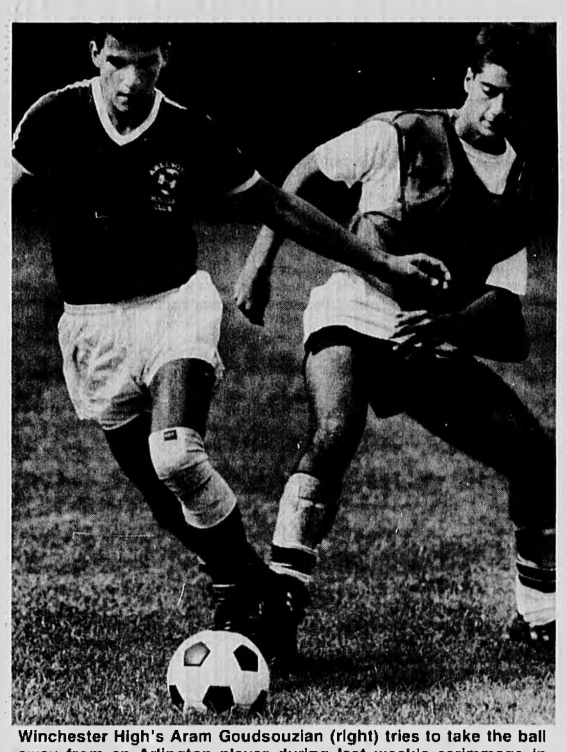

What about the competition? Belmont returns a lot of experienced and skilled players, but they don't have the numbers that the Sachems have. Defending league champs Wakefield will have to build from scratch after graduating 10 of its 11 starters. Coach Noel Higgins is on a leave of absence which should make the task even more difficult. Woburn and Lexington could surprise some people.

Scanlon feels non-league opponent Arlington could provide some tough competition and he welcomes it. With the additions of Melrose and Stoneham into the league, the competition isn't as strong as it used to be.

Bouley closes in on 300th win

Sachem coach enters 27th season

By AL DITULLIO
Special to the Star

When you look at successful programs, whether they be on a business standpoint or in the world of sports, you have to have the right people guiding your ship to make it successful.

Nowhere is that more clear than in the Winchester High boys' soccer program, which has risen and remained at the top of the Middlesex League under head coach Gene Bouley. Bouley, who is entering his 27th season of coaching Sachem soccer, needs only two victories to reach the magic number of 300, which eluded him when Winchester lost to Duxbury in the State semifinals last fall.

Coach Bouley has a tough task ahead of him this fall as he will have to rebuild a team which graduated all its starters after winning two Div. 2 state championships and three Div. 2 North sectional championships. Gone are All-American fullback Jack O'Callaghan and super-scorer Vandy French, as well as acrobatic goalkeeper Andy Shao. Bouley will have to build from scratch but, fortunately, there is never a shortage of soccer talent in a town like Winchester. This year's Sachem squad will have a few players with experience but the nucleus will come from last year's undefeated junior varsity team.

After being among the favorites in recent seasons, Winchester will certainly be the underdog this fall, as traditional rivals Wakefield, Lexington and Belmont will all have more experienced players. But with the talent of the newcomers and the no-nonsense coaching style of Bouley, the season looks like it will be an interesting one for the Sachems and their fans.

Winchester will face two of their softer opponents in their opening games, which means Coach Bouley could capture his 300th career victory in the home opener next Thursday against Watertown. The game will be played at Skillings Road field and will begin at 3:30 p.m. The Sachems open their season Monday afternoon in Melrose.

Welch captures first place in junior tourney

Winchester's Tracy Welch turned in another sterling performance on the links as she took first place in the New Seabury Junior Golf Classic.

Welch led from start to finish with a score of 68-76-76--220, five shots ahead of Holly Reynolds of Vermont in the girls division and one shot better than boys division champion, Michael Muehr of New Jersey.

Welch, 18, will be attending Dartmouth College this fall.

Bellino's wins softball crown

By GARY FLOYD
Special to the Star

For the fifth time in the last eight years, Bellino's Pizza is the best team in the Winchester Division A Men's Softball League. Bellino's Pizza claimed the honor with a 9-2 win over the Shield System, which completed their three-game sweep over Shield, as well as a six-game sweep through the play-offs.

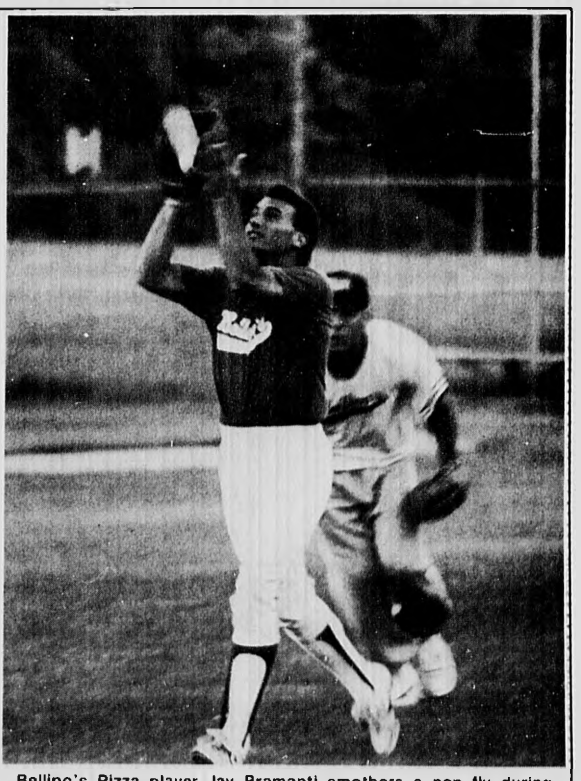

Taking nothing away from Lombardi Development's fine season, but the ease in which Bellino's Pizza careened through the play-offs leaves reason to believe that they would have finished with no less than a share of first place if they had consistantly fielded the same team as they had in the play-offs. If they were only able to convince these players that the regular season was more than a twenty-game tune-up for the play-offs, and hadn't had half their line-up resembling extras from the old M*A*S*H* series. Lombardi Development held their own against Bellino's Pizza this year, but who else was going to beat them?

The Shield System, who other than this series had a very successful play-offs, found themselves as straight men on Bellino's Pizza's championship bandwagon. After falling behind to the Shield System by three runs in the first game, in the top of the first, Bellino's Pizza never trailed in any inning throughout the series; and subtracting the Shield System's three-run innings — in games one and three — Bellino's Pizza held the Shield System to two runs in 19 innings.

Considering the difficulty in which the Shield System was having scoring, Bellino's Pizza practically put the game out of reach shortly after the Shield System's infielders had taken the field. Their cannon barrage in the opening stanza left Shield deflated and desperately having to accomplish what it hadn't to this point.

In the second and the fourth, the Shield System chipped away at Bellino's Pizza's lead, with a run in each inning; but in Bellino's Pizza's half of the fourth, the game started to slip away. With the first three men reaching on singles, Bellino's Pizza came up with two runs, and drove the Shield System back on the ropes.

In the next inning, Bellino's Pizza destroyed any doubt as to who the Winchester's A league champions would be, with three more runs. Final: Bellino's Pizza, 9-2.

NEWS NOTES

Foster program seeks participants

"Family Finders" is a joint foster care program of the Metrowest Youth Guidance Center and the Department of Social Services. The program seeks families with an interest in foster parenting. On July 1 "Family Finders expanded its services to cover the following cities and towns: Acton, Arlington, Ashland, Bedford, Belmont, Boxborough, Burlington, Cambridge, Carlisle, Concord, Dover, Framingham, Holliston, Hopkinton, Hudson, Lexington, Lincoln, Littleton, Marlborough, Maynard, Natick, Needham, Newton, Northborough, Sherborn, Somerville, Southborough, Stowe, Sudbury, Waltham, Watertown, Wayland, Wellesley, Westborough, Weston, Wilmington, Winchester, and Woburn.

Foster care is temporary care in a family environment for children ranging in age from infancy to 18 years. These children must leave their own families for a few weeks, a few months or even several years because of abuse, neglect, or parent incapacitation. Foster parents accept these youngsters into their homes and provide love and guidance of the quality they would give their own children and attend to their special needs and problems as well.

There is a severe shortage of foster homes in our communities. "Family Finders" is trying to increase the number of foster homes so that foster children can be placed on the basis of their needs and not be kept waiting. For additional information call Mary Duclos at (508)620-0010.

Tree planted at new home site

As part of its 100th Anniversary celebration, Greater Boston Real Estate Board donated an elm tree to each of the 54 cities and towns within its jurisdiction.

The elm tree gift is a symbol of the responsibility the board proudly assumes in the civic and business affairs of the Greater Boston Area.

Organizing this tree planting for the Town of Winchester was local realtor Judy Lynch, of Century 21 Winchester Realty. The tree was appropriately planted at the new subsidized home site on Cambridge Street.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

HOW CAN YOU KEEP TRACK OF IT ALL?

Looking at houses can become overwhelming for many prospective buyers. After a while, it can all run together, and you have trouble remembering which homes you liked a lot and which ones you didn't. When you're out looking, you can use a few tricks that good Realtors use to remember what we've seen.

Take a little spiral notebook and a pencil with you. Jot down the address of each house you see and make some notes on its major features. Write down one distinctive feature that will help you remember it. Maybe it had unusual mouldings in the diningroom, or perhaps there was a big apple tree in the back yard. If the house was of particular interest to you, put a big star on the top of the page to remind yourself that you'd like to see it again or even write an offer on it. If there are features for which you have a strong preference, or if you eliminate a house from consideration for any reason, be sure to tell the agent who is helping you. This way, the agent can show only the homes that meet your special needs, and save you a lot of time and effort in your search.

If you are considering a move, contact the professionals at The Bixby & Porter Company Realtors. Call us at 729-7000 or stop by our offices at 33 Thompson Street in Winchester.

Special to the Star

Another delicious noontime Sunday dinner is scheduled as a fund-raiser by the W.S.A. Recreation Committee on Sept. 24 in the Pond Room of the Jenks Senior Center. Promptly at 12:15 all will be ready for an enjoyable hour of feasting and socializing. The cost is $15.50 per person.

A delightful entertainment will follow the meal, featuring the popular pianist/organist, Ernest Benshimol, and Ralph Houseman, a well-known fun-magician. Houseman has the reputation of amazing his audience with a trunk full of unbelievable feats of magic.

After 30 years as a mechanical engineer working for Raytheon and other companies including Kurzweil Computer where he worked on a reading machine for the blind, he turned to the full-time pursuit of magic, a hobby he has been engaged in from his youth, always enjoying making magic. After following the very precise and demanding engineering career, practicing the art of prestidigitation as a profession of sheer fun. For over 25 years he has entertained audiences successfully throughout the New England area.

He has performed on WBZ-TV and toured the Northeast with an Army Variety Show. He has entertained widely at meetings, banquets, conventions, churches, schools, birthday parties, openings, picnics, holidays, and on other occasions where laughter is stimulated in fun and good taste.

To carry on the fall and winter Sunday dinners, it is necessary to have the cooperation and support of all seniors and their friends. Because of the town shortfall this year, we must make money enough to continue with publication of the monthly newsletters. Heretofore, the budget of the Council on Aging contributed $3,000 toward the $9,000 yearly cost, but the amount was deleted from their request from the town.

Good attendance is requisite to assure success of these fund-raising activities. Make your reservations now at the Jenks Senior Center Reception Desk. Call 721-7136. The event is open to all townspeople so bring your family and friends and enjoy good food and an afternoon of merriment. Door prizes will be awarded to the holders of lucky numbers.

By MARY P. KELLY
Special to the Star

The Jenks Center's Men's Discussion Group will meet for the first time this season on Wednesday, Sept. 13, at 10:40 a.m., in the Conference Room. This group has been meeting at the Jenks Center for nearly five years and is well-attended by 13 to 16 retired men who share their work and social experiences and enjoy freewheeling discussions which may range from auto mechanics to sports, politics to medicine.

There is no agenda and the discussions are very lively and a source of stimulating interest to the men who have been loyal attendees. New friendships have been formed and new avenues of interest explored.

The group will return to Wednesday meetings this fall and will meet on alternate Wednesdays at 10:40 a.m. If any retired men in the community are interested in learning more about this active senior discussion group, they are urged to call Stan Osgood, 729-0295, who is the coordinator of the Men's Discussion Group.

CARMELLA COLUCCI

Carmella Colucci, who retired in 1976 from Food Service at Winchester Hospital, has been a member of the Jenks Hospitality Committee since it began.

"I don't like to stay home," said Carmella, whose husband, Michael, still works part time. "What is there to do when you retire? I do my housework. I get the meals and then I'm out."

Carmella uses her food service experience assisting at Eating Together. She helps run parties and dances held at Jenks and was involved in the Soup and Sandwich progam when it was in operation.

"I love this place," said Carmella, who has taken square dancing, ballroom dancing, macrame and is a frequent participant on Jenks day and overnight trips. "I have only praise for the Jenks Senior Center.

A native Winchesterite who attended Winchester schools, Carmella, who has four children and two grandchildren, enjoys knitting and crocheting in her spare time.

CAR CARE CORNER
by Dan Hogan, Service Manager

It's time to prepare your car for the seasons ahead. Start under the hood and the first thing to check, of course, is the radiator and cooling system. First, take a look at the anti-freeze coolant. If it shows signs of discoloration and rusting or had debris floating, it must be drained and replaced. The cooling system must also be flushed to clean it of any rust or scale buildup. The best type of flush is a good high-pressure flushing. Make sure whoever does the flushing uses a good system to flush all and any harmful deposits that may be accumulating.
Modern equipment is used to service cars at PETER FULLER OLDS. Open 8-5. Tel. 924-8100. M/C, Visa & A/E honored. We have our own body shop. We are authorized to do all factory warranty work on Oldsmobiles. We will finish servicing your car at the promised time. Stop in at PETER FULLER OLDS, Watertown Sq. # Fees raised to ease shortfall

Residents, haulers face hike in fees at town's transfer station

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

A decision by selectmen to raise fees at the transfer station is just one step toward addressing the town's $775,000 shortfall.

In a 3-1 vote Monday night, selectmen voted to raise residential permits from $20 to $50 per year, and commercial hauler permits from $10 to $150 per year.

Selectman Robert Deering voted against the motion. Selectman William O'Leary was not present. The fee hike will raise an additional $195,000 in revenue for the town.

"This is not an easy process," said Selectmen Chairman Thomas Schmitt. Schmitt said the board generally agreed commercial haulers are presently "carrying more than their fair share" of the transfer station financial burden.

Deering, who has been against the fee hike all along, called the measure "regressive."

"It has nothing to do with usage," he added. Deering said he favored using funds from the stabilization fund, anticipated funds from the sale of the Woburn Loop and $80,000 in reversions from the Town Hall renovation project to make up the $775,000 shortfall.

"That way we're using available funds and aren't sacrificing any capital projects," said Deering.

Winchester's shortfall

Winchester was hit with a $775,000 revenue shortfall when word came from Gov. Michael Dukakis that cities and towns would not receive as much local aid as had been originally anticipated. In addition to local aid cuts, fewer reversions and less

Board gears up for money talks

By KAREN BUCKLEY

A majority of selectmen have recommended Town Meeting approve budget cuts, fee hikes and the use of available funds to make up for the town's current fiscal problems.

Winchester was hit with a $775,000 shortfall early this summer when Governor Michael Dukakis slapped cities and towns with severe local aid reductions. Throughout the summer, selectmen have met with other town officials to develop a solution to the problem.

Faced with mounting budgetary problems and the need for quick action to solve them, selectmen voted in August to call a Special Town Meeting on Sept. 18. This particular date was set in order to allow time to establish the tax rate and issue tax bills. A delay in tax bills could result in a cash flow problem for the town, according to Comptroller Joseph Bonner.

At their Monday night meeting, selectmen voted 3-1 on a proposal to be made to Town Meeting. Selectman Robert Deering voted against. Selectman William O'Leary was absent.

Selectmen Thomas Schmitt, Judith Muggia and Steve Powers voted in favor of a proposal to use the $80,000 to be transferred from the Town Hall Building account; $40,000 in municipal reductions; $60,000 in educational reductions; $400,000 from the stabilization fund earmarked for capital projects; and $195,000 in transfer station fees, for a total of $775,000. (See related story on education cuts, page 3A.)

Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer said the municipal reductions include cuts to the highway department budget for sidewalk repair work, reversions from general liability insurance that would have come back to the town at the end of fiscal year 1990, reduction of

Sports program has parents' support

Foundation will raise money to support athletics

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

It started with a group of a dozen or so parents, standing in the dark of the Lynch Elementary School parking lot after an emotionally draining School Committee meeting last spring — discussing the future of the sports program in Winchester's schools.

The Winchester Sports Foundation is the result of this discussion and subsequent meetings of the group over the summer. The foundation is designed to help supplement the sports department budget through fundraising activities and the establishment of an endowment fund.

An unusually tight budget last spring left the school committee with little recourse other than to impose a $35 user fee for athletic participation at the high school.

"Our thought is to present a check in June to the School Committee, earmarked for sports," said Foundation President Lucille Bourque in a telephone interview on Tuesday. In addition to easing fees for equipment and transportation, Foundation members hope to give support to relatively new sports such as lacrosse or sailing. Support may even help to establish an entirely new sport, said Bourque.

The Foundation will operate as a charitable corporation, with donations being tax deductible for those who support the group. In addition, the Foundation's proceeds will be tax-free.

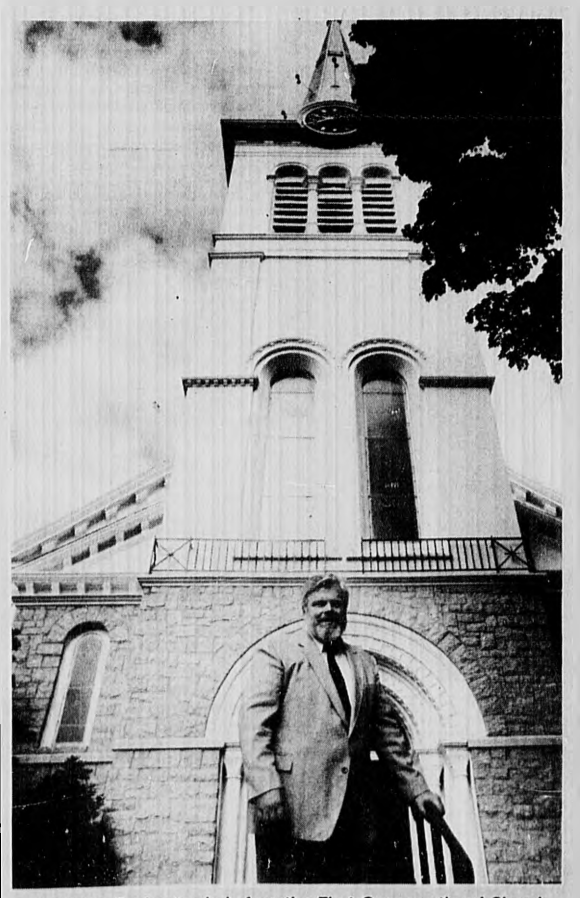

The Foundation's membership currently consists of the parents of scholastic athletes and Bourque says the representative membership currently runs the gammit of school sports.

Earlier this week, the Foundation sent out 90 postcards to residents they felt would be interested in attending a meeting to be held tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in the McCall Junior High School cafeteria. The public is also encouraged to attend.

At the meeting, the Foundation hopes to garner additional support

Rev. Davis remembers the times of joy as he heads to new parish in Attleboro

Star Assistant Editor

For Reverend Walter Davis, being pastor of the First Congregational Church in Winchester over the past 18 years has been like climbing a mountain.

"At times it's been hard to get a foothold, or even a finger or toehold, on the escarpment," says the 59-year-old Davis. Other times, Davis says, he has felt as though he was walking along a thin ridge, trying to keep the fine balance between two sides.

But the best of times, says Davis, was when he felt like he'd reached a steadying point — a plateau — from which the view is just beautiful.

Senior pastor for almost two decades, Davis has seen many hills and valleys during his ministry. When he first took the position as spiritual leader in 1971, the congregation admittedly was experiencing a rift within its membership.

"We needed to find a way as a congregation of respecting each other's differences while moving ahead in certain areas," said Davis. "We needed to update the way we related to the gospel to the world."

And Davis said the congregation found a way to ease that tension and encourage communication and direction, "a way to bring us together." The result of which has been a continuing community involvement and "energy" within Davis' congregation.

But now, Davis says he feels he has reached the point where it is time to move on and next week he will become the new pastor of a church in Attleboro. Married to his second wife Barbara since 1982, the Davises felt they both needed a change.

"The time had come to start off in a parish where we would both be 'new'," said Davis.

Davis said he felt too, that each congregation needs a periodic change in ministry, "a freshness and vigor and growth" that comes with a new pastor.

But as he looks back on his time in Winchester, Davis can't help but smile. "Climbing the mountain in Winchester has been filled with times of joy and pain alike ... the times of joy, those are the times to remember," says Davis.

Davis' choice to become a reverend was not made without great deliberation. Ministry was in a tight race with medicine and law as choices for his career when Davis was in high school. Before his enrollment as a freshman at Cornell University, Davis opted to study theology, a choice he has not regretted since.

After he completed his undergraduate degree, Davis moved on to graduate school at Yale University. "Apprentice" posts at congregations in New Jersey and California led to his accepting a senior post in Winchester.

"I had a strong bidding to be a part of God's work," said Davis. An "exciting and faithful pastor" of his youth in Washington D.C. was also instrumental in helping Davis chose the path of religion as a career.

And it just so happens the daughter of that pastor is his wife Barbara. She had six children from a prior marriage, and Davis had two children by a former marriage, which made for a full household.

Although Davis says the timing is right for his move, he admits it is hard to leave old friends. "We've shared a lot of living — friend to friend and pastor to parishoner," says Davis of his congregation. He says he's seen members of the youth group move on into marriage and starting families.

"It's a good time to go, but it's hard to leave," says Davis.

Community programs are Davis' strong point, and he lights up when

Rock Ave. residents wait for test results

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

With soil, water and vapor testing completed, North End Task Force members, the Board of Health and Charles Ferrari are now holding their breath awaiting the final word as to the safety of the area.

Additional testing began in June on the Rock Avenue site, a properly which is owned by Charles Ferrari. During the last decade neighbors have alleged there is hazardous waste buried beneath the surface of the soil that could prove dangerous to their health.

However, during the past three years, Ferrari has commissioned the consulting firm Hidell-Eyster Technical Services to investigate the landfill. But neighbors have steadfastly shook their heads at these "not dangerous" findings.

In response to the steady public outcry, the Board of Health hired an independent consultant this spring to negotiate additional testing with Ferrari's consultant.

The scope of this summer's testing was ultimately agreed upon by Dr. Sami Fam, the town's independent consultant from EA Engineering Science and Technology, and chemist John Hobell of Hidell-Eyster.

The last leg of the testing on the Rock Avenue site was performed Sept. 5 by Clean Harbors, a company under contract by Hidell-Eyster.

In a now controversial snafu, Health Director Joseph Tabbi failed to notify the neighbors of this last testing date. The North End Task Force officially lodged a complaint with the Board of Health on Monday, registering their "strong objection at the failure of the Board to live up to its agreed upon notification procedures."

When interviewed last week, Tabbi frankly admitted the error in notification was his own. He also noted however that during the one-day testing a representative from the town's consultant firm was on-site.

Although the testing project is running very close to schedule, the task force is not pleased.

Says neighbor John Morgan, "It seems it's a series of little mistakes." Morgan says the boring of holes to gain soil samples began a week earlier than scheduled and a specific boring near the MacConkey barn was 12 feet off the mark.

And as far as the Board of Health's involvement, neighbors are not pleased.

"They've drawn up a game plan and are following it," said Morgan in a recent interview, "but I'm not happy with the Winchester Board of Health at all."

Resident Peggy Schleicher agrees, citing the Board of Health's "foot-dragging" and "reactionary" actions instead of "a take-charge attitude."

"Nothing has gone according to schedule," says Schleicher, "the results so far have been late."

Results are expected to be made public 10 days prior to the scheduled Oct. 3 public hearing, according to Tabbi.

POLICE LOG

Sunday, Sept. 10
1 a.m.

Officer Kurt Ellis was stopped at a light at Main Street and Lake Avenue when he observed an older model green Dodge Dart pass his location without its headlights on.

The officer followed the car south on Main Street and stopped the vehicle at Main Street near Lincolnshire. The driver, an 18-year-old Cross Street man, could only produce his registration and told police his license was at home, according to police reports.

The officer noted the driver had glassy and bloodshot eyes and also had an odor of alcohol on his breath, said reports. The driver failed several field sobriety tests and was arrested for operating under the influence of alcohol, according to police.

2:01 a.m.

Officers Carl Fuller and Peter Hersee were dispatched to the Parkview Apartments for a report of a boyfriend/girlfriend dispute at the upper parking lot.

On arrival, the officers did not see an incident and the security guard told police when the two suspects heard the police were on their way, they fled the scene.

In the parking lot however, police discovered a red Chevy Caprice that was apparently abandoned. A computer check showed the car was stolen from Everett, according to police. The Everett Police Department was contacted and asked Winchester Police to dust for fingerprints. The owner of the car was notified by Everett Police Department.

12:04 p.m.

Officer Joseph O'Connor was parked at the corner of Main and Mt. Vernon streets observing traffic when he spotted a blue Chevy approaching the intersection. The officer recognized the driver as an Arlington Street man, who O'Connor had arrested for operating under the influence the previous week.

The officer believed the driver had had his license suspended for breath test refusal, said reports.

The driver was stopped on Shore Road and a computer check confirmed the suspect's license was suspended. Officer Philip Coss arrived for back-up. In the suspect's car, the officers discovered two bags, one in the front seat and one in the back seat, both containing beer, said police reports.

The driver was then placed under arrest for operating after suspension and being under 21 and transporting alcohol. The driver was brought to the station with assistance from Officer Thomas Groux.

Saturday, Sept. 9
10:08 p.m.

Officer James Cogan received a radio call from Officer Florindo Vozzella to assist with a disturbance at the corner of Main and Thompson streets. A Winchester juvenile had been asked to leave the area after shouting obscenities, said police reports.

After several requests by police, the youth did not leave the area and continued to yell obscenities. Due to the number of onlookers, police placed the young man under arrest for disturbing the peace. The youth was booked and held at the station until his mother picked him up, according to police reports.

Officer Philip Coss was called to a Wildwood Street address for a reported breaking and entering. On arrival the officer spoke with the owner of the house who pointed out two locations where an attempt to break into the house had been made.

The first area was on the northwest side of the house at the front door, said reports. According to police, the lock cyclinder had been knocked out and the alarm system had been damaged. The second location was the garage door lock and alarm switch, which had also been tampered with, said reports.

Police determined however, entry had not been gained into the residence. The attempted break occurred sometime between 4:30 and 7:15 p.m. on Sept. 9.

3:30 p.m.

Officer Philip Coss was dispatched to the Skillings Field area on a report of motorcycle racing. On arrival, the officer observed a Honda motorcycle racing across the field. The officer stopped the cyclist at the entrance of the field off of Summer Street.

The driver of the motorcycle, a juvenile, did not have a license to operate the vehicle. In addition, the vehicle was unregistered and uninsured. The juvenile was issued a citation.

Friday, Sept. 8
11:03 p.m.

Officer James Cogan and Lieutenant William Saraco were called to Lynn District Court to pick-up a 23-year-old Lynn resident, arrested on a default warrant. The officers transported the suspect to Woburn District Court.

Inspector Paul Deluca investigated a case of two personal checks issued from Winchester Cooperative bank that were reported stolen from a Woburn couple. The two checks, for $130 and $250, were found to have been deposited by a 24-year-old Reading woman.

When interviewed by police on Sept. 6, the woman said her roommate, who currently resides in Arlington, had given her the checks to pay a debt she owed her, according to police reports. The woman told police she and her roommate had gone to a BayBank in Woburn where she filled out the first check for $130 and deposited it with a cash return. The second check was cashed later for the amount of $250.

A complaint was issued against the woman for forgery, uttering (circulating a forgery) and receiving stolen property, said reports. The case is under further investigation.

School budget to be reduced by $60,000

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Asked by town officials to reduce the school department budget by $60,000, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Charles Mitsakos did just that. The new budget, which now totals $13,463,751, was presented to the School Committee minus $60,000 for materials and supplies or the "other expenses" category.

The Board of Selectmen see a solution to the current fiscal problem through hiked fees at the transfer station, funds transferred from the Town Hall Building account, funds from the stabilization account earmarked for capital projects and cuts totalling $100,000 from the school department and other municipal departments combined. However, this recommendation must be approved by Town Meeting. (See related story page 1A).

The mid-summer's nightmare of local aid reductions imposed by Governor Dukakis left Winchester with a $775,000 shortfall in revenue. As tax bill time approaches, town officials have scrambled for financial solutions to recommend to a Special Town Meeting called for Sept. 18.

At the Sept. 12 School Committee meeting, Mitsakos reiterated discussion that took place at a previous meeting, that the binding contractual agreements entered into by the school department with each school year restrict cuts from any category other than "other expenses."

"This is the one place of flexibility," said Mitsakos. He also noted that the school department had "held back (spending from this account) in anticipation (of the shortfall)."

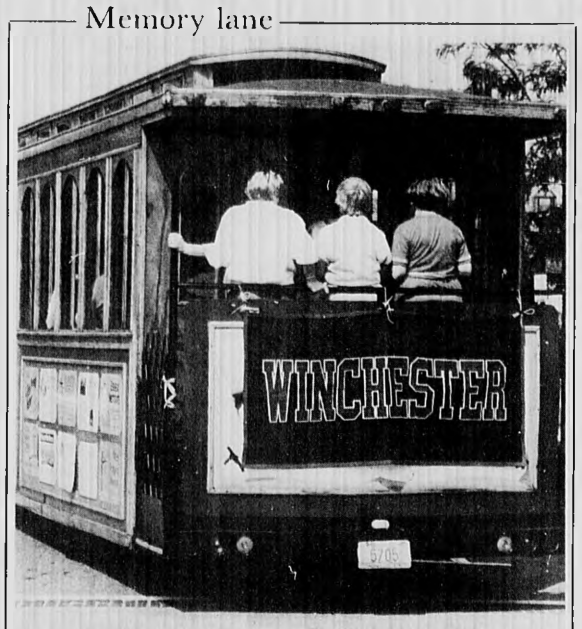

Said School Committee Chairman Edward O'Connell, "What has been proposed from the Board of Selectmen's table ($60,000 cut in the school department budget) is very fair.

"We've been painted into this particular corner by the state," added O'Connell.

After Town Meeting has voted on the reduced budget, the School Committee will be able to vote again on the ratified version of the school budget. Town Meeting sets a figure for the School Committee to spend. However, it is the School Committee that decides how that money is spent.

The committee's recommendations will be the topic of further discussion at the Special Town Meeting Sept. 18.

Memory lane

Board hikes fees at transfer station

money generated from investments for the town also contributed to the town's shortfall.

The fees implemented by selectmen go into effect Jan. 1, 1990. According to the board's vote, all permit holders will be informed of an abatement system to provide an option for those who cannot afford the increased fee. Selectmen also asked that the Town Manager prepare a proposal for a fee-based system at the transfer station to be presented to selectmen no later than May 1, 1990. Selectmen indicated they would consider and vote on such a proposal by July 1, 1990. Any rates set by July 1, 1990 would be effective Jan. 1, 1991.

Through a fee-based system, residents would pay for the amount of trash they dumped rather than a set fee. In this way, a family of two would not be paying as much as a family of six since a family of six generates more trash.

In addition to the increase in permit fees, dumping of building debris, brush and limbs, mixed debris and metals will now cost haulers $150 per ton, as opposed to the current $90 per ton charge. Selectmen indicated the fee hike for these materials is in an effort to discourage haulers from bringing them to Winchester. Instead, the board hopes haulers will bring such debris to the Cambridge facility, where it costs $110 per ton to dump.

Fees for compost ($30 per ton) and commercial and residential trash ($35 per ton) will remain the same.

Enforcement

Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer said enforcement at the transfer station will be increased so that people without permits will not be allowed to use the facility. Many of the residents and commercial haulers at last week's public hearing on transfer station fees voiced concern about out-of-town people using Winchester's transfer station to dump their trash.

The new permits will be sold at the transfer station starting Dec. 1, and all residents will be mailed application forms. Stickers will be affixed to vehicles when the permits are bought to further assist in enforcement. "We will not allow the current process of not requiring (permit holders) to affix the stickers to their car," said Maurer. "There will be more rigid enforcement."

Resident's plea

Prior to the board's vote, resident Michael Saraco, vice-chairman of the Winchester Taxpayers' Association, urged selectmen not to raise the fees.

Saraco said he had received a number of calls from residents who were upset about the potential fee increase. Saraco said raising fees such as those at the transfer station would make Winchester unaffordable for some residents. "Is that what this board wants?" asked Saraco.

"I'm telling you, it's a form of tax, not a user fee," said Saraco.

"While you may hear from people who don't want a $30 additional transfer fee, I hear from people who don't want additional (budget) cuts," said Schmitt.

Chairman of the Alliance for Winchester's Future Lawrence Smith urged selectmen to implement the fees only as an emergency measure. "These are difficult times. This is a unique situation we're facing," he said.

"I agree this is not an easy solution," said Smith. "But I would sincerely urge you to set forward a real limitation (on the amount of time these fees will be in affect)," he added.

No choice

"At this point, I don't think we have any other solution," said Selectman Steve Powers. "Maybe this is something that should have been looked at several years ago." Powers also said if fees were not raised and Winchester eventually did away with the transfer station, the town could bring in a trash removal service such as Brown and Ferris Industries (BFI).

However, he added, "Once BFI has a hold of the Town of Winchester, it can raise the rates at any time and we have no say."

Selectman Judith Muggia said she was in favor of a long-range policy.

"I'm interested in seeing this set of decisions being the first step toward seeing the whole transfer station on an enterprise system," said Muggia. Through an enterprise system, fees charged would cover the total cost of operating the facility. Muggia also suggested the town could institute a credit system for recyclers.

"While the solution we've come to may not look good, we're in two places: between a rock and a hard place," she added.

Restoration of Our Common is needed

by Dael Chase
Staff writer

The brilliance of Labor Day was incomparable, flashing off the gold rooster atop the Congregational Church above the Common, as the local folk ever sought a restful spot of shade.

The Common in Our Town presents an ever-changing "tableau vivant" of locals enjoying themselves — and Labor Day was no exception.

In the center of the Common, Vernon Brennan and Ms. Elliot Treibeck were involved in a lively conversation about town affairs and down-wide Jerry Brennan kept tabs on "Peaches" his Poodle and Ms. Treibeck's Welsh Corgi, "Charlie".

Up close to Church Street, Assessor Charlie Shannon and his wife Dorothy were relaxing on a bench, after an early jogging session, with a mid-morning coffee.

Toward Waterfield Road, Violet Mavaravages strode purposefully toward roadblocks to get a holiday schedule for the train — while Reverend Jack Bishop strolled through dappled shade with his morning paper towards his ear.

First purchased as a public space in 1794, nothing was really done to improve the Common until 1874. At that time pieces were cut off the south and east ends to provide access to the new Boston and Lowell railroad depot.

At the same time, our Board of Selectmen "caused a bandstand to be built on the Common, at the expense of $182.11, as incentive to seek pleasant and wholesome amusement at home."

By 1910, community pride ultimately had seen the Common developed into a beautiful public garden with an elaborate fountain (the bandstand has since burned down), well-clipped lawns, trees interplanted between colorful flowerbeds — and the huge town flagpole.

Community pride seems to have reserved itself since 1910 — and it was a jarring note to find all trash barrels filled and overflowing onto the ground on Labor Day.

The Common itself, although well groomed and green, could use some work. There is no central point of interest anymore — and judicious new plantings of trees and some simple beds of color could add so much to this basically unloved place.

In 1884, when town appropriations for the Common ran short, private subscription raised enough to complete the work of the Committee On The Common for that year.

As Winchester Common was meant to gather us in as a community, it would seem appropriate now, with all the horticultural skill, the architectural talent and civic zeal existing here in town, that we ourselves might personally give of time, talent, labor or funds to help restore this lovely civic asset.

Between the Lines:

Members of the Winton Club are gearing up for their annual show which returns to Town Hall this year. The show, which for many years has been produced in the Town Hall auditorium, was moved to McCall Junior High School during Town Hall reconstruction. Performances are tentatively set for Jan. 30 to Feb. 2.

The Town Hall Building Committee (THBC) is putting an article in the Fall Town Meeting warrant asking that the committee be disbanded. The THBC was formed in 1986 to oversee the renovation of the building. Now that the project is near completion, save modifications to the Town Clerk's office, some furniture punch list items, parking lot lights and paving and completion of the auditorium stage and stairs. Once these projects have been finished, the THBC anticipated returning approximately $80,000 to the town.

New Ambrose Elementary School Principal Richard Rogers officially reports for duty recently. Chosen from a field of 40 applicants, Rogers was formerly a third-grade teacher in the Brookline school system and through an extensive selection process was found to be the most qualified for the Winchester job.

Canada Geese Update: Health Director Joseph Tabbi has undertaken a fact-finding mission to determine if other suburban towns have imposed regulations against feeding the troublesome birds. Thus far, Tabbi reported at Monday's Board of Health meeting that Belmont, Wellesley and other bird-plagued towns have not instituted "do not feed" regulations just "do not feed" signage.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Free expression is sacred right, says resident

TO THE EDITOR:

Recently, a professor in China was sentenced to life in prison for splattering paint on a picture of Chairman Mao. Desecrating a revered national symbol gets harsh punishment in a totalitarian state.

But what happened to all the clamor about protecting our national symbol, the United States flag, from desecration? Did cooler heads prevail? Did it finally occur to a few politicians that our far-from-libertine Supreme Court may have looked at the issue with some care?

I pray that our political elite will start leading instead of pandering to popular sentiment. The crushing of the student movement in China and the crackdown now being carried out there should remind all Americans that nothing, even "old glory," is more sacred to a free society than freedom of expression.

Recycling year activities begin

TO THE EDITOR:

We are writing you and all citizens of Winchester because of the special, town-wide recycling effort which began this past spring with a Town Meeting warrant article declaring 1989-90 as a year "Winchester Recycles". Some of you may have visited the recycling booth on Town Day and learned more about recycling or have children who participated in the Town Day bicycle, tricycle, buggy parade which had recycling as its theme. Others of you are probably members of oganizations who will bring recycling programs before the town.

The goals of such a designation as "Winchester Recycles" are two-fold: educational and financial. First, throughout the year, many organizations in town will present informational programs concerning the recycling of waste products. Contact Lisa Cronan of the Winchester League of Women Voters if your organization would like to join this program (729-1006). Recycling can and should be a lifelong habit. These organizations will be encouraging all of us to begin, continue and expand our recycling efforts.

Recycling benefits our environment by reducing demand for new raw materials. It can also benefit our budgets by reduction of disposal costs. The second goal of "Winchester Recycles" is a financial one. We want to see Winchester spend less money trucking our waste to NESWC to be incinerated. Every ton of material not taken for incineration saves spending $67. Recycling our newspapers, magazines, junk mail (no envelopes with cellophane, please), office paper, computer paper, paperback books, glass, metal, clothing and yard waste, by placing these items in the appropriate bins at the Winchester Recycling and Disposal Facility effects a reduction in our town's budget for waste disposal.

The Waste Study Committee urges all town citizens, businesses, commercial waste haulers, churches, medical facilities, and town departments to place recycling high on your agendas. Doing so will leave more dollars in our town's budget for other purposes. The Waste Study Committee hopes the town can realize a reduction of $100,000 in our disposal budget this year because of recycling. For the months January through July 1989 (for recycling of glass and paper) we have avoided spending $35,000 (That's 523 tons not trucked to NESWC). For more information on recycling opportunities, stay alert during this League of Women Voters in cooperation with local businesses has published a booklet entitled "Winchester Recycles! A Citizen's Guide to Recycling." Copies are available at the Board of Health, Henderson's and Davis Fine Foods. Together our town can recycle much of our waste.

Resident responds to Star letter

TO THE EDITOR:

I am writing to respond to a letter by Betsy Abbott-Kristl (The Star, Aug. 31) criticizing my comments on abortion, published in the letters section of The Star on Aug. 24. The unintended irony in Ms. Abbott-Kristl's piece is not easy to miss. In the same letter in which she denounces others who "distort and misrepresent the facts," Ms. Abbott-Kristl is twice guilty of the most glaring of inaccuracies. She objects to my presentation of facts, collected and published by the Mass. Department of Health, on the number of prior abortions had by those obtaining an abortion in Brookline in 1987. The facts, as I stated, are these: 6.1 percent had already had three abortions or more, 10.6 percent had already had two abortions, 28.3 percent had already had one abortion. That these numbers do not overlap or intersect, I thought was clear when I noted that 45 percent of those obtaining an abortion had been there before.

Ms. Abbott-Kristl's point, I believe, is that I only show the negative side, the number who have already had an abortion. She goes on to show the positive side, those obtaining an abortion who have never had an abortion before. Her argument is puzzling: if abortion is the morally neutral surgical procedure that "pro-choicers" claim, one should experience no shame in having had any number of abortions nor take any pride in never having had one at all.

This aside, the drubbing math takes in this instance is something rare to be seen. In trying to show the positive side of the picture, Ms. Abbott-Kristl subtracts the Department of Health's figures from a total of one hundred and claims that "77.7 percent of women obtaining abortions in Brookline in 1987 had never had an abortion before." How Ms. Abbott-Kristl subtracted 45 from 100 and came up with 77.7 is something I can't explain. Even if she only subtracted the number of those who had just had 1 prior abortion (28.3 percent) she couldn't have come up with this figure. As "distortion" and "misrepresentation" usually cover themselves in subtlety, I assume we can chalk up Ms. Abbott-Kristl's effors to terrible math and not to type of deliberate "distortion" she's trying to alert us to.

Ms. Abbott—Kristl further says that I "should have emphasized that these figures represent the city of Brookline only." Prior to quoting the Brookline statistics I did mention the national figure for repeat abortions which is 43 percent, consistent with the Brookline figure of 45 percent. I should point out that it is not easy to discuss abortion in Massachusetts and ignore the town of Brookline. Brookline if Massachusetts' abortion capital. The number of children put to death each year by abortion in that town (20,234 in 1987; 21,005 in 1988) is equal to the number of residents living in Winchester (20,763 in the 1985 census). The routine manner in which human life is snuffed out in its earliest stages there is, I think, appalling to anyone of average sensibility.

Finally, Ms. Abbott-Kristl points out that one does not go about "attaining" an abortion, which is what The Star had me saying; one "obtains" an abortion. She is correct. However, this was a typographical error on The Star's part; my letter to The Star used the word "obtaining". As I am certain that The Star's staff was busily working under dealine pressure, and as the meaning was clear from the context, I saw no reason to complain.

Bares questions need for weapons

TO THE EDITOR:

I might be wrong and living in another (better or more naive) world. But when I read that the Winchester Police need "more fire power," I could not refrain from thinking again that Winchester is out of control.

What is out of control: the wave of violent criminality that is visible pervading the Town (and surroundings) or the skills of the people supposedly administering it?

There is no doubt that one of the main duties of a chief of police is to be ready and to prevent criminal acts from happening. No dispute there. But, excuse me for being so woefully misinformed, when is the last time that one or more of our policemen had to fire all the six shots of his/her revolver, in a fierce gun bettle with the extremely bad guys populating the Winchester corral?

I believe that in Winchester (and elsewhere) we have lost the ability of deciding on what has priority over other (less important) things. With all due respect for our friends of the C. Columbus club, I would have seen more urgent, in the present state of fiscal crisis, to donate the $1,000 to, for instance, pay for the recently adjusted wages of our firemen. Yes, the police need more fire power, but, putting the priorities in proper order, it can wait. As well as the expenditure of funds to train the policemen in the use of the additional fire power. Funds which could be, for instance, used to pay for part of the cost of the transfer station.

Am I totally wrong? Too naive? Too simplistic? Out of touch with reality? No, I do not think so. I have learned that in the "real life" (the life the most of us have to live every day, which is different from the life which our public servants live), if we spend more of what we earn and of what we can borrow, we will eventually lose our house and our livelihood. No two ways about it. The Town will be one of the first to come after us and seize our land, our properties if we owe taxes. So the priority of most of us normal individuals, is not to spend beyond our means. Why is this principle out of favor in our administrations? What am I missing?

This week in history

40 years ago: 1949

30 years ago: 1959

Flames swept through the Beggs and Cobb building on Swanton Street on Thursday morning aided by a brisk wind. Local firefighters were assisted by all the auxilliary force who were available as well as off-duty firefighters from surrounding towns.

The 83-year-old leather firm had been an integral part of Winchester until it was sold in December 1957 to a Swampscott resident and subsequently closed down. Workmen had been tearing down parts of the building and were working inside the main shop when the fire broke out.

25 years ago: 1964

Nearly a third of Winchester's 10,974 registerd voters turned out at the polls as 3,390 votes were cast in the 1964 state primary election. There was a larger number of Democratic votes recorded than Republican, reflecting the many primary contests in the Democratic Party and the almost no-contest Republican Party slate.

The five-man fight for Democratic nomination for governor included; Governor Endicott Peabody, Francis X. Bellotti, Pasquale Caggiano, John J. Droney and write-in candidate John Volpe.

The Jimmy Fund chicken cook-out at VFW headquarters was a success last Saturday, and a follow-up this week was a special "Kiddies' Show" with a reported appearance from TV children's favorite Major Mudd.

The Board of Trustees of the Winchester Public Library had announced it would hold a special open house in the main lobby of the library for the purpose of viewing architect's plans for the proposed new addition to the library.

Restoration of Our Common is needed

BY DAN CHARD
Star Editor

The brilliance of Labor Day was unconquerable, flashing off the gold roof atop the Congregational Church above the Common, as the local folk ever sought a restful spot of shade.

The Common in Our Town presents an ever-changing "tableau vivant" of locals enjoying themselves — and Labor Day was no exception.

In the center of the Common, Vernon Brennan and Ms. Elliot Treibeck were involved in a lively conversation about town affairs and dogs. While Jerry Brennan kept tabs on Treibeck's his Poodle and Ms. Treibeck's Welsh Corgi, Charlotte.

Up closer to Church Street, Assessor Charlie Shannon and his wife Dorothy were relaxing on a bench, after an early jogging session, with a mid-morning coffee.

Toward Waterfield Road, Violet Mavrogordato strode purposefully toward Craddock's to get a holiday schedule for the train — while Reverend Jack Bishop strolled through dappled shade with his morning paper towards his car.

First purchased as a public space in 1767, nothing was really done to improve the Common until 1874. At that time pieces were cut off the south and east ends to provide access to the new Boston and Lowell railroad depot.

At the same time, our Board of Selectmen "caused a bandstand to be built on the Common, at the expense of $182.11, as incentive to seek pleasant and wholesome amusement at home."

By 1910, community pride ultimately had seen the Common developed into a beautiful public garden with an elaborate fountain (the bandstand has since burned down), well-clipped lawns, trees interplanted between colorful flowerbeds — and the huge town flagpole.

Community pride seems to have reserved itself since 1910 — and it was a jarring note to find all trash barrels filled and overflowing onto the ground on Labor Day.

The Common itself, although well groomed and green, could use some work. There is no central point of interest anymore — and judicious new plantings of trees and some simple beds of color could add so much to this basically unloved place.

In 1884, when town appropriations for the Common ran short, private subscription raised enough to complete the work of the Committee On The Common for that year.

As Winchester Common was meant to gather us in as a community, it would seem appropriate now, with all the horticultural skill, the architectural talent and civic zeal existing here in town, that we ourselves might personally give of time, talent, labor or funds to help restore this lovely civic asset.

Between the Lines:

Members of the Winton Club are gearing up for their annual show which returns to Town Hall this year. The show, which for many years has been produced in the Town Hall auditorium, was moved to McCall Junior High School during Town Hall reconstruction. Performances are tentatively set for Jan. 30 to Feb. 3.

The Town Hall Building Committee (THBC) is putting an article in the Fall Town Meeting warrant asking that the committee be disbanded. The THBC was formed in 1986 to oversee the renovation of the building. Now that the project is near completion, save modifications to the Town Clerk's office, some furniture punch list items, parking lot lights and paving and completion of the auditorium stage and stairs. Once these projects have been finished, the THBC anticipated returning approximately $80,000 to the town.

New Ambrose Elementary School Principal Richard Rogers officially reports for duty recently. Chosen from a field of 40 applicants, Rogers was formerly a third-grade teacher in the Brookline school system and through an extensive selection process was found to be the most qualified for the Winchester job.

Canada Geese Update: Health Director Joseph Tabbi has undertaken a fact-finding mission to determine if other suburban towns have imposed regulations against feeding the troublesome birds. Thus far, Tabbi reported at Monday's Board of Health meeting that Belmont, Wellesley and other bird-plagued towns have not instituted "do not feed" regulations, just "do not feed" signage.

Finally, Ms. Abbott-Kristl points out that one does not go about "attaining" an abortion, which is what The Star had me saying; one "obtains" an abortion. She is correct. However, this was a typographical error on The Star's part; my letter to The Star used the word "obtaining". As I am certain that The Star's staff was busily working under dealine pressure, and as the meaning was clear from the context, I saw no reason to complain.

Bares questions need for weapons

TO THE EDITOR:

I might be wrong and living in another (better or more naive) world. But when I read that the Winchester Police need "more fire power," I could not refrain from thinking again that Winchester is out of control.

What is out of control: the wave of violent criminality that is visible pervading the Town (and surroundings) or the skills of the people supposedly administering it?

There is no doubt that one of the main duties of a chief of police is to be ready and to prevent criminal acts from happening. No dispute there. But, excuse me for being so woefully misinformed, when is the last time that one or more of our policemen had to fire all the six shots of his/her revolver, in a fierce gun bettle with the extremely bad guys populating the Winchester corral?

I believe that in Winchester (and elsewhere) we have lost the ability of deciding on what has priority over other (less important) things. With all due respect for our friends of the C. Columbus club, I would have seen more urgent, in the present state of fiscal crisis, to donate the $1,000 to, for instance, pay for the recently adjusted wages of our firemen. Yes, the police need more fire power, but, putting the priorities in proper order, it can wait. As well as the expenditure of funds to train the policemen in the use of the additional fire power. Funds which could be, for instance, used to pay for part of the cost of the transfer station.

Am I totally wrong? Too naive? Too simplistic? Out of touch with reality? No, I do not think so. I have learned that in the "real life" (the life the most of us have to live every day, which is different from the life which our public servants live), if we spend more of what we earn and of what we can borrow, we will eventually lose our house and our livelihood. No two ways about it. The Town will be one of the first to come after us and seize our land, our properties if we owe taxes. So the priority of most of us normal individuals, is not to spend beyond our means. Why is this principle out of favor in our administrations? What am I missing?

This week in history

40 years ago: 1949

30 years ago: 1959

Flames swept through the Beggs and Cobb building on Swanton Street on Thursday morning aided by a brisk wind. Local firefighters were assisted by all the auxilliary force who were available as well as off-duty firefighters from surrounding towns.

The 83-year-old leather firm had been an integral part of Winchester until it was sold in December 1957 to a Swampscott resident and subsequently closed down. Workmen had been tearing down parts of the building and were working inside the main shop when the fire broke out.

25 years ago: 1964

Nearly a third of Winchester's 10,974 registerd voters turned out at the polls as 3,390 votes were cast in the 1964 state primary election. There was a larger number of Democratic votes recorded than Republican, reflecting the many primary contests in the Democratic Party and the almost no-contest Republican Party slate.

The five-man fight for Democratic nomination for governor included; Governor Endicott Peabody, Francis X. Bellotti, Pasquale Caggiano, John J. Droney and write-in candidate John Volpe.

The Jimmy Fund chicken cook-out at VFW headquarters was a success last Saturday, and a follow-up this week was a special "Kiddies' Show" with a reported appearance from TV children's favorite Major Mudd.

The Board of Trustees of the Winchester Public Library had announced it would hold a special open house in the main lobby of the library for the purpose of viewing architect's plans for the proposed new addition to the library.

WINCHESTER PAST AND PRESENT

Fiscal woes are part of Winchester's history

By ELLEN KNIGHT
Special to the Star

Budget problems have led recently to the calling of a Special Town Meeting, not the first time fiscal difficulties have led to such a measure. Revenue problems have long been part of the town's history, whether in raising or spending the money, whether in times when funds are short or even when there is some extra.

One of the bitterest controversies that ever raged in this community over money concerned the question of "Surplus Revenue" (the story of which is condensed as follows from the Woburn Journal of June 1, 1888).

In 1837, when Winchester was still part of Woburn, a surplus having accumulated in the national treasury, Congress divided the money among the states. Massachusetts gave its share to the towns. At the April 1837 Town Meeting, Woburn voted to accept the money and use it "in such way as is for the interest of the town."

Rarely has such bitter strife beset a community over the question of what to do with money, of what was in the best interest of the town. Two camps arose, one in favor of a division of the money among the inhabitants and the other determined to get the money undivided into the town treasury. The former was scorned as the "codfish and cowhide boot party" and the other denounced as the "silk stocking and morocco boot party." Threats and abusive language passed between the camps. Plots were laid privately and meetings held publicly to try to resolve the matter.

The original vote, in the May 1837 Town Meeting, was to divide the money equally among the inhabitants of the town. But soon another meeting was held at which this vote was rescinded.

Next year at Town Meeting an article was introduced to see if the town would take the money to pay the town debt, but it was defeated. Then another meeting was called to propose a vote to use money to purchase a poor house, also voted down. Next year the proposal was to build a school, also defeated.

The voting was anything but calm and polite. "Nearly every vote was determined by 'polling the common' and tellers had to go up and down the line to count the voters. While this was going on loud clamoring and hooting filled the air. Then a rush back to the meeting, shuffling and knocking off hats, as they returned." During discussion of the articles "shoutings and attempts to drown the voices of the speakers" arose.

Once again, the divisionists gained the upper hand. In March 1839, a vote passed to divide the money equally among the people and to raise a committee of three to procure the money from the state. The vote was not received with equanimity.

"Pandemonium was let loose. Fists and canes were flourished in the vestry of the Baptist meeting house where the meeting was held ... Charles Carter of North Woburn, pale and trembling with rage, hostile to Jason (Richardson, leader of the division camp and member of the new committee) and his plans, denounced him as a villain and imposter, unfit to be trusted with a penny-whistle, and that before the Surplus Revenue should be divided heaven and hell should be turned over.

"Jason hurled back the charges with words that blistered Carter's heart as if covered with coals in the fire. He told him that every man and woman in town spurned his vile carcass. Others took part in the wrangling, while turmoil and passion ruled the hour."

The meeting continued with votes to divide the money according to the 1837 census, then to take a new census, then not to take a new census until the money had been collected, then finally to dissolve the meeting, "which took place with such noise and confusion as to disgust all sensible men."

In a later Town Meeting discussion about the collection of the money, "Dr. Augustus Plympton told Jason he was irresponsible and insane, and should be locked up in the town pound with wild cattle. Jason replied with telling vehemence and sarcasm, while his friends cheered him on. He told the Doctor if he wanted to kill him a dose of his quack medicine would be sure to do it."

The money was collected, and the new census was taken, but the money was not divided — the war was not over. The group that wanted the money put into the treasury obtained a Supreme Court injunction prohibiting the committee from dividing the money. Though the committee had the money and was of a single mind to disperse it among the inhabitants, it was powerless to do anything.

The "silk-stocking party" persisted in their endeavors to get the money out of the hands of the committee. In April 1840 they tried to rescind the division vote and pass an article to appropriate the funds to build school or meeting houses. Their efforts failed. In a June meeting, they brought up articles to spend the money on new engines or a new hearse, both dismissed.

At a later June meeting more suggestions, including using the money for schools or tombs, were also dismissed. But it was voted that the Treasurer be authorized to take the money for town expenses. The Treasurer demanded the money from the committee, and it was paid over. It was never divided among the inhabitants. "Thus ended a conflict of action and opinion that for four years and 17 town meetings had kept the town excited and divided with a degree of intensity never before or since approached (1888)."

Mrs. Jonah was born on May 14, 1905 in DeBert, Nova Scotia, the daughter of the late Alonzo and Katherine McCulloch.

After attending the local schools she studied voice and piano at the Truro Academy. Although Mrs. Jonah was awarded a music scholarship to McGill University, she decided to continue her education at the Boston Conservatory of Music and came to this country at the age of 20.

Shortly thereafter, she began singing professionally, touring the east coast with a musical group, performing weekly on WEEI- Radio for many years and serving as a soloist at the Arlington Street Church in Boston.

Upon her marriage in 1934 to Hazen Johan, also of Nova Scotia, they settled in Winchester. She continued to pursue her artistic interests by painting and short-story writing. Following her husband's death in 1966, she moved first to Sunapee and then to New London where she resided at Bittersweet for many years until her health required a move to Woodlawn Nursing Home in Newport.

She leaves a son, William Jonah and grandson, Hazen Jonah, of New London and a daughter Adele Warner of Georges Mills. Burial will be in DeBert, Nova Scotia.

and membership as well as appoint a board of directors.

In a presentation to the School Committee on Tuesday, Bourque outlined the goals and intentions of the Foundation. A "Founders' Fund" would be set up to collect private and corporate donations. Funds collected would be used as a base, with only the interest from the account being used each year.

"Every year (the fund) would build and build ... to create a good foundation," said Bourque.

Other fundraising activities will hopefully draw immediate cash such as a "Penny Drive" to be held on Oct. 14 and 28.

"The sports program is important to Winchester. It has been and we hope that it always will be," said Bourque.

School Committee Chairman Edward O'Connell urged Foundation members to understand from the outset what their role will be. He noted that however successful and generous the Foundation may be, it "cannot interject into the policy-making role of the School Committee" insofar as choosing where the donated money will be spent within the sports department.

With that point agreed upon, School Committee members accepted the intention of the Sports Foundation and promised their support in its efforts.

The Winchester Sports Foundation's board consists of: Lucille Bourque, president; Rebecca Murphy, vice-president; Marty Fuller, secretary and Kevin Keefe, treasurer.

Initial fundraising plans are being spearheaded by Phil Vultaggio, Cec Law, Marti Hood, Lorraine Tozza, Sheryl Oliver, Linda Keefe, Tom O'Grady, Jane d'Entremont, Len Nolan, Jim Maconochie and Linda Sullivan.

overtime hours for the assessors, engineers and town clerk's offices and cuts to the recreation department budget.

Reversions from the Town Hall Building account are a result of excess funds previously earmarked for the project.

The recommendation also includes setting aside a number of capital projects as well. Department of Public Works (DPW) vehicles, police vehicles, park department and school asbestos removal make up $255,700 of that figure. According to Maurer, the remaining $144,300 will come from two water projects approved in 1987 and 1988 on Swan Road and Main Street.

Selectmen also said they will provide Town Meeting members with other possible options they considered to allow for a full, open discussion of all possibilities.

"These might be our recommendations, but I think we owe it to Town Meeting to provide them with all the options," said Schmitt.

Town Meeting begins Monday, Sept. 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Hall auditorium

Anti-Diet Weight Loss
The New Alternative

SUFFERING IS OPTIONAL. If you nave tried dieting in the past and failed, you are not alone. For many, diet is part of the problem, not it s solution.

Thin people don't want to eat more than they should. So how come you do? When you learn to think about food the way thin people do, then you will eat casually and controllably, just as they do.

Based on successful work with overeaters in therapy, this unique, ten-week program was developed to help healthy people to finally control their eating without the need for discipline and the constant struggle against temptation.

WHY WAIT?
This small-class experience is not another diet or food supplement program, but a new opportunity for a permanent change in your relationship with food and your body. You can be happy with both, now.

PREVIEW: To give you a full description of this effective solution to over-eating, we offer a full, two-hour preview at our offices. Admission is $10. Call early to reserve your place, as seating is extremely limited.

Davis bids farewell

speaking of the drop-in center for youths, the Forum program for kids, ministries for the hungry and homeless, support groups for parents under stress, a family ministry and a peace ministry that works with Amnesty International. Many of these are programs that have been developed under Davis' guidance and care.

The congregation has also given to the Church as a whole, nine ordained reverends, who apprenticed at the Winchester church. Davis describes the congregation as "generative" and striving "to move ahead in unity."

But Davis also expresses great concern over the lack of affordable housing in Winchester. He said he notices a "cocooning" in Winchester, as the community envelopes itself without bridging out to understand and help other people. The elderly and single parents especially, "need a safe place to be."

Davis understands and encourages the various opinions and beliefs of his congregation on these tough community issues. "People must make decisions, not just on the basis of their feelings that day, but they must act on their faith, not just ideology," says Davis.

Davis takes his own creed to heart as well, seeking out ways to help — while satiating his love of travel. Through the years, he has helped set up ecumenical workcamps in Lebanon, Mexico and California.

Davis looks forward to his work in Attleboro, and hopes to bring many ideas that worked well in Winchester to his new congregation. A smaller congregation, Davis hopes to instill a sense of ministry among all the parishoners.

With the future stretched out in front of him, Davis is confident he can bring a ministry based on growth and change to the new congregation.

"There are great divides in our society ... I plan to always be a bridge-builder," says Davis.

In his absence, an interim pastor will take over at the First Congregational until such time as a permanent pastor can be named by the church's search committee.

Women and success

Handling the personal side of professional progress

By NATASHA JOSEFOWITZ
Copley News Service

The "fear of success" syndrome was much touted in 1968 after Matina Horner found that 65 percent of the women she interviewed in medical school predicted negative consequences if they were to become first in their class, whereas only 10 percent of the men, did so.

This study was misunderstood by many people who then thought that women generally fear success. What the study uncovered was not fear of success per se, but these women worried about how their fellow students and colleagues would react should a woman become visibly more successful than her male colleagues. In other words, it is not success itself that is treated, but success in a competitive situation where a woman would beat a man in an environment that 20 years ago was still hostile to women.

I had the opportunity to talk with Horner , president of Radcliffe College, about this study. She said that at the level she had originally studied, first-year medical school, the fear of success had now disappeared, but it was appearing at the higher levels, where women again were competing with men for top slots in corporations and where, again, they were not as yet welcome.

Are women right in expecting negative consequences in the climb to the top of the class or the top of the corporation? In many instances, yes. Achievement is equated with assertiveness, ambition, risk-taking behaviors, competitive spirit, none of which are equated with the traditional views of femininity that spell dependence, submissiveness and passivity.

Will men retaliate against a woman who surpasses them? Some will. Will she be abandoned by the man she loves if she earns more than he does? Sometimes. Will she be seen as unattractive and unfeminine by the men she wishes to date? I have heard many women in high-level positions complain that when men hear that they are vice presidents or board chairs or very successful in their professional lives, they drop them and run the other way. These women believe that the threat is that successful women make less successful men feel inadequate. For many men, success is equated with masculinity, for women success is equated with lack of femininity.

As I worked for and received my master's degree at age 40 and my doctoral degree at age 50, my mother kept warning me that I would surely lose a husband in the process, that better I stay home and pursue my wifely responsibilities. There was indeed very little support, if any, for me to pursue a career. It was seen as frivolous, a silly whim, and it is only now that my hair is gray and that I have written nine books that my mother grudgingly acknowledges some pride at my achievements.

Women, more than men, need approval, acceptance and meaningful relationships with other women and men. So if there is indeed the threat of rejection with the resulting isolation and loneliness, women would, of course, experience more ambivalence in their pusuits of excellence, since they are risking what they value most.

The yardstick women use to measure their success also is different from men's. Many women measure themselves against an internal yardstick of what they could be that is often unrealistically too high. Most men measure themselves against others and therefore can be less perfectionistic and satisfied more easily with their achievement. The fear then again is not of success, it is of failure to measure up to one's own standards and to those of others whom we falsely believe have equally high standards.

It also is interesting to note that women in general tend to attribute their success to luck, their failures to themselves. Whereas, with many men, it is the other way around. They attribute their successes to their ability and their failures to the difficulty of the task, the lack of time or some other outside circumstances. Women don't only do this to themselves. Others reinforce these feelings by believing that when a woman is successful, it is because the task was easy or she tried very hard. It seldom is seen as good because she is good.

It is easy to see from all this why so many women tend to believe and be depressed about any negative comments while discounting and non celebrating any positive ones. It is time for both men and women to understand these dynamics and consciously set upon a course to change them. It is possible if we all try.

ELLEN HORN

Ellen Horn has been working at the Jenks' Blood Pressure Clinic twice a month for more than 10 years.

"I enjoy doing it because you meet so many people and those that come are usually quite concerned," explained Ellen, a former member of the health committee. "If the pressure is high we refer them to the visiting nurses or to their own doctors. I feel good being able to help."

A 1932 graduate of St. Elizabeth's Hospital School of Nursing, Ellen, who has been widowed for 16 years, met her husband in Panama while serving as an Army Nurse during WWII.

"My husband and I travelled a lot and spent 2 years living in Italy and 2 years in Scotland," said Ellen, who has lived in Winchester for 33 years.

Ellen, an avid Beano player who helps serve coffee at the monthly Jenks Beano games, enjoys knitting, crocheting and reading in her spare time. She still does all of her own yardwork and walks almost everywhere she goes.

"I keep pretty busy between one thing and another," said Ellen, who has 2 sons and 2 grandchildren.

Are You Ready?

Remember getting new clothes at the start of the school year - putting away the summer shorts and breaking out the heavy Fall gear? These pants are too short now. This color is all wrong now. I really need a new sweater to make my wardrobe complete. I imagine that wardrobe evaluations such as these sound familiar to you.

It is also time to evaluate your jewelry wardrobe and consider if it is time for getting ready for a new season. That watch has served you well, but considering your current position now may be the right time for a change. Perhaps simply switching the strap can create the image that you are striving for.

Take a look at your ring. Is that the look you want to have now? Perhaps you would like it even more set with other gems. It might be the time to think about how others see your ring. Does it convey who you are now?

What about your old favorites? Is it time to restring your pearls? Is it time to have the clasps on your necklaces checked? It is time to make sure that the gemstones are still securely mounted and the prongs safe? As for the old favorites that you really love - would your current insurance replace them if they were lost or stolen?

Now might be the time to fill in your jewelry wardrobe. Compliment your favorite ring with designer earrings. Why not add a pendant to enhance the gold chain or the pearl necklace? Think about bangle bracelets that make a bold, gold fashion statement. Once you have built versatility into your wardrobe you will enjoy your jewelry even more.

As idea people, we can help you get ready for the kind of year you want to have.

FOR THE SMALL INVESTOR

Buying and Reselling a "Fix-up House"

A "fix-up house" or "handyman's special" is a basically sound, well-located, single-family house that is in need of improvements. Percentage-wise, once these budget houses are fixed-up, they often have a better appreciation value than expensive houses.

Because improvements are needed on the house, the investor is able to buy it below market price and immediately upgrade it for a quick resale, or for a long-term rental investment.

Here are a few guidelines to consider about such an investment plan:

- Whether you do most of the fix-up work yourself or hire someone to do it, this kind of investment requires your daily attention.
- Avoid houses that need major or costly work that does not add much market value. This includes a new roof, new foundation, plumbing, wiring, and termite or dry-rot repairs. If you are unable to evaluate such items, hire a professional.
- When initially considering the house, there should be an opportunity to substantially increase market value with basic, inexpensive improvements, such as painting, carpeting, floor sanding (where needed), tiling, landscaping and making minor structural repairs.
- Only make major improvements that are known to increase buyer interest, such as modernizing the kitchen and bathroom, and adding needed or new utilites. Adding a fireplace, for example, will increase the market value of most houses.
- Follow this general rule-of-thumb: for every one dollar spent on an improvement, be sure it adds at least two dollars of market value to the house.

Transforming a house from an ugly duckling into a beautiful swan can be profitable!

Girls' soccer blasts Melrose

By MARK NADEAU
Sports Editor

After weeks of preparation and hard work, the Winchester High girls' soccer team finally got a chance to play for real Monday afternoon as they pummelled Melrose, 8-0. Believe it or not, the game was not as close as the score would indicate, but head coach Chris Scanlon was satisfied with the team's effort.

"We accomplished what we wanted to this afternoon," said Scanlon. "But we still have to work on finishing off our shots."

The Red Raider girls, in only their second year of varsity-level competition, knew they would have their hands full when they visited Skillings Field Monday afternoon. To their credit, Melrose played evenly with Winchester for the first five minutes before junior Brittanny Boulanger headed in a nice cross from senior Denise Delaney at 5:19. Sophomore Jessica Lanzo followed that up with her first varsity goal 50 seconds later on a assist from freshman Liz Kelley.

Kelley and freshman Renee Bussell came through with their first career goals before Delaney closed out the first half scoring with an unassisted goal at 23:22. Boulanger and Kelley would finish with two goals and an assist while Delaney and Bussell ended up with a goal and two assists each. Quad-captain Shalagh Murdock notched two assists.

Bussell and senior Danielle Berkhout combined on what Scanlon called the "prettiest" goal of the game late in the second half. Bussell made a perfect cross from deep in the left sideline to right out in front of the net where Berkhout headed it in. Scanlon said he was pleased with the way Berkhout hustled to get to the ball instead of waiting for it to come to her.

Winchester will face a much stiffer test Thursday afternoon when they travel to Spy Pond Field to take on Arlington. The Spy Ponders defeated Wakefield, 3-1, Monday night and Coach Scanlon was impressed by what he saw from both clubs. The Sachem girls will then host Burlington Saturday morning at 10 a.m.

Bouley looks for win 300

By ARAM GOUDSOUZIAN
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys' soccer team accomplished three things this past Monday in Melrose; they won a game they needed to start the season successfully, they found their scoring touch for the first time all year, and they notched career win 299 for coach Gene Bouley.

The Sachems tallied four goals while shutting out a physical but less skilled Melrose club. The team's scoring drought had carried through their four scrimmages, during which they managed a meager five goals, and it appeared that their futility would continue after a number of missed chances early in the match. That all changed when freshman sensation and right wing Jeff Tahnk found the net for not one, but two goals to start the season off right. This accomplishment earned Tahnk the first ever "Sachem of the Week" award.

Striker Jan Pyro scored his first of the year — with many more sure to follow — on a nifty pass, courtesy of co-captain and center halfback Michael Queenan, for the third goal. Queenan rounded out the scoring himself when the ubiquitous Tahnk relayed a drop pass from Pyro to an open Queenan in front of the net.

Starting outside fullback Joe Armstrong cited his pleasure that the team "finally came together ... It was a great start to the season." He joined goalkeepers Brad Peck and Steve Mueller, and fullbacks Kiley Hertel, a co-captain, Dave Keane, Joshua Briggs and former football star Henry "Trey" Skehan in a job well done defensively. Other starters who played solid soccer were Dave Rodriguez, Tim Haskell and Jason Law.

The Sachem's outstanding depth was also shown off on this day. Halfbacks Mike Cramer, Darin Clemente and Kevin Riley set the pace for forwards Greg Brown and Ken Myhra and all-purpose players like Mike Houllahan and Aram Goudsouzian.

On a final note, all of Winchester will have a chance to see history in the making when the Sachems square off with Watertown this afternoon (Thursday), at Skillings Field, beginning at 3:30 p.m. Coach Bouley will have a crack at a landmark in coaching — career victory 300.

WHS football team readies for season

By AL DITULLIO
Special to the Star

"Huddle," "Red Dog," "On three" should sound familiar to you if you follow high school football. It's hard to believe that yet another football season is slowly creeping up on us. Wasn't it just yesterday that we were attending the traditional Thanksgiving Day game hoping our team would do well?

For some of us our hopes were answered and for others they were dashed in 1988 having to wait until 1989. 1989 has arrived and it's time again to look at the high school football team that will soon be gracing our sports pages.

The Winchester Sachems, under the leadership of Manny Marshall — a fixture since 1964 — has produced some fine football teams and players that have shined in the ever-tough Middlesex League.

That same force and desire that many of Marshall's teams have had in the past will once again come out when the season begins. The success behind that is Coach Marshall's handling of players, knowing how to bring out the best in them while garnering their respect. Just drive by practice some afternoon and you will see Marshall out there teaching his players the game.

How does this fit into the scheme of things for '89? Simple. He will continue to do the things that have worked for him in the past. Their record in 1988 was 4-5-1, a mark they hope to change this season.

They will look to their offensive leader, quarterback Chris Umscheid, who will try to put points on the scoreboard this season. Umscheid will need some weapons and will look towards running backs John Szczepanski and Joel Curtin as weapons he can call on when a big play is needed. The other guns at Umscheid's side will be tight ends Sean Donlon and Jim McGeehan who will be patrolling the pass routes for the quarterback to throw the ball.

The first test will come this week at home against Somerville in non-league play beginning at 1:30 p.m. This should gear the Sachems up for an exciting year of football in '89.

Barracudas is open for new swimmers

The New England Barracudas, one of the oldest and most successful U.S. swim teams in New England, is seeking new swimmers for the 1989-90 season. Competitive swimmers aged 7-18 are invited to attend one of three swimming evaluations for new members.

The primary evaluation session is at Regis College on Wellesley Street in Weston Sept. 16 from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. Swimmers unable to attend that session may be evaluated at Brandeis Univ. on South Street in Waltham on Sept. 19 or 21, at 5:30 p.m.

The Barracudas, under the direction of new head coach Alan Barry, offer four different year-round programs:

The Introductory Program, for swimmers aged 7 to 9 with little or no competitive swimming experience, practices three days per week at Regis College.

The Age Group Program, for swimmers aged 8 to 13 with somewhat more experience, practices four to five days per week at Regis.

The Juniors and Seniors programs, for swimmers aged 12 to 18 who have made a substantial commitment to swimming and the Barracudas, practice six days per week at Brandeis University.

For more information or directions, please contact the Barracudas at (617) 237-5139 or (508) 443-0991.

Open gym program begins Sept. 18

The Winchester Community Use of Schools Open Gym program will begin its 16th season on Sept. 18. The gym will be open Monday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m. for adults only — 18 years and older.

The program is open to all residents who want to keep fit, to exercise for health and enjoyment, to meet new townspeople, to get more use from your tax dollar or to simply enjoy yourself.

The new admission fee is $2 for all Winchester residents with positive identification and $4 for non-residents. The weekend schedule will go into effect on Dec. 2. From this date forward the gym will be open Saturdays and Sundays from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. in addition to the Monday and Thursday evening schedule.

During the weekends, the program is open to students in the seventh grade and up, including adults. Families are also invited to use the gym, but youngsters below the seventh grade must be accompanied by an adult. The fee is $1 for non-adults.

To better serve the residents of Winchester, non-residents will have certain time restrictions during our busy and often crowded winter months of December, January and February. We will be issuing I.D. cards to residents to use to gain admission for a dollar. This will eliminate confusion at the entrance desk when a new person is working to ascertain those folks who are not residents. With everyone's cooperation this will go smoothly. This is an attempt to spread out the use of the gym and better serve the residents.

The program offers many features, however, the main game is basketball. No courts are reserved and all games are on a first-come, first-play basis. There is a volleyball group that meets regularly on Monday evenings which welcomes new faces. In addition, there is a weight room for those familiar with the sport. We also offer paddle ball and provide paddles, but you must bring your own paddle ball or tennis ball. Winter joggers often use the gym when weather conditions prohibit outdoor running. Eleven-and-a-half laps equal one mile.

No locker rooms, showers, or telephones are available, so come dressed appropriately and make transportation arrangements before you arrive at the gym. During school vacations the gym will open its regularly scheduled hours only. If school is cancelled due to inclement weather or any other reason, the gym is also closed.

Many residents have commented as to how much they appreciate being able to use the gym and how they enjoy seeing a town building being fully utilized. The Community Use of Schools group looks forward to another successful year of providing a necessary service to the residents of Winchester.

Parent group forms to aid sports programs

Within the past two months, a new organization has been formed and named the Winchester Sports Foundation. The Foundation was begun by parents of young athletes and sports enthusiasts in Winchester to address these stated goals and purposes:

— To preserve and promote the level of Winchester High School sports programs.

— To help meet the costs of the athletic programs and expenses individuals may incur.

— To give financial support for the introduction of new sports programs.

— To make sports programs accessible to all classes and ensure an opportunity for maximum participation.

The organizational meetings of the Winchester Sports Foundation were held throughout the summer, and the goals and purpose were agreed on at these meetings. The officers were elected and their responsibilities are to handle the fund-raising and the routine operation of the Foundation. The officers are: Lucille Bourque, President; Rebecca Murphy, Vice-President; Marty Fuller, Secretary; and Kevin Keefe, Treasurer.

Initial fund-raising plans have begun and among those actively involved are Phil Vultaggio, Cec Law, Marti Hood, Lorraine Tozza, Sheryl Oliver, Linda Keefe, Pom O'Grady, Jane d'Entremont, Len Nolan, Jim Maconochie, and Linda Sullivan. A penny drive is planned for Oct. 14 and again on Oct. 28.

The first general meeting of the Winchester Sports Foundation will be held tonight, Sept. 14, 7:30 p.m. at the McCall Junior High cafeteria. The purpose of this meeting will be to inform the general membership of the fundraising plans for the year, as well as to solicit interest and recruit help to carry out these plans.

The meeting is open to anyone in the Winchester community.

Field hockey team loses heartbreaker 1-0

By MARK NADEAU
Sports Editor

The Winchester High field hockey team opened their season Monday afternoon with a heart-breaking, 1-0 loss to host Melrose. The Red Raiders scored the game-winner with only two minutes left when a Melrose forward knocked home a rebound from in close.

Sachem goaltender Amy Poftak made a nice save on the initial shot but she was unable to handle the rebound which bounced in off her pads. "It was a really pretty goal," said Winchester coach Mary Brown. "Amy had no chance on it because it deflected in off her padding." However, Poftak did have a fine game. "She made some nice saves," added the coach. "The defense could have done a better job clearing the ball in front of her."

Coach Brown was pleased with the play of her team in their first game of the season, especially with starting right wing Sarah Briggs sidelined with a knee injury. "We missed Sarah today," said Brown. "She's fast and a really good player for us." Briggs, a senior and one of the team's four captains, will be back in action in two or three weeks.

The Sachems have nine returning players this fall and Coach Brown feels she has a well-balanced team. Still, she didn't know what to expect on Monday. "We were apprehensive going in but we dominated the first 20 minutes," said Brown. "I think we need to spread out more and get better midplay."

The Sachem forwards include Lorette McWilliams, quad-captain Shelley Curtis, Andrea Fiorentino, Alyssa Berman and Margaret Behnke. Kelley Driscoll plays right midfield and Justine Selnik plays left midfield. The defense has quad-captain Sarah Power at right back, quad-captain Kathryn Colson at center back and Amy Berry at left back. Paulie Barclay plays sweep. Julie Chamberlain backs up Berry and Lily Palacios subs for Barclay. The two other substitute players are Marilyn Mawn and Alison Otis.

Winchester hosted state champion Watertown on Wednesday and will travel to Burlington on Friday before returning home on Monday for a game with Reading.

Residents have unclaimed money

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane has announced that his office is attempting to return nearly $1 million to 3,000 Massachusetts residents under the state's unclaimed money law.

Treasurer Crane noted that this money has been reported to the Treasury by insurance companies doing business within the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Included in the proceeds are unpaid life insurance benefits, unpaid benefits on health and liability insurance policies, pension checks and customer overpayments.

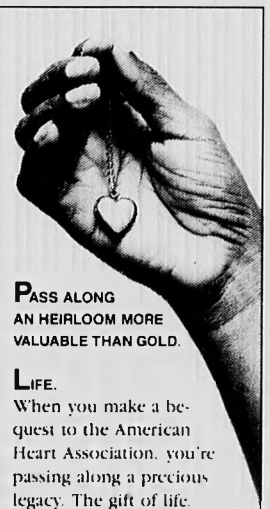

Under Massachusetts' unclaimed money law (M.G.L.C. 200A), accounts which have been dormant for at least five years are deemed to be abandoned and must be reported to the Treasury. The Treasury Department then tries to locate the rightful owner or legal heirs to return the money.

"Many of these accounts represent the cash value of life insurance policies which the owners o not realize they are entitled to claim," Crane said. "Once again my office is making every reasonable effort to locate the owners or legal heirs to return these funds to those who are due them."

More than 1,000 accounts range between $100-$500; 251 accounts between $500-$1,000; 137 accounts between $1,000-$5,000; 11 accounts between $5,000-$10,000 and three accounts more than $10,000. The remaining accounts are less than $100. Last spring Treasurer Crane released the names of 32,000 Massachusetts residents who were owned more than $23 million, most of this resulting from unclaimed savings accounts.

Persons who believe they may have a valid claim should call the Treasurer's Office at (617) 426-0060 or toll free at 1-800-632-8027.

The following Winchester residents should contact the Treasurer's Office: Hilda Farr, Espieito Ficocello, Eileen M. Larson, Jennie M. Lewis, William H. Loeber, W. M. May Jr., Deborah C. Stewart, and W. O. Whiting.

Committee's programs promote seniors' good health

By MARY E. KELLY
Special to the Star

Over the years the Jenks Center's Health Committee has served, and continues to serve, to promote good health for Winchester seniors. It maintains health and screening clinics and provides information on health care and opportunities for maintaining good health.

The committee is chaired by Dr. [illegible] who recently stepped down from the presidency of the Winchester Seniors Association, and includes senior volunteers [illegible], Barone, Herbert [illegible], Jane Burt, June Cannon, Margaret Connors, R.N., Pauline Jelinek, R.N. and Hilde Zerwekh, R.N., as well as professionals from area hospitals and health agencies including Linda Koppel, R.N., Geriatric Social Worker, Winchester Hospital, [illegible] Powers, R.N., Community Education, Winchester Hospital, and Colleen [illegible], R.N., Visiting Nurse and Health Care, Joseph Tabbi, Winchester Board of Health, and Barbara Symmes, Administrator, Council on Aging.

The committee's first meeting of the fall season will be on Sept. 18, at 10:30 a.m. to plan the programs for the coming year.

Meeting scheduled for SAC volunteers

The Senior After Care (SAC) Volunteers who make home visits and provide comfort and support to Winchester elders in various stages of post-hospital convalescence, a service of Winchester's Council on Aging, will have its opening meeting this fall on Friday, Sept. 22, at 2 p.m.

As part of this training session, Richard Welton, Coordinator of Community Services for the Winchester Library, will be presenting an overview of the services now available through the Library, especially for the homebound. His presentation is entitled "More Than Meets the Eye." The monthly SAC meeting is under the direction of SAC Coordinator, June Hall, R.N. All interested persons are invited.

Recorder lessons begin on Oct. 3

Under the direction of instructor Jennifer Southcott, a teacher on the faculty of the Winchester Community Music School, the Recorder group will be meeting on Tuesdays starting Oct. 3, at 1:30 p.m., and will be meeting weekly thereafter. This program is, in part, sponsored by a grant from Winchester Community Music School.

The instruments are provided by the students; the recorders are inexpensive, and anyone interested in joining the group can come on that first day or can sign up ahead of time at the Jenks Center reception desk, giving name, address and telephone number. This group usually has two presentations annually at the Center, one during the holidays, and one in the spring. The members welcome your interest. In the meantime, until lessons start in October, the group will continue to meet informally on Thursdays in September.

Focus on earth's environment is the wave of the near future

By LEONOR RICH
Special to The Star

The environmentalists constantly warn about ozone holes, the green-house effect, global warming, solid waste, pesticide poisoning, extinctions of plants and animals, acid rain, and water pollution. Corrective measures for the future are requisite to preserve our resources. A growing reservoir of research grants is earmarked for studies pertaining to the development of geographic literacy. Funds should be targeted where they can help to make a real difference in the years that lie ahead.

Current literature emphasizes repeated warnings through maps, photos, and stories that warn of environmental apocalypse. Gilbert M. Grosvernor of the Christian Science Monitor says, "There is hardly a place in this land where the lesson is not written plainly for all to see. Brazil's imperiled rain forest, Alaskan caribou, whales, and oil drilling in the Arctic sound loud and sobering calls."

A new awareness will be emphasized in politics during the next few years. Those to be elected in 1992 will have to be conversant with the many problems in the environment The need to preserve fossil fuels, electrical conductivity, increased plant productivity, resistance to disease, organic farming to eliminate pesticides and fertilizer, the elimination of chemical and biological weapons, the preservation of plants and animals, the need to preserve the wetlands and other areas of similar concern is greater than ever before.

One of the most effective boosts to public awareness of the environment is the United States Space program. From John Glenn to the many phases of the Apollo program, the astronauts have engendered an interest in new knowledge.

Environmentalists have called on President Bush to take swift action on a long list of issues from acid rain to wilderness preservation. Global warming, new energy sources such as solar and wind-powered generators, agencies to prohibit the release of toxic wastes, and other contaminants in the marine environment are all vital to the survival of life on this planet Earth.

Climatic warming with its threat of droughts and rising sea level is moving to the forefront of the world's political agenda. Robert Cowen says, "Scientists cannot predict how fast this man-made warming may develop or what its specific regional effects might be." The American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS) focuses on the effects of global warming on water supply. The United Nations Environment Program (UNEP) reviewed all possible effects of climate warming including the flooding of lowland areas. The scientists concluded, "Many of the most adverse consequences can be avoided if society takes timely anticipatory measures."

One of the most important immediate actions the government should take in dealing with climate change is to provide funds for interdisciplinary research to improve scientific understanding. What will be the conditions a century hence without concerted efforts to forestall existing dangers? It is not likely that many of us will be here in the year 2090, but good planning nationally and internationally is necessary to save fragile Earth for the safety and enjoyment of future generations.

Two teachers work on science literacy program

Winchester High School physics teacher John A. Limongiello and chemistry teacher J.R. Marks were two of 52 high school science teachers selected to take part in an experimental MIT summer program to inspire greater interest in science and engineering among high school students.

Its first achievement was to promote an increase in the number of high school science teachers in New England. Penobscot Valley High School physics and chemistry teacher Ellen P. Simone immediately went back to Maine and, along with her teaching colleagues, encouraged the school board to hire a new math/science teacher.

The long-range goal of the program at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was expressed by Avi Ornstein, a chemistry teacher and head of the science department at the Berlin (Conn.) High School: "There was a clear feeling that we may be able to start a movement to resolve our nation's problems in math and science literacy."

The teachers in the intensive, six-day program ended the week by drafting a statement on the problems they believe are contributing to scientific illiteracy in the United States. Over the Veterans Day weekend in November, the group will reconvene at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to brainstorm solutions to these problems.

The program, directed by Professor Ronald M. Latanision, Director of the Materials Processing Center, comprised 62 hours of lectures, laboratory tours and hands-on demonstrations. MIT professors, including six department heads and four research center directors, talked about their research in chemistry, physics, mathematics, the life sciences, the management of technology, new materials, and advanced engineering systems ranging from integrated circuits and artificial intelligence to aircraft engines and the nation's infrastructure.

A major goal of the program, said Latanision, was to emphasize the continuity between the basic sciences taught in high schools and their applications in engineering. He welcomed the science educators by saying, "We are all part of the same educational continuum: high school students today are our students tomorrow and, ultimately, they represent the future of the educated workforce that is increasingly more required by industry."

The program, sponsored by MIT and the Carnegie Corporation of New York, was tuition-free. Room and board on campus were also provided free for all teachers.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

WHO SHOULD USE AN "ARM"

Are you in a career path where your income is likely to rise considerably over the next few years? Are you planning to purchase a "starter" home, then buy a larger one a few years from now? If you answered "yes" to either of these questions an adjustable rate mortgage (ARM) may be an attractive financing option for the purchase of your new home.

Typically, ARM's start out at a lower interest rate than you could obtain on a thirty year fixed loan, substantially increasing the amount of the mortgage for which you can qualify. The rates for later years can and usually do increase, although virtually all ARM's have limits on how high they can go. If you want to stretch your buying power, and if you're reasonably sure your income will expand to meet the possibility of higher payments, consider an ARM. Because ARM's usually save you money for at least the first few years of the loan, they are a good value for buyers who think they may be moving in a few years.

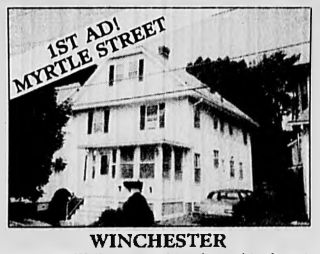

If you are considering a move, contact the professionals at The Bixby & Porter Company Realtors. Call us at 729-7000 or stop by our offices at 33 Thompson Street in Winchester.

PEOPLE

Susan P. Vrotsos stands in front of her work, "A Formal Entrance," an oil on canvas, at the Copley Society.

Vrotsos receives two art awards

The Copley Society of Boston awarded a second prize in the Large Painting show currently on exhibition through Sept. 23 for her work, "A Formal Entrance."

Vrotsos also received an honorable mention at the Medford Arts Festival for a watercolor entitled, "Nevada 1985."

Edgell's work is on display

Four posters designed for the West End Historical Committee by Claudia Kelty Edgell and Stephen Edgell III, who are members of the committee, are on display in the window of the Cambridge Street, West End branch of the Bank of Boston, Charles River Plaza.

The posters contain photographs of the Old West End taken by Mrs. Edgell and her late husband, Stephen, before and during the destruction of that historic neighborhood.

The photographs will be included in the history of that early part of Boston being completed by Mrs Edgell.

Two other similar posters by the Edgells were on display at Boston City Hall in May during National Historic Preservation Week, when a group of historical societies had displays showing their efforts involving the preservation of historic sites in Boston.

Local pup wins award

At the recent dog show held by the Providence County Kennel Club in Barrington, R.I., "Jackson," (ZanZa's the Pretender), the Afghan Hound owned by Claudia Kelty Edgell and Stephen Edgell III of 8 Sheffield West, went Reserve Winners Dog.

Jackson, black with blue shading and a white blaze, has four championship points to his credit.

A California dog, Jackson, is a son of the famous Ch. Coastwind Jubilan Osiris, and ZanZa's Dark Side of the Moon.

Innis accepted as a cadet at military academy

Cadet Sean M. Innes, son of John H. and Roseann C. Innes of Mystic Valley Parkway, has been officially accepted into the U.S. Military Academy's Corps of Cadets as a new member of the Class of 1993 during the annual acceptance parade.

The parade followed six weeks of rigorous basic cadet training at the West Point, N.Y., academy. Training in military customs and courtesies, drill and physical conditioning, tactical exercises, and the firing of weapons introduced the basic cadets to military life with special emphasis on leadership, duty, honor, and country.

The academy is a four-year educational institution graduating men and women to serve as career Army officers. In addition to military training, the academy offers athletics, and an academic curriculum which includes engineering, basic, and social sciences, and the humanities.

He is a 1989 graduate of Austin Preparatory High School in Reading.

Estridge will attend Hamilton

Juliet Estridge, of Glengarry Road, will matriculate at Hamilton College this fall with the Class of 1993. Within the Class of 1993, 32 states and 17 foreign countries will be represented by at least one undergraduate, including two students from the Soviet Union.

Estridge is the daughter of David and Marjorie Estridge.

Rogers earns scholarship

John J. Alberts of High Street was recently awarded the "Helena M Rogers" scholarship for 1989.

Each year the scholarship is awarded to a graduate of St. Mary's School for the highest SAT scores.

Alberts graduated from St Mary's in 1984 and Boston College High School in 1989. He plans to attend Marquette University this fall

by Dan Hogan, Service Manager

It's time to prepare your car for the seasons ahead. Start under the hood and the first thing to check, of course, is the radiator and cooling system. First, take a look at the anti-freeze coolant. If it shows signs of discoloration and rusting or had debris floating, it must be drained and replaced. The cooling system must also be flushed to clean it of any rust or scale buildup. The best type of flush is a good high-pressure flushing. Make sure whoever does the flushing uses a good system to flush all and any harmful deposits that may be accumulating.

Modern equipment is used to service cars at PETER FULLER OLDS. Open 8-5. Tel. 924-8100. M/C, Visa & A/E honored. We have our own body shop. We are authorized to do all factory warranty work on Oldsmobiles. We will finish servicing your car at the promised time. Stop in at PETER FULLER OLDS, Watertown Sq. "Olds National Service Award Winner".

315 Child Care

 AD-TIP ***
CHILD CARE PROVIDERS: Are you offering CHILD CARE in YOUR home for 1 or more children? Massachusetts state law requires that you must REGISTER with the MA Office For Children and include your OFC license number in all ads. If you have registered with the Office For Children and are just waiting to receive your license number from them, please indicate this when ordering your ad. We will verify the application with the OFC and print your ad with the words "license pending"

 AD-TIP ***
CHILD CARE PROVIDERS
If you offer child care services for:

* 1 or more children
* outside the child's home
* during schooltime hours

Massachusetts State Law requires that you must register with the MA Office For Children (OFC). This office issues a license number to you which must, by law, appear in all advertising materials.

Babysitting service provided during after-school or weekend hours, in the child's own home, is an exception to this law.

Century Classified regrets recent confusion concerning use of the words "License Pending". The most recent ruling of our OFC contact is that this phrase does not satisfy state law. Therefore, Century Classified will not accept child care ads without an OFC number.

Is window washing a big pain in the sill?

Do you have to keep on painting? Scraping and replacing putty?

And worst of all. . .do your windows leak air? And you still have single glass? You know you can't afford single glass. You can be losing more heat directly through the glass than you lose through the cracks.

A message from publisher

Fall is a time of change — of meeting new challenges and new people.

It is the season for children to start a new school year and for many families to move into a new home.

That is why Century Newspapers publishes a special Newcomers' Guide every autumn. For those who are new to the area, we hope the Guide will help with the formidable task of getting to know their new neighborhood, town, state and region. And for those who have lived in the towns of Arlington, Belmont, Watertown and Winchester for a while, we hope to provide a useful tool for reference and entertainment throughout the year.

The Guide will help you understand how local government works and help you get acquainted with some of your local officials. It also has information on state laws and officials and on the arts scene in greater Boston, along with tips on the best places to walk, jog and bicycle in Arlington, Belmont, Watertown and Winchester.

Century strives to keep the residents of those area towns well informed throughout the year with our regular weekly publications, the Arlington Advocate, Belmont Citizen-Herald, Watertown Sun and Winchester Star.

In the coming weeks and months, we hope you will come to rely on our newspapers when you want to learn more about interesting neighbors, school events, social activities, town government, churches, local sports and the businesses in your town.

In the coming months, Century editors will be hosting community forums in each of the towns that our newspapers cover. At those forums, we hope to meet many of you personally and hear your ideas on how we can better serve your community.

Meanwhile, we welcome suggestions at any time, and we welcome all the newcomers who have chosen to make their homes in our communities. We think they have made an excellent choice.

Arts scene may offer more than you think

By MEREDITH FIFE DAY

Boston's love affair with arts is no secret. Budget cuts and gloomy economic forecasts notwithstanding, the arts continue to flourish with broad participation and interest. In the recent Money magazine ranking of "best cities," Boston's Arts' score rated 100 — highest in any category.

What may be less well known is the extension and quality of the arts beyond immediate boundaries of the city into the myriad suburbs that comprise the greater metropolitan Boston area, as well as easily accessible cities nearby such as Worcester to the west, Lowell to the north and Providence, R.I. to the south.

At a recent discussion of the Boston visual arts scene on the idyllic grounds of the DeCordova Museum in (very) suburban Lincoln, panelists noted the lack of geographical concentration of the "scene." Instead of working and showing within the defined boundaries of an urban pocket such as New York's Soho or TriBeCa, artists are making paintings and sculpture in Belmont's Kendall Center for the Arts or Waltham's Moody Street and River Street Studios as seriously and with as much of a sense of purpose and community as they are in Fort Point Channel or South End in Boston. Furthermore, significant exhibitions of Boston area artists are mounted in suburban museums as Brandeis University's Rose Art Museum in Waltham, the DeCordova, and, a little farther out Route 2 west, the Fitchburg Art Museum.

If you like to keep abreast of the visual arts you will only shortchange yourself by limiting your travels to the well-known Newbury Street galleries or the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. Keep an eye out for open studios at Kendall, at Roseland Center for the Arts in Watertown, at Arlington's new arts center in the former Gibbs Junior High School, and at Concord's Emerson Umbrella for the Arts. Add these weekends of looking at work and talking with artists to your gallery hopping and museum trips to get a sense of the breadth and depth of Boston's visual arts.

For many who love theatre the drives down to Providence, R.I., for the productions of Trinity Repertory Company have seemed as sensible and have yielded as much satisfaction as a trip into the Wilbur or Colonial or Huntington Theatre in Boston, or the American Repertory Theatre (A.R.T.) in Cambridge. This summer the A.R.T. presented the Trinity Rep's immensely popular The Boys Next Door to raves from audiences and critics alike, and has extended the performances in Cambridge into late September.

You will read about A.R.T. in Time magazine and the New York Times; if Trinity Rep. has a lower profile, it is not, as has just been proven, due to the absence of quality. Likewise with other less famous theatre groups. Check out the local and nearby suburban thespians: The Arlington Friends of the Drama, Belmont Dramatic Club, The Winchester Players. These groups' budgets may be more modest than the professional companies in Boston and Cambridge, but their enthusiasm and talent almost always exceed both our expectations and the price of admission. Besides, community spirit is served up in generous portions through the efforts of local theatre groups, and that's good for everybody.

Boston Symphony Orchestra and its leader Seiji Ozawa have a well-deserved world-wide reputation for excellence in performance. Here in an area where a cello is as likely to be your seating companinion on the train as a rosy-cheeked student in our highly concentrated zone of academia, are lots and lots of VERY serious musicians.

When I first moved to the Boston area from the Midwest, I swore I heard at least one musician practicing on every single block of every single neighborhood. I do believe it still. Folks here love music. They love to play and sing it and they love to listen to it. They have high standards. And classical music is not the sole arbiter of taste. Whether it's a funky jazz club in Somerville, a pipe organ concert at King's Chapel, a folk music performance in Arlington, or a presentation by one of the local choral groups or chamber players, you can expect to share an experience with people who know and wholeheartedly enjoy all the beauty, fun, surprises and subtleties of sound.

The Boston Ballet and the Dance Umbrella provide area residents with dance performances that range from classical to startling and innovative. Dance subscription series enable local audiences to see ethnic dance presentations as well as such notable companies as the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater, the Martha Graham Dance Company and the Bolshoi Ballet.

Mobius, a Boston artist-run center for experimental work in all media, presents performances that usually defy categorization and almost always rely on the movement, space and visual impact of dance.

Boston has a flamenco troupe; the Ramon de los Reyes Spanish Dance Theatre.

Choreographer and dancer Paula Josa-Jones is one of many of the area's gifted and hard-working dancers who brings us the kind of exciting performances we've come to expect and come to be known for supporting.

Committed individuals such as Josa-Jones, professional and community groups, college museums and performance groups, and even corporate programs give the arts around here depth and rich, varied texture. Whether we are actively involved as participants or as audiences and supporters, the quantity, quality and availability of the arts in our area are hard to beat.

MUSIC

Guest artists joining Ozawa during the season include Alfred Brendel, Yo-Yo Ma, Viktoria Mullova, Anne-Sophie Mutter and Andre Watts.

ARLINGTON: FOLK AND PHILHARMONIC — FolkTree of Arlington presents the best of internationally known folk artists throughout the year. Watch listings for performances. THE GRIFFIN MUSIC ENSEMBLE — Committed to the performance of 20th century music, the Griffin Ensemble is presented in a four-concert subscription series by the Wang Center for the Performing Arts, Boston. Season opener is Sept. 26 with Gunther Schuller, conductor and violinist Rolf Schulte. The group repeats three of its performances in Lowell and Worcester.

The Cantata Singers are based in Cambridge and perform in Symphony Hall and Jordan Hall at the New England Conservatory.

CHECK OUT THE SCHOOLS — Boston area music schools and music departments within universities present performances regularly. Keep an eye out for concerts and recitals at New England Conservatory, Berklee College of Music and Boston University, among others.

A LIGHTER TOUCH — The Master Singers of Lexington, a 30-member ensemble led by director Betsy Burleigh, pay tribute to France's Bicentennial year with a program Dec. 9 celebrating three centuries of French Christmas music. In Feburary, 1990 the group performs the lively and beloved music of Gilbert and Sullivan.

JUST BETWEEN US — Many of the finest music performances brought to Boston are also presented in Lowell at the University of Lowell Center for the Performing and Visual Arts, and in Worcester at Mechanics Hall. Both cities are within easy access of our area and present programs of high quality. The Dave Brubeck Quartet swings into Durgin Hall at ULowell Oct. 13. ### THEATRE & DANCE

NEW EHRLICH THEATRE — Located in Boston's South End at the Boston Center for the Arts, The New Ehrlich Theatre stages ambitious productions throughout the year. Affordable ticket prices are a plus. Tennessee Williams's A Streetcar Named Desire opens the season Sept. 20.

WINCHESTER HAMS IT UP — The Winchester Players will present Dracula in November at the Unitarian Church. The production will be staged in a "camp" style reminiscent of a Noel Coward society play.

A.R.T. — The American Repertory Theatre (A.R.T.) in Cambridge is no doubt the best known theatre group in the Boston area. If you're looking for traditional productions of the old chestnuts, you won't find them here. But director Robert Brustein's network of creative minds that includes the likes of Philip Glass and Robert Wilson, plus an outstanding group of repertory actors, often yields provocative and spectacular presentations. The A.R.T. Fall Festival begins with an extension of The Boys Next Door. Robert Morse as Truman Capote, Glass's 1,000 Airplanes on the Roof, and Eric Bogosian follow.

MOBIUS — The Mobius Performing Group has gained national recognition as a leading interdisciplinary group in Massachusetts. Since 1979 the 18-member group has been known for incorporating a wide range of the visual, performing and media arts into innovative live performance works. Now, the artist-run center for experimental work in all media presents new work by more than 100 artists each year.

SPINGOLD THEATER AT BRANDEIS — The Spingold Theater Center on the Brandeis University campus offers lively quality performances that range from Thornton Wilder's Our Town to Tennessee Williams's The Night of the Iguana, both presented there in October.

BOSTON'S MADNESS — The longest running non-musical in America, Sheer Madness, is in its tenth season at the Charles Playhouse in Boston. No one ever doesn't have fun at this play.

HOLBROOK'S MARK TWAIN — Hal Holbrook's legendary performances of Mark Twain always transport audiences into another century and the presence of America's greatest humorist. A two-night presentation of Mark Twain Tonight, with Hal Holbrook is staged at The Opera House in Boston Oct. 13 and 14 as part of The Bank of Boston Celebrity Series.

DON'T FORGET THE KIDS — Young thespians and young audiences alike have a wealth of wonderful theatre experiences available to them all year long. Act/Tunes Youth Theatre in Concord, New England Theatre Guild for Children and Wheelock Family Theatre in Boston, and the Boston Children's Theatre based in Chestnut Hill, are among area groups that provide family entertainment in which young actors play the leading roles. Anne of Green Gables, as a musical, will play at the Wheelock Family Theatre in October and November. Charlotte's Web at Wheelock in the spring and Act/Tune's A Christmas Carol in December, are among the season's offerings.

BUTOH DANCE FROM JAPAN — The next wave of avant-garde dance from Japan, Company Karas with Saburo Teshigawara, performs Sept. 29, 30 and Oct. 1 at the Emerson Majestic Theatre in Boston. The company is comprised of six dancers. Teshigawara is considered to be Japan's major new choreographic voice.

DANCE UMBRELLA SERIES — The performances of Company Karas with Saburo Teshigawara, are presented by Dance Umbrella, which offers a series of innovative, international dance troupes that will include Dutch artist Angelika Oei in the fall, and the sensational Mark Morris and The Monnais Dance Group in the spring.

THE KING AND I WITH RUDOLPH NUREYEV — Rodgers and Hammerstein's classic The King and I is presented at The Wang Center in Boston through Sept. 17. The role of the King of Siam is performed by Rudolph, one of the greatest living ballet dancers of our time.

BALLET HIGH ON WINCHESTER'S LIST — The Winchester School of Ballet is in its 13th season, offering classes in classical ballet and dance exercise for all ages, with the emphasis on classical. The Winchester Ballet Theatre was founded 10 years ago to create a performing outlet for adult men and women who enjoy dance as an avocation and to provide stage experience for serious dancers.

ALVIN AILEY AMERICAN DANCE THEATER RETURNS — The very popular Alvin Ailey company's performances in Boston are met with anticipation and excitement by area audiences. The company is presented in the Bank of Boston Celebrity Series at The Wang Center March 13-18.

STILL WONDERFUL AFTER ALL THESE YEARS — The works of choreographer Martha Graham have long been hailed as among the most imaginative and inspired in America. The Martha Graham Dance Company will perform time-hon-cred works of beauty and wonder in late October at The Wang Center as part of the Bank of Boston Celebrity Series.

WATCH FOR THESE — Among the dance companies in the area that enrich our cultural lives with varied and wonderful performances throughout the year are Boston Ballet, Concert Dance Company of Boston, Impulse Dance Company, Dance Collective, Mandala FolkDance Ensemble, Dance Alliance, Benita Bike's DanceArts, MJT Dance/Tella Dancers. Watch listings for upcoming performances.

The events highlighted here are only the tip of the iceberg. Read the What's Up listings weekly and take part in the treasure of our area arts.

An idea so crazy, it just might work.

It's called honesty:

Oh, sure, you've heard it all before: "No gimmicks, no hidden costs, no tricks, no razz-ma-tazz." But do you believe it? Probably not. So maybe it's a little much to ask you to believe us.

But this is a promise: Cambridge Imported Cars and Serrentino Buick will not be any of those things you've come to believe about car dealers.

That means treating you with respect. Respect for your good taste and good sense in selecting an automobile that's just right for you. Without the pressure. Without the gimmicks.

That means following up after the sale. With sincere interest in making sure you're happy. Period.

And that means expert and caring service that will be unmatched anywhere. In fact, when you bring your MERCEDES BENZ, SAAB, or BUICK in for service we'll even drive you anywhere in the Boston area in a chauffeur-driven MERCEDES BENZ limousine.

Here's the point: We've built a dealership for people who really like their cars. So we offer a wide range of only the best vehicles in their class. MERCEDES BENZ... The pinnacle of automotive engineering. SAAB... Absolutely the most automobile for the money. BUICK... Long known as America's leader in automotive design.

And we back these vehicles with a state of the art service facility and a staff of factory trained technicians that are second to none.

If all this sounds a little crazy then so be it. But at Cambridge Imported Cars and Serrentino Buick we believe that by treating our customers honestly, respectfully and with a true interest in their total satisfaction, we might just sell some cars

...And maybe that's not so crazy after all.

Welcome note from selectmen

Dear New Arlingtonian,

We welcome you to our town that has a rich 353-year history. Starting from farming and mill roots, our town has evloved into a suburban community with pride in its ethnic and cultural diversity. Simply stated, "Arlington has something for everyone."

There are recreational facilities, convenient public transportation, excellent schools, outstanding libraries, responsive public services and numerous chruches. Moreover, there are countless opportunities for community involvement in town government, social and civic clubs and community volunteering. Our human services and concern for the elderly are strong public commitments.

The Arlington Boys and Girls Club, Fidelity House and the Choate-Symmes Hospital provide additional local community facilities. Our informational needs are met by the local newspaper, The Arlington Advocate, and the town cable company, Continental Cablevision.

Despite our small and densely populated area (two by three miles,) we still have open space at our attractive parks and playgrounds. Recently, the Arlington business community has undertaken an extensive renovations program and is trying to be responsive to changing consumer needs.

Yet more commendable than all of its tangible assets is the fact that Arlington is a caring community. It consists of friendly neighbors who are willing to help others and to become involved in the life of the town. Now you are part of Arlington. We encourage you to take an active role; we stand ready to help.

Sincerely,
Arlington Town Selectmen

Arlington offers a variety of delights

The original name of Arlington was Menotomy, which means "swift-running water," and was named for the brooks and rivers that run through it. Much of the town's natural beauty, which attracted Arlington's early trades of farming and milling still remains, although it is mostly residential now.

Despite being overshadowed in some versions of America's history, Arlington played and important part in the Revolutionary War (the most men lost on the first day of the war were lost at the site of the Jason Russell House — now a museum — in Arlington Center). It is also the birth place of Samuel Wilson, better known as Uncle Sam.

Wilson ran a meat-packing operation in Troy, N.Y., which supplied the meat for the American army. But the use of the initials "U.S." for United States was so new at the time that one of the packers took them to signify "Uncle Sam," for that was Wilson's nickname. The story spread until the name Uncle Sam came to signify the federal government.

Spy Pond is perhaps the town's most beautiful natural resource. A spring-fed pond, it was carved out by the great glaciers of the ice age. Some people say that in places it reaches a depth of more than 250 feet. The pond offers good sailing and windsurfing and along the shoreline, peaceful walking and thinking-about-nothing, especially on a cloudy, misty day.

The origin of the pond's name is unclear. Some believe that the name came from its role in the Revolutionary War. However, the name was recorded long before that war was fought.

In recent years, one section near Linwood Street has become an informal beach, with a number of swimmers each summer. The area has also become a favorite for surfboarders. It's not recommended to swim there — in fact, it's not allowed in all sections of the pond — not because of water quality, but because of the unusual nature of the pond. In some areas, swimmers can get caught among the weeds and drown; in others, there are strong temperature changes and no measurable depth because of the springs.

In the winter, cross-country skiers and ice skaters take over, but caution is advised here, too. Unless one knows where the underground springs and therefore areas of thin ice are, it can be dangerous or even fatal.

A safer idea is to go to Hills Pond at Menotomy Rocks Park. Surrounded by the hills of the park, skaters are in a picturesque setting encircled by a ring of pine and oak trees. The town is currently involved in a project to clean up the pond.

In the gold and russet of autumn, the walking paths of Menotomy Rocks Park give a gracious respite from the outside world.

Another lovely park is Robbins Garden on Mass. Avenue, in the middle of town. On spring weekends, brides have formal photographs taken here among flowering apple and cherry trees. Also in this park is the statue, Indian Hunter, created by Arlington sculptor Cyrus Dallin.

Some of Dallin's other, better-known works include Appeal to the Great Spirit in front of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, Paul Revere in Boston's North End, and the angel Moroni atop the Mormon Temple in Salt Lake City. A committee, appointed by the Board of Selectmen, is currently raising funds to restore Dallin's works. Their work and that of others is being incorporated into this year's Town Day celebration.

The streets offer good jogging for the enthusiast. Whether running two miles or six, one can enjoy flat, tree-lined streets, run along Mystic River near the Medford line, or by Spy Pond away from traffic. Arlington is also one of a few communities that will be benefiting from the planned construction of a commuter bikeway, which will run along the old Boston and Maine Railroad line and will connect many of Arlington's parks from the Alewife area to the Reservoir.

Situated seven miles northwest of Boston, Arlington is a special blend of city and suburban life. With a population of nearly 49,000 people living in an area about five square miles, Arlington is one of the most densely populated municipality in Massachusetts. Yet Arlington strives to maintain the sense of community normally seen in a much smaller town.

There are parades on most major holidays, fireworks for Town Day. The annual Town Day (this year on Sept. 22-24) includes games, food crafts, live music, dancing and more. It is a general atmosphere of fun and celebration with Mass. Avenue, from Pleasant Street to Mill Street, turned into a fairground of booths, entertainment and more.

But Arlington isn't turned in on itself. For about 10 years, Arlington has sponsored an international summer exchange program with Japan and is a sister city to Nagoakakyo.

ARLINGTON

A variety of delights offered in Arlington

Last year the town added another sister city, Teosinte, a tiny village in El Salvador.

There are more than 150 charitable, civic, cultural and special-interest groups in town — from Arlingtonians for the Protection of the Mystic Valley Amphipods to the Zonta Club of Arlington. Newcomers who wish to become involved will certainly find an organization that suits them.

Arlington has a strong commitment to education. More than 75 percent of AHS graduates go on to four-year colleges and other programs.

Arlington's public schools include seven elementary schools, one combined junior high school, and a four-year high school. These schools serve a student population of about 4,100. Arlington is the largest member of the Minuteman Regional Vocational School District, which has a vocational-technical high school in Lexington.

Private schools include St. Agnes School, a parochial elementary school; Arlington Catholic High School; Germaine Lawrence School; and, Ecole Bilingue. There is a list of nursery schools and day-care centers at the information desk at the Robbins Library in Arlington Center.

Here are some of the highlights of Arlington's history: In the early 1600s, Tahattawan, the Squaw Sachem, who was the widow of the chief of the tribe that lived in this area, controlled most of what is Middlesex County today. In 1638, she sold it to the colonial government for about 10 pounds and a guarantee of a coat every winter for the rest of her life.

Most people are familiar with the events of April 19, 1775, but not many realize that the heaviest fighting and the bloodiest skirmishes were not in Lexington and Concord, but here in Menotomy.

Until 1807, this area was part of Cambridge. It became the town of West Cambridge, later to become Arlington. During the 1800s, the town was noted for market gardening, greenhouses and the famous ice houses of Spy Pond, whose workers, in the days before refrigeration, cut blocks of ice for shipment around the world.

The Schwamb Mill, built in 1860 on the site of an older grist mill, is the oldest picture- and mirror-frame maker in the United States. It is a working museum, open to the public for tours and classes by appointment and sales. This fall is the 20th anniversary of the founding of the Schwamb Mill Preservation Trust, a citizens group that ultimately saved the then-threatened mill.

In the last 100 years, with the advent of trolley cars and the automobile, the town gained easier access to the city and began its change from a farming town to a residential town for commuters.

Today, commuting to Boston is relatively easy from Arlington via public transportation. The Red Line runs all the way out to East Arlington at Alewife, making for a quick, convenient commute to downtown Boston. Driving can be a different story because the major highways to Boston are heavily traveled and slow during rush hour. For some residents, cycling is a healthy, inexpensive alternative. Cyclists can pick up the bike path along the Charles River just beyond Harvard Square.

Town finances

Running a town the size of Arlington is not a cheap proposition. And in times of the state's economic difficulties it isn't easy either.

The town's operating budget — larger than many national companies — totals more than $64 million and comes to the town through local and state receipts, local real estate taxes and other sources.

Although the town's budgets were set — is is procedure — last spring for the current fiscal year, a reduction of $210 million in local aid by the governor will require a Special Town Meeting on Sept. 18 to deal with the deficit.

Arlington's money is used to send its students to school, have police patrol the streets, trash picked up and roads paved.

More than $32 million will be raised for this fiscal year from local property taxes. About $25 million will come from state receipts, state aid, local receipts, free cash and other available funds.

The town's departmental budgets account for about 50 percent of the revenue pie, with the school department using about 32 percent of the finances. (Some school costs including insurance, data processing and some building and field maintenance are including in the town's side of the budgets.)

The town must also pay its share — about 3 percent of the total budget — for the Minuteman Regional Technical School and about 5 percent of state and county costs.

The tax rate for Arlington in Fiscal 1989 was $10.86 per $1,000 of assessed value. The new tax rate will be set this fall.

A little Arlington history

By NORMA BINNACLE
Special to Century Publications

Arlington is unique in American History. Something important happens here every 140 years, as regularly as clockwork. The first time was 1635, when white European males became bored with Cambridge and Somerville for the first time and headed west in search of excitement. They crossed the modest Memotomy River (now called Alewife Brook which in turn flows into the Missituk of Great River), and discovered our town, saying, "If you think Cambridge is dull, this is real Menotomy." That is how Arlington got its name of Menotomy, which as every native-born child now knows, is the Indian word meaning "Arlington".

These were uncivilized times, and the Alewife Brook was not yet blessed with the luxury of receiving raw sewage on a regular basis as it now does, thanks to progress and the wise policies of white males of European descent and their servants. But in 1635 progress was still ahead.

Time passed and became 1775. Menotomy was ready for its next important event. Paul Revere rode through, looking for a decent cup of coffee, inasmuch as he was up very late, and was in need of a hot stimulant. But then as now Menotomy night life was hidden behind shuttered windows, and in any event, only cold depressants were available. Years later the town fathers determined to make amends by offering Revere's impersonator an annual styrofoam cup of coffee when he rides through town every April 19. Revere nowadays is actually in search of a good meal with a beverage of another type, and must continue on to Lexington to fulfill his destiny.

This second important event, however, really involved the triumph of Arlington womanhood in contrast with the besotted thrashings of its codger menfolk on April 19, 1775, thus setting a patten of life that has continued down to modern times. Arlington's claim to fame on this day is based upon the capture of a British supply wagon, belatedly heading westward to provide ammunition to the Redcoats at Lexington. Arlington's 4-F exempts, excused from active service by their dotage, showed youth a thing or two by capturing the enemy wagon, killing several horses, and scatering the soldiers. Their leader was a black man (or possibly Indian) called David Lamson, from out of town. Then, as now, newcomers of different backgrounds were necessary to provide fresh leadership in the community.

All this ocurred right at the famous traffic signals marking Arlington Center's crossroads to Charlestown, Watertown, Cambridge and Cambridge Farms (or Winchester, Belmont, Cambridge and Lexington for newcomers), where today the brave continually risk their lives by crossing on the Walk light.

But the real heroine of that one day was Mother Batherick, quietly digging early spring dandelins for her ever popular Batherick's Old Medicinal Elixir. Six frightened British soldiers, the oldest of them 19, alone by the shore of Spy Pond and lacking membership in any local club, threw themselves on her mercy and surrendered to the gruff but kindly dowager. The British opposition press, ever alert for these examples of weakness and irony known as news, shouted, "If one old Arlington woman can take six grenadiers, how many soldiers will it take to conquer America?" This was Arlington's moment of glory.

But the glorious morning for America became an ignominious evening in Menotomy as the retreating British inflicted and sustained substantial injuries along the Massachusetts Avenue route from Arlington Heights to the center. Thus Cambridge's Second Precinct (that is to say, Arlington) achieved its place in the record books for the quantity and brutality of blood shed on that one day.

Nothing more happened for another 140 years. Then in 1915 another important event occurred. Historians cannot agree on what it was, however.

But Arlington did not rest on her laurels, and many citizens and important public officials are now agreed that the time is not too early for a blue ribbon panel to begin planning for the next exciting chapter in Arlington's continuing saga of significant events. This will occur in the year 2055, exactly 140 years from 1915.

Understanding Arlington Today

The newcomer to our happy valley is aided in understanding the community by realizing that Shakesperean farce and Elizabethan comedy are the models for life in the land of the Squaw Sachem (our earliest woman leader), and not Greek tragedy.

The real estate columns of a daily metropolitan newspaper recently quoted our highest town official singing the praises of his adopted land by saying, "We are in great shape physically, with a very sound infrastructure.

Our streets, sidewalks, buildings, water and sewers are all in very good shape and our housing stock is excellent. Arlington is a very pretty town; you never see any houses that are run down." This appeared in print, was not rebutted, and therefore must be true. Newcomers should remember this reality, and not take too seriously the apocalyptic predictions of bankruptcy and fiscal nightmares made by some other high officials. Newcomers are also reminded that the remedy to inadequate municipal finances lies in a community's determination to pass a Proposition 2½ override. One such attempt narrowly failed in Arlington last June, possibly because those most eager to claim the credit for victory did the least work on behalf of the override effort.

A light-hearted history of Arlington

On the other hand, some Arlington parents, while remaining residents of the town, are already voting emphatically with their pocketbooks by removing their children from Arlington public schools (which represent 44 percent of the local tax burden) in favor of private schooling. A recent Boston magazine article names a "very highly motivated" Arlington real estate broker who, with her public school administrator husband in the system of an adjacent town, sent their 14-year-old to private school in Cambridge because "they believed she was getting a mediocre education" in the Arlington Schools. The system does have many defenders, however.

There is a generous supply of well paid town officials, and an additional layer of unpaid ones who serve on various boards and committees. The Representative Town Meeting form of government is a major sporting and social event in which as many as 252 elected Town Meeting Members (12 each from 21 Precincts) annally attempt to ferret out the truth of town government from their blood enemies, the town officials, whose main aim in life is to conceal facts, throw up smokescreeens, and there by maintain their power. Running for and serving in Town Meetings is by far the best total-immersion course available to the newcomer interested in understanding the personalities and policies of the town.

The community is relentlessly suburban in many of its aspirations, but the paradox is that Arlington is also one of the most densely populated municipalities, with about 9,000 people per square mile, or roughly 12 times the state average. There is no big business, and a generally anti-business sentiment on the part of long-time selectmen, so residents bear the brunt of the tax bill. Overnight parking is banned on public streets.

As a "moist" town, there are no bars for the common throng, and only two restaurants with liquor licenses. The real drinking (and politicking) away from home is facilitated by the membership clubs of widely varying reputations; this particular quirk of local life often comes as a surprise to newcomers entering town from other parts of the 20th century. Its historic roots trace to an obscure local politician from the 19th century, who achieved his ultimate level of incompetence by winning state office as a teetotal candidate. Arlington today has politicians hungering for state office, but there the comparison ends.

One of the charms of an Arlington, which takes only a modicum of initiative to discover, lies in its diversity of neighborhoods, and in its specialty shops. The joys of finding quirky and personalized stores like Helen's Pastry, Balich's 5 & 10 and Play Time are considerable.

A feature article recently queried whether Arlington's neighbor to the south was possibly the region's most boring town; our neighbor to the north is fond of snooty self assessments such as "affluent and exclusive." Arlington is neither of these. Arlington's treasures and pretensions combine the best and worst features of Boston suburban life. Good features, in addition to certain stores and shops, include interesting and diverse neighborhoods within the solid middle class range, and quite good access to the really diverse and worthwhile features of the area, namely Cambridge and Boston, via buses and the Red Line at Alewife.

Its less fortunate features include the dearth of good restaurants because of the common consent of citizens and politicians alike that drinking should be done in clubhouse ghettos. Another deficit has to be a small and inbred gang of mediocre windbags who aid, abet and succeed one another in controlling the political life of the community from generation to generation. The names and faces change in a vague sort of way, but the vacuity of their minds and vaucity of their thinking does not. But that is true of many towns, is it not? Perhaps one or two of these people stare out at you from the very pages of this supplement, political egos for all seasons, offering interchangeable words of welcome and reasons why name of Community is special on the face of this earth.

The truth is that one will get out of this community what one puts into it. If these lightly dowdy, slightly funky charm of an Arlington suits you, welcome. If affluent and exclusive are your preferred adjectives, why say, there's a great little community just over the town line. But, dear newcomer, be advised to take that town, like Arlington, and like this article all with a few grains of salt.

Public transportation

The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority, more commonly referred to as the MBTA or "T", operates the public transportation system serving Arlington and the Greater Boston area.

From the five bus routes that run through town, Arlington residents can reach a network of buses, trolleys, subways and commuter trains.

An extension of the subway's Red Line runs to the Alewife station near the intersection of Routes 2 and 16, at the Cambridge-Arlington line. The subway cars run from Alewife station beginning at 5:15 a.m. until the last train pulls usually at 12:40 a.m.

There are MBTA commuter parking lots in Arlington Heights, at the Alewife Brook Red Line station, and in Davis Square Somerville.

For information concerning the bus and subway lines call 722-3200, TTY 722-5146. For information about the MBTA's lift bus service call 1-800-LIFT-BUS.

Welcome from the school board

Welcome to Arlington and the Public Schools.

The Arlington Public Schools have a long and proud history. The first school was constructed in 1693, near the old burying ground. From its historical start, today's school system has 4,100 students housed in seven neighborhood elementary schools, grades K-6, one junior high school, grades 7 and 8, and one comprehensive high school, grades 9 to 12. All our schools have active parental and community involvement.

The schools are staffed by dedicated and experienced professionals. The elementary schools serve their respective neighborhoods. Students have the opportunity to enroll in any elementary school, space permitting, and every school provides programs for students in need of specialized help. Prior to enrollment in kindergarten a screening process helps to establish each child's readiness to begin his/her learning.

The elementary schools provide a very nuturing environment for a young child's learning experiences. Students are well-grounded in basic subject matter before leaving the sixth grade, and are exposed to a variety of cultural and social opportunities that are offered both during and after school.

At the junior high school, students have the valuable chance to meet others from all parts of the town. In addition to a challenging academic program, students are also offered hands-on experience in occupational fields.

At the high school, students can choose from a varied selection of course subjects and academic levels, from general courses to advanced placement course work. An alternative education program is also offered in a regular high school environment. Through the guidance department, assistance is available to both students and parents to assure the best placement.

There are many areas open to the student for further educational opportunities through the language and computer clubs, the Honor Society, the newspaper, literary magazine, drama, student government, and athletics.

Arlington schools are competitive in the educational field, with more than 80 percent of the student body continuing in post secondary education. This percentage has increased over the years, reflecting both the changing needs of society and this community.

The schools are ably administered by Superintendent Walter Devine and have nine elected school committee members. The school committee meets every second and fourth Tuesday of the month throughout the school year.

Again, we welcome you to our school system and encourage you to become an active and involved individual.

School closings

When Arlington schools are closed because of snow or other emergencies, announcements are made starting at 6:30 a.m. on WHDH, WEEL and WBZ.

Signals are also sent out through the local fire stations. A 2-2 horn signal repeated four times at 7 a.m., means no school.

The 2-2 signal sounded at 7:45 a.m., signals no morning sessions for elementary schools, and the 2-2 signal at 11:30 a.m. is for no afternoon session for elementary schools.

Chamber represents businesses

Nearly 50 years old, the Arlington Chamber of Commerce represents local businesses and acts as a lobbyist for the concerns of the business person.

Located at 7 Central St., Suite 204, after 10 years on Medford Street, the chamber represents nearly 250 local businesses.

Second Vice President Bill Sovie says the business group has two sides, "reactive" and "proactive." The reactive side comes into force when something within the community affects businesses, he said.

The chamber also meets with Alan McClennen Jr., town director of planning and community development, once a year to discuss new businesses, investments and redevelopment plans. In turn, chamber officials react to the town's information and bring up their own plans and concerns.

On the active side, the organization does positive things for the town and businesses it represents.

"We provide holiday lighting in Arlington," said Charlie Smith, administrative director of the group. Kathie Salipante is the secretary.

One year during the 1970s energy crisis, the town did not have the funds to put up Christmas lights, Sovie said. Since then, the chamber has taken over the $10,000 a year lighting program.

The Chamber of Commerce also services as a help to residents, new and old, who have questions about local businesses. Often residents will call looking for a reliable business and the chamber will give recommendations.

"We're much like a better business bureau," said Sovie.

He said the organization also holds an annual awards banquet to honor local citizens and businesses.

There are no qualifications for belonging to the chamber other than annual dues. Dues begin at $95 for new members.

After the first year, dues are prorated to the number of employees a business has. Business owners interested in joining the chamber should contact Smith at 643-4600.

Another feature of the chamber is a program offering health and discount group life insurance from Blue Cross and Blue Shield, and several health maintenance organizations.

This feature is especially beneficial to very small businesses that could not otherwise afford insurance plans.

Businesses outside Arlington in the metro west area also join the chamber, Smith said. Including businesses outside Arlington, the organization registers nearly 500 members.

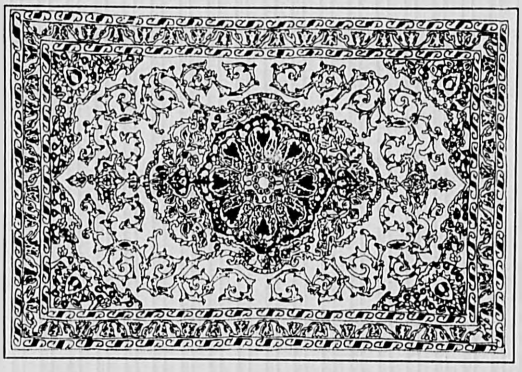

The chamber is headed by president Leonard Talkov. It also has two vice presidents, a clerk, a treasurer and a board of 12 to 14 members. All positions are held by local business people.

Incorporated in 1919, the organization was originally called the Arlington Businessmen's Association. The name was changed to the Arlington Chamber of Commerce in 1936.

Voter registration is easy

Massachusetts has one of the easiest voter registration programs in the country.

A person may register to vote if he or she is at least 18 years old by election day and is an American citizen (born or naturalized).

To register, all a person must do is fill out an "Affidavit of Registration" card, listing your name, address, birth date, previous address if any, occupation, and, if desired, party affiliation. There is no residency requirement in Massachusetts.

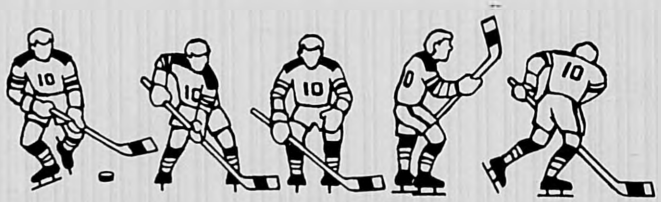

In Arlington, registration may be done at the clerk's office on the second floor of town hall, weekdays 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., or look for special registration sessions in the weeks prior to an election.

Physically disabled and absentee voters should write to the town clerk, 730 Mass. Ave., Arlington, Mass., 01274.

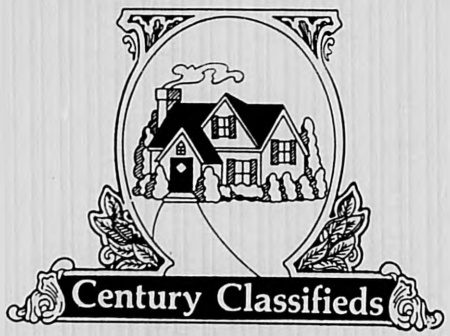

Of the nearly 49,000 people in town, 28,870 residents were registered voters as of June 1, 1989. Democrats accounted for 17,961 of the voters, Republicans 3,658, and the remaining 7,281 were note registered in one of the major parties.

Questions Arlingtonians ask

By P.L. BUSTAMANTE
Advocate Assistant Editor

The following is a list of some of the more commonly asked questions that newcomers (and longtime residents) have regarding how things work in Arlington and there answers.

POLICE:

How do I get a street sign put up in my neighborhood?

If the sign you would like put up is a warning sign for safety purposes, such as "children playing," a phone call to Safety Officer David McKenna (646-1000 ext. 5023) should be the first step. Officer McKenna can check out the request and its appropriateness and usually the sign will placed at his recommendation.

A request for a sign that requires some sort of change for traffic or bylaws, such as a "Stop" or a speed limit sign, should begin with a letter to the Board of Selectmen. Upon receipt of the letter, selectmen will request a study of the situation and a recommendation be made by police, usually Safety Officer McKenna.

Where is the police station located?

The Arlington Police are headquartered at 112 Mystic St. in the Community Safety building.

SCHOOLS:

How do I register my children for school?

Registering your child for school is done directly at the school he/she will be attending. For elementary schools, you should go to the school's principal's office. The principal will provide the forms to be filled out, give the parent and child a tour of the school, and answer any further questions. There are seven elementary schools in town.

Arlington High School student registration is done at the guidance offices.

To contact any school, dial 646-1000 and ask for the school's extension. The school extensions are as follows:

Pierce — ext. 3371
Hardy — ext. 3351
Thompson — ext. 3391
Dallin — ext. 3341
Brackett — ext. 3361
Stratton — ext. 3381
Bishop — ext. 3361
Ottoson — ext. 3320
Arlington High School — ext. 3100

Are there after-school programs and activities for my child?

Except for the Peirce School, every elementary school has an after school program in the building. The programs are all privately run. A parent interested in enrolling a child in one of these programs should call the office of the school the child is going to be attending, and they will be able to provide the name and number of the program director and the company running it.

The school system also offers a program called "Community Education," which runs classes, for children and adults, in a wide variety of activities such as computers, dancing, singing, knitting and more. To sign up for classes and for more information call Jim Brown, director of "Community Education," at 646-1000 ext. 3125.

TOWN CLERK'S OFFICE:

How do I register to vote?

An Arlington resident wishing to register to vote should appear in the Town Clerk's Office on the second floor of Arlington's town hall and fill out the forms provided to there. You do not need to bring any documents with you, but you will be required to take an oath after filing the forms.

The Town Clerk's Office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from Labor Day to May 31, and from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. from June 1 to Labor Day. In the weeks before deadlines to register for elections, the office offers extra hours to register, in the evenings and on weekends.

For more information call the Town Clerk's Office at 646-1000 ext. 4050.

How do I get a marriage license?

A couple wishing to get a marriage license should appear in person, bride and groom, at the Town Clerk's Office within 60 days, but not less than three days, of a marriage ceremony. The first step to a license is to file a notice of intention of marriage, for which the clerk's office will need proof of age (valid driver's license or a birth certificate) and a medical certificate for each person (the marriage blood test).

After three days, clerk's office will issue the license. The license should be taken to person who is going to perform the ceremony, completed by that person and then returned to the clerk's office, at which point is becomes a permanent record.

The fee to get a license is $10.25; certified copies of the license cost $5 each; and an abstract (wallet-sized) copy is $3.

A list of justices of the peace ("marrying justices") is available at the clerk's office.

How do I get a birth certificate?

The hospital where your child is born will send the birth information to its local clerk office which will then send it to Arlington (or the appropriate city or town). Unless the delivery is a home birth, a parent will not have to do anything except fill out the papers in the hospital.

A certified copy of a birth certificate is available at the Town Clerk's Office, $5 for the full form and $3 for abstract form.

How do I get a dog license?

All dog licenses expire yearly on Dec. 31. To get a license, a dog must have a rabies vaccination, which expires every three years. The fee to license an unspayed (or unneutered) male or female dog is $11. The fee to license a spayed (or neutered) male or female dog is $7. You must present the certificate showing the dog is spayed.

After you bring in the certificates and fill out the forms, you will get a license and a tag.

The Town Clerk's Office also is where you can get death certificates, sporting licenses, raffle and bazaar permits, gasoline renewal permits, cemetery deeds, business certificates and more.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS:

What day is my rubbish pick-up?

To find out what day the town removes your trash, call 646-1000 ext. 5200. Tell them the name of your street and they will give your scheduled day.

Trash pick-up on holiday weeks is moved up one day. For example, if your regular trash removal day is Monday, on a Monday holiday week you would have your trash picked-up on Tuesday of that week.

Recreation opportunities are plentiful for Arlington residents

If you are a newcomer to Arlington and enjoy sports and recreation, you and your family have moved to the right community and will enjoy the leisure time activities provided by the schools and many organizations on a year-round basis in the town on the banks of Spy Pond.

For the newcomer it isn't a question of where to find recreational facilities in the communnity as it is how much time can be spent utilizing the numerous outstanding facilites offered in the town.

Let's begin on Summer Street and head easterly through an area where a newcomer can gain a good view of just a few of the more than 30 recreational facilities offered yearround in the community.

To the south side of the street, opposite Ronald and Overlook Roads is the Arlington Sports Center.

At the immediate right is Summer Street Field, equipped with lights, and the home of several of the baseball and softball teams and the Arlington High field hockey squad.

In the center of the area is the Veterans Memorial Skating Rink commonly called the Summer Street Rink.

This building is a center of activitiy throughout the year.

The Arlington Recreation Department has headquarters in the structure, and programs of this organization are centered in the building and throughout the town the year round.

The large part of the structure houses an area used for skating throughout the fall and into the early spring, and by the Recreation Department, particularly during the summer.

To the east of this complex is Buck Field, also used for a variety of activities, including Little League Baseball and activities sponsored by the Recreation Department.

The next recreational facillty can be seen from Summer Street as one looks to the south and the back of Arlington High School.

The school structure itself fronts on Mass. Avenue.

Centering the area is the football field, surrounded by a modern outdoor track. Unfortunately, the community does not have indoor track facilities.

To the east is the field utilized for girl's varsity softball, Little League and by the Athletic Department for in-school programs at Arlington High.

On the western side of the football field are two other fields utilized as practice fields for football and the field competition in track.

The Arlington High, Arlington Catholic and Arlington Pop Warner football teams play all their home games on the football field, known as Peirce Field.

Continuing easterly, another complex of fields looms on the south side of Summer Street, near the intersection of Mystic Street, Mystic Valley Parkway and Summer Street.

Buzzell Field has facilities for softball and baseball, utilized by Arlington High and the Little League, and Recreation softball teams. This field is also equipped with lights, used mostly during the summer months.

There is also a basketball court in the area and a tot-lot section.

Just before the intersection is the Arlington Catholic practice field, used mostly by the ACHS football team for practice, but also used as a practice field for some other Arlington Catholic sports.

Another hub of activity is the Spy Pond Field area, with access from Pleasant Street (Route 60) and Mass. Avenue.

Many years ago the field was used for the town's summer fairs and other activities.

Today one can look toward the southeast across the field, which is used by Arlington High School for baseball and soccer, and see the impressive Arlington Boys and Girls building in the background on the shores of Spy Pond.

To the far right of the field are tennis courts used by a number of residents of the community and the Arlington Catholic tennis team.

The old grandstand along the first base line and into right field has been taken down and a new modern stone structure erected in its place.

Heading east along the shores of Spy Pond, the newcomer will come upon Scannell Field, used for many of the Little League activities in the community.

In Arlington center, and visible from all directions is the St. Agnes Parish complex, adjacent to St. Agnes church.

The church and Arlington Catholic High School are located on the northwesterly side of Medford Street, which runs northerly from Mass. Avenue.

On the easterly side of Medford Street are St. Agnes Elementary School and Fidelity House.

The latter houses a recreational complex complete with a gymnasium.

Recreational programs are held here throughout the year, with men's and women's basketball leagues functioning almost continually.

Four other areas

There are four other large recreation areas in the community, including the expanded Thorndike/ Magnolia complex in East Arlington.

Entrance into this area is down Margaret Street, off of Lake Street into the parking lot between the two playgrounds. There is also an access to the Magnolia area near the basketball court end of the field on Magnolia Street.

Thorndike Field is the older of the two areas and is used for Arlington High and Arlington Soccer Club soccer.

It is also expected that the Magnolia area will be utilized for the soccer program.

At the other end of the community, off Mass. Avenue, is Hurd Field. This double-diamond area is equipped with lights and is used by baseball and softball teams.

Access to this field is along Drake Road from Mass. Avenue.

The athletic area with the view, Robbins Farm, is located at the summit of the Heights, across from the Brackett School and near the Water Tower.

Residents and visitors to the community can get a tremendous view of the Metopolitan Boston area from this sector.

The field is used by baseball teams, and recreational programs are held there. There is also one of the largest tot lots in the community in this location.

In the winter the area is one of the most popular in town for skiing and sledding.

Arlington has two areas utilized for swimming.

The Reservoir Beach area, off Lowell Street, under the direction of the Arlington Recreation Department, is used throughout the summer months by residents young and old.

Thousands of residents take advantage of the swimming, picnic and playground facilities from June into late August each year.

Access to this area can also be gained from Hurd Field.

For those interested in year-round swimming, there is the modern pool at the Arlington Boys and Girls Club, where many youngsters and adults can take advantage of a number of swim programs throughout the year.

The facility is also used by the Arlington High swim team for practice sessions and meets.

Under conditions when there are no water bans, a section of the North Union Street Playground, located off Broadway, in East Arlington, is flooded during the hot weather and utilized as a wading pool for youngsters.

This playground area also has a baseball field that is used by the Arlington Catholic soccer team and for Arlington Baseball Association programs.

Although, there are no indoor tennis courts in the community, tennis enthusiasts have the opportunity to use the courts at the Crosby School in East Arlington, also utilized by the Arlington High boy's tennis team; the Wellington courts on Grove Street, used by the Arlington High girl's team; the Spy Pond Field courts, where the ACSH girl's team plays and practices tennis; and the courts at the Poet's Corner athletic area, located off Route 2 near the Lexington line. Some high school sports teams also utilize the latter field.

Another popular area in town is Menotomy Rocks Park off of Jason Street. Cars are not allowed in the Park.

In addition to Hill's Pond located in the area, there are picnic areas, a playground and a cross country track, utilized by the Arlington High cross country teams.

In all there are 21 basketball courts in the town and 17 Little League Fields that are used by youngsters at several age levels.

There are also recreational areas at the elementary and junior high level, as well as at non-school locations, 25 playgrounds in all.

Gymnasiums are located at Arlington High, Arlington Catholic, the Ottoson Junior High School, the Boys and Girls Club, and Fidelity House. The skating rink area at the Sports Center is utilized for many activities in addition to hockey and sports.

Residents of the community are presented with a wide range of programs for youngsters of all ages at Fidelity House, the Boys and Girls Club and Arlington Recreation on a year-round basis.

A boating program is also offered at the Boys and Girls Club during the summer months.

Basketball is a year-round sport in Arlington with participating leagues offered by each of the recreational groups, starting at a young age and continuing through adult programs for men and women.

There are also programs available in the community for those with special needs and for senior citizens.

At the high school level, Arlington Catholic and Arlington High have three-season sports programs at the varsity and sub-varsity level, and through the years have produced championship teams in several sports in each of the three sports cycles of the school year.

Many more programs

For those who enjoy their baseball, there is plenty of action in Arlington.

In addition to baseball played at the high school level, the town has a spring and summer baseball program from the instructional level through the Little League and Babe Ruth age groups.

There are also teams at the 16 to 18-year-old group, and the Holovak/Coughlin Club of the Intercity Baseball League.

Arlington also has a team in American Legion Baseball for those above the Babe Ruth League age.

Soccer has become a popular sport in the community in recent years, and in addition to the programs at Arlington High School and Arlington Catholic there are programs for youngsters from instructional age through the teens in spring and fall programs, sponsored by the Arlington Soccer Club and Arlington Recreation.

For those who enjoy softball there is a women's adult softball league during the summer months, and Arlington Recreation sponors a 32-team league as part of its summer program.

The Pop Warner football program has more than 100 players from 9 through 14-years of age participating at four age levels. The Arlington C-team went all the way to the national finals two years ago.

The girl's Pop Warner cheerleading program has attracted large squads at the same age levels.

And when the word hockey is mentioned, it is mentioned in connection with the Town of Arlington.

Arlington High and Arlington Catholic annually skate squads at the championship level, and recently there were 14 players from the two squads participating in the Hockey Night in Boston competition.

The age-old tradition of skating and hockey in Arlington begins with the youngsters, barely able to walk, trying on their skates at the Veterans Memorial Skating Rink through the outstanding winter programs carried on by the Arlington/Menotomy Hockey Club.

The latter program begins in September and continues through the early spring with most of the activity centered at "the rink" on Summer Street.

Arlington teams of various age levels compete in tournaments throughout New England, the Mid-West and Canada. And there are "in-house" programs, and road teams competing throughout the winter.

Additional detailed information on the various recreation and sports activities in Arlington, and their locations and times, are available from the groups, schools and organizations, and through the pages of the Arlington Advocate.

Anyone with questions may contact the Sports Department at The Advocate. We'll do our best to answer any such questions, or refer the caller to someone who can answer them.

Little change expected in Belmont

By NINA ASCOLY
Citizen-Herald Staff Writer

As a residential community where little land is left to develop, Belmont is expected to change very little in upcoming years, said Town Planner Louis Mercuri.

Mercuri predicts little growth in the community within the next 10 years and cites state figures that estimate a mere 1 percent hike in population by 1995.

"Very modest growth is projected," Mercuri said.

Belmont is known as a nice, residential community, Mercuri said, and in comparing a future Belmont to today's community, he said that it's hard to imagine anything being substantially different in 10 or 15 years.

"It's pretty much on an even course," Mercuri said of the town.

"There's only so much you can do in 4.6 square miles," he noted.

The challenge that remains is making the best use of the limited resources in the town already, Mercuri explained. With current fiscal considerations, that proposition grows in importance.

"When you're scaling back your operation you have to make the most of what you have," Mercuri said.

Making the commercial centers of the town stronger, making the best use of public buildings and dealing with traffic concerns are all priorities in the area of community development, he said.

While groups like the town's Capital Budget Committee try to come up with a strategy for tackling long-range projects, such as the upkeep of the town's roadways, storm drain cleaning and construction and the replacement of fire and highway department equipment, the dymanics of the town will require attention be given to certain other areas, beyond infrastructure needs.

According to Benjamin Adler, director of the Council on Aging, Belmont's senior citizen population, 6,200, is much higher than that of most communities. According to figures compiled by the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, based on the 1980 U.S. census, nearly 19 percent of Belmont's residents are aged 65 or over, about 6 percent higher then the average found in metropolitan Boston communities.

"People are very committed here to the elderly," Adler said, noting that the department is always looking for volunteers. "We're not working here in a vacuum."

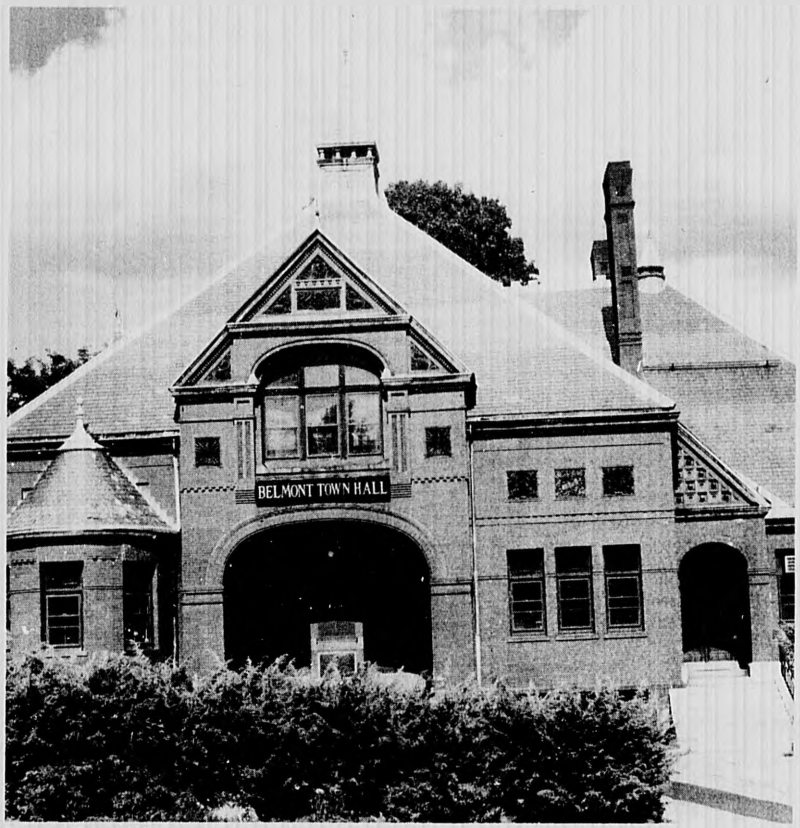

In the future the COA hopes to continue to be responsive to the needs of this segment of the population, Adler said, and to be able to prioritize those needs.

Although Belmont's seniors run the gamut as far as income goes, the vast majority are Belmont natives who are eager to stay here in town, Adler said.

Nutrition, transportation, social and recreation programs are important services the COA provides, Adler said, adding that he would like to see more done regarding health-related issues.

A large problem today is seniors who think they have adequately planned for their futures, only to find that financially they cannot meet their needs, Adler said.

So, not only obtaining services, but affording them is a problem, he said.

Belmont Town Hall

Seniors who live in private apartments and homes are having an increasingly harder time maintaining their residences, Adler said.

"They have to be served," Adler said of the housing needs of the elderly.

Will financial pressures cause an exodus of Belmont's senior population?

"I hope not," said Adler who would like to see the elderly population in town continue to grow and not be forced out. "If this is where they want to stay they should be able to."

The COA is going to have to become more creative in housing programs and other programs as well, Adler said.

"Unfortunately finances set the parameters," he said.

"I think the future of the town continues to be very bright," said Selectman Anne M. Paulsen, pointing to the positive diversity of townspeople, that combines incoming families with residents who have logged many years in the town.

Paulsen, who sees a direct link between housing opportunities and the character of the Belmont community, agreed that elderly housing is important.

"I think the town has a good mix of people," she said. "I don't think we should let that change."

"We have the goal, it's not one that's been met and I'm not sure it will, to provide housing for the elderly and for people who work in town," Paulsen said. "It's a very difficult thing to do."

"The hope is that accommodations are made so that people who have lived here and raised kids here can stay here," Paulsen said.

Ten or 15 years ago those who worked in town lived in town, Paulsen said. Now that's no longer financially feasible, she said.

Town government needs to look more aggressively at making that a reality, Paulsen said,

"People find it hard to come in," she said. "The rents are high and the houses are terribly expensive. That's a regional problem."

1980 census figures show the median income in Belmont well above that in the metropolitan Boston area, Mercuri said, and with that gap expected to widen in the future it is likely that Belmont will remain difficult to afford.

"The town definitely needs to look at ways to make housing more affordable," Mercuri agreed.

Mercuri suggested alternative zoning strategies could help reduce the high cost of home ownership and rentals in Belmont.

But, Paulsen noted, people are attracted to Belmont for the stable environment.

"Because Belmont doesn't change that much that makes it such a secure place," Paulsen said.

There has been one notable change in the types of families that are making homes in Belmont, according to Paulsen. Both the mothers and fathers are professionals, she said.

She thinks that to maintain Belmont's legacy of volunteerism, somthing that has defined local government and other town activities, it will take a bit more juggling of schedules.

School Superintendent Peter Holland has noticed two trends in Belmont. Among incoming families and those who have lived in town for years there are very high expectations for the schools and for their children.

"I think that's very healthy," Holland said.

The other important factor Holland has noted, just as Paulsen mentioned, is the growing number of families where both parents are working.

With that has come an increasing need for child care and after-school care, he said.

"Public schools need to be able to respond to this and towns need to respond to this," Holland said.

With several elementary schools recently renovated and two new playgrounds soon to be in place around town, the need for improvements at the Chenery Middle School emerges as one of the larger needs as far as physical improvements within the system.

"Clearly the middle school renovation is an issue the School Committee and selectmen are very concerned with," Holland said.

Continued improvements to the quality of air at Belmont High School is another concern, he said.

With recent budget cuts, Holland said he expects the School Committee and administration, as well as residents, to become more active and mobilize around funding issues.

Holland said that when he was first considering the Belmont position he was impressed with the level of cooperation among town departments and the involvement of residents in the community.

"We need to maintain and do that in the future especially now that there are constraints on the resources," Holland said. "Things will probably get worse before they get better," he said.

"We have a hope for the future that we'll be able to maintain the same sense of community that has been very high in Belmont," Paulsen agreed.

Working together in a community has made libraries, schools, recreation and public safety services that continue to attract newcomers, she said.

"People here really enjoyed these things, those are the reasons you move here" Paulsen said. "Life in Belmont has become very good."

"But as we continually have to contract the budget it makes it very difficult to maintain those services as they were in the past," Paulsen said. "The question is how much do people view that as part of their 'good life.' "

"There is a mentality and a philosophy that if you use it and if you like, you pay for it," Paulsen said.

"Are we as a community willing to do that?" she asked.

Although no one in her family is in the public school system right now or uses the town pool, for example, Paulsen said she believes as a resident she should support those town functions through the tax rate.

"Without that sense of community it won't be so vibrant," she said of the town.

The threat of divisiveness, over which services are most important, lurks at a time when questions of cutting programs need to be answered.

"It's a reality that we're competitive," Adler said of funding, but added, "I don't want to create divisions."

The elderly are vulnerable, he continued.

"They have been very silent," Adler said. "They accept these things as necessity when they could muster up a voice to be heard."

Town offers retreat

By PATRICIA DAUKANTAS
For Century Publications

Perched on steep hills just beyond the Boston-Cambridge metropolis, Belmont is a commuter-oriented suburb that provides a retreat for its residents at the end of a long work day in the city.

Many of Belmont's 27,000 residents take pride in calling their home town a "bedroom community," and they want to keep it that way.

Highly residential, 20th-century Belmont has virtually no industry, although it built its 19th-century economy by retrieving winter ice from Little Pond and its neighbor, Spy Pond in Arlington.

Today, a large percentage of Belmont residents work in Boston or Cambridge or in the Route 128 high-tech area. There is also a high concentration of elderly residents.

Belmont's small retail businesses are confined to four commercial centers, three of which are along and near Trapelo Road: Waverley Square, Cushing Square and Harvard Lawn.

The Belmont Center shopping district is "anchored" by a department store and a gourmet supermarket. Although the Leonard Street area had many vacant storefronts a couple of summers ago, the merchants and the town have been working together to revitalize the downtown and new specialty stores have been springing up.

Belmont, which has been termed a "land-poor" town, has very little land left on which new housing can be built.

Most of the land in the eastern two-thirds of town is almost completely developed. Residents in recent years have made efforts to block garden apartment complexes and large commercial buildings.

Some of the comparatively small open spaces left in Belmont have been developed for environmental and recreational purposes, such as the Habitat Institute for the Environment on Juniper Road and the state-owned Beaver Brook Reservation on the Belmont-Waltham line.

Besides lack of land, the town is struggling with traffic problems caused by devleopment in neighboring Cambridge.

Opening of the MBTA Alewife Red Line station near the Cambridge-Belmont-Arlington line has brought Belmont improved commuting access to Boston, but with it comes increased traffic as commuters cut through Belmont to avoid congestion on Route 2's Alewife Brook Parkway section. Ways to alleviate the traffic problems have been debated for nearly 15 years.

Belmont residents are very proud of their town, which has become quite affluent in recent years. Home prices have skyrocketed, with many single-family houses now being advertised for around $300,000. Prices are even higher in the more exclusive Belmont Hill section of town.

Belmont has four elementary schools, one middle school and one high school. Despite declining enrollment, Belmontians generally consider their school system very good, and take pride that 80 to 90 percent of Belmont High School graduates go on to higher education.

The high school building off Concord Avenue opened in the early 1970s after a 1967 fire gutted the old high school on Orchard Street. A large addition was built onto the remains of the high school and the resulting facility serves as the Roger Wellington Elementary School.

The Winn Brook and Burbank elementary schools have just gone through a $14 million renovation project to give them new gymnasiums and more classroom space. The Daniel Butler School, near Waverley Square, was rehabilitated in 1980.

The elementary schools serve kindergarten through grade five. Grades six through eight are housed at the Chenery Middle School, an aging facility at the corner of Oakley Road and Washington Street.

The way many Belmontians feel about their home town can be summed up in a banner that was flown during the town's 125th anniversary parade in 1984: "After Belmont, there is only heaven."

Belmont has been home to famous personalities

By BOB VON REKOWSKY
For Century Publications

Belmont has been home to a number of both famous and influential personalities. Belmontians have made their mark in talents and careers ranging from artist to astronaut. Even before the town's official inception 130 years ago, area residents forged ahead with innovative ideas and pioneering efforts, earning themselves recognition often on an international scale.

Abby Diaz, a juvenile writer and industrial reformer, was born in Plymouth, Mass. in 1821. According to "Who's Who in Belmont," she was a descendant of one of the early Pilgrim settlers at Plymouth and "her father and his family were earnest in the anti-slavery movement."

She earned a living in a number of jobs, including teaching and writing. Diaz was also a lecturer on timely topics and her writing concentrated largely on Christian Science. She was both founder and for many years president of the Women's Educational Union, Boston. The union wad established for the "protection of working women from the rapacity of dishonest employers."

Diaz came to Belmont in 1884 and lived at 36 Centre Avenue until her death in 1904.

Before Diaz moved to the area, a more renowned former Belmontian was frequenting the town. The artist Winslow Homer, born in Boston in 1836, often visited the homes of his uncles who lived at 661 Pleasant St. and on Centre Avenue and "also visited his parents summers after they moved to Belmont."

Homer was an apprentice to a lithographer in Boston and later opened a studio on Winter Street. He won acclaim as a magazine illustrator, especially for his Civil War scenes. In 1876 he dropped illustration for painting.

"He is considered by may to be one of the greatest American painters of any time or genre, and perhaps the greatest painter of all time of scenes involving the sea," according to "Who's Who."

During 1868 and 1869 Homer painted in various locations including Belmont. According to Richard Betts' "Footsteps Through Belmont," "the setting for Homer's famous painting the 'Croquet Scene,' now in the Chicago Art Museum, is said to have been the front lawn of his Uncle William Flagg Homer's property." Built around 1853, the property is now home to the Belmont Women's Club.

Homer, whose unique style holds a distinct place in American art, died in 1910 at the age of 74.

In 1850 another artist moved to the area. Anne Whitney, both a sculptor and poet, settled with her family in that part of Watertown which is now Belmont.

Born in Cambridge in 1821, Whitney achieved fame mainly as a sculptor, even though she did not begin sculpting until her mid-30s.

According to "Who's Who," Whitney's relative anonymity as a sculptor is due to her avoidance of popular acclaim and the prejudice she endured due to her gender.

Although she accepted the Commonwealth of Massachusetts' commission to create a marble statue of Samuel Adams in 1873 for the Capitol in Washington, D.C., she chose to avoid public praise for this honor. Also, after anonymously winning an award for a model of Charles Sumner she created, the judges found out it was the work of a woman and gave the commission to someone else.

Despite these events, she still created a number of important works, including a statue of Harriet Martineau at Wellesley College, a seated figure of Charles Sumner in front of Harvard Law School, and a "Leif Erikson" on Commonwealth Avenue in Boston.

Whitney lived in Belmont in 1850 for an unrecorded time at 577 Belmont St. She died at the age of 93 in 1915.

According to Betts' "Footsteps Through Belmont," a playground and pool complex was constructed in Belmont in 1911 which "Boston newspapers called the first public outdoor swimming pool in the U.S."

The complex was the endeavor of Henry O. Underwood, who, according to Betts, "is said to have felt that area boys and girls were not having as many good times as he used to have during his boyhood." Acquiring a town lot in exchange for some other property, the Underwood playground and pool complex came into existence, fulfilling Henry Underwood's vision. In fact, the Underwood Pool remains the oldest municipal pool in the country.

The playground wad designed by Henry's brother, Loring Underwood, who was a landscape architect. Loring, born in 1874, was a lifelong resident of Belmont, born at 90 Common St. In 1921, Loring became president of the William Underwood Company for one year immediately following the death of his brother, Henry. Henry Underwood was also the one who gave the Underwood Library to the town.

Loring and Henry's brother, William Lyman Underwood, were also involved in the family's company. Born in Belmont in 1864, he was educated in Belmont schools until 1889, when he entered his father's business. The Underwood canned food manufacturing company was established in 1822.

One of William's quests was to find out why the canned food his family was producing were spoiling. While he had no formal training, William worked alongside Professor Samuel Cate Prescott at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to try to solve this problem. According to "Who's Who," "it is now generally recognized that Prescott and Underwood introduced the science of bacteriology to food canning."

William Underwood remained active in many pursuits in Belmont and resided at 50 Common St. until his death in 1929.

Belmont's proximity to institutions such as Harvard University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology has assured the town that a number of its residents would be associated with the academic world.

Perhaps the town's most well known former resident who fits into this category is Dr. Henry A. Kissinger. Born in Germany in 1923, he was national security adviser to both presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford from 1969 to 1975 and U.S. secretary of state from 1973 to 1977.

Kissinger began his influential role in the formulation of U.S. foreign policy while still at Harvard. Residing at 104 Fletcher Road, Kissinger was director of studies at Harvard's Defense Research Institute and an advisor to the U.S. State and Defense Departments.

According to an article appearing in the June 12, 1959 edition of the Belmont Citizen, Kissinger was in London at the time urging NATO members to build their own shields against aggression. He believed that the defense of Europe "could not be conducted solely from North America." He was speaking to the Atlantic Congress, an unofficial brain trust set up to advise NATO policy for the following decade.

Kissinger's role in foreign policy development continued through the 1970s with his arrangement of President Nixon's trip to mainland China. Kissinger shared the Nobel Peace Prize in 1973 for negotiating a cease-fire with Vietnam and he also helped to arrange a cease-fire in the Arab-Israeli War that same year.

Another Belmont resident associated with Harvard, except this time in the music department, also achieved international acclaim. Walter H. Piston Jr., both composer and professor of music, was born in Maine in 1894. Completing his undergraduate studies at Harvard, he won a fellowship entitling him to study in France at the Ecole Normale de Musique for two years. After his return to the U.S. in 1926, he began his position as a member of Harvard's teaching staff in music until his retirement in 1959.

According to "Who's Who," "Walter Piston is regarded as one of American's most important teachers of music." Labeled a neoclassicist, he composed primarily in traditional forms and passed on to his students his concern with "craftmanship and form, while at the same time encouraging them to experiment along new paths." One of his students, Leonard Bernstein, has marked his own place among American composers and conductors.

Two of Piston's symphonies, the Third and Seventh, earned him the Pulitzer Prize. He also wrote four books on music. Piston lived in Belmont with his wife at various addresses on Somerset Street after 1926. He died in 1976.

Paul Dudley White was another Belmontian who achieved fame for his accomplishments. Associated with the Harvard Medical School and Massachusetts General Hospital, White was an internationally recognized cardiologist and an authority on heart disease. In the early 1900s he was responsible for introducing the electrocardiograph, used to measure and record the electrical activity of the heart, to the Boston area.

White served as president of the American Heart Association between 1942 and 1944. In 1954 he became president of the International Society of Cardiology. White also supported organizations like the Medical Committee for Civil Rights and Boston's Museum of Science and Hayden Planetarium.

White was also one of a team of doctors who attended to President Dwight D. Eisenhower when he suffered a heart attack while in office during the 1950s. White served as the

Selectman Anne Paulsen

Chairman William Monahan

Selectman Walter Flewelling

A message from the selectmen

Dear New Resident:

It is my pleasure to extend to you a hearty welcome to Belmont.

As chairman of the Board of Selectmen, I am privileged to extend that welcome from my colleagues on the board and from all of the residents of the town.

Our much beloved town is composed of approximately 26,000 residents and is 4.5 square miles in area. It is governed by a three-member Board of Selectmen and a representative Town Meeting (36 members from each of eight precincts). The Board of Selectmen meet regularly on Monday evenings at Town Hall.

Our outstanding school system is governed by a six-member committee which meets regularly and whose meetings are posted and noticed in the Belmont Citizen-Herald.

Presently, Belmont, like every other municipality in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, is confronted with unusual financial problems which are a direct result of serious cuts in local aid (money sent to cities and towns by the state).

The hard reality is that our present operating budget is $900,000 to $1,000,000 in the red. We are presently dealing with the issue of how to deal with this real loss of revenue. Over the ensuing months you will be reading and hearing about it and the ramifications of it.

However, you can be assured that although the problem is a very real one, Belmont's elected and appointed officials will deal with it effectively and efficiently. You should also be comforted by the fact that Belmont is in much better fiscal condition than most towns. We still enjoy a triple-"A" bond rating. This means, in essence, that the lending institutions place Belmont in the highest possible bracket in terms of its ability to pay its debts.

Belmont residents and their local officials have great appreciation for the quality of life and the aesthetics of our town. Belmont is known as the "town of homes."

We are also very proud of our school system. Recently the town's voters approved a debt exclusion from Proposition 2½, in order to provide funding to renovate two elementary schools. The Winn Brook School was reopened last fall and we anticipate the reopening of the Burbank School this fall. We will then have four excellent elementary schools. Although our middle school is in need of renovation, it is well administered and staffed, and provides excellent educational opportunities. Belmont High School provides a wide selection of courses and activities. Each year a number of outstanding students and student-athletes come forth.

Belmont is also well-served by Minuteman Regional Vocational High School — one of the best in the Commonwealth.

The Recreation Department provides activities for all ages, from our young children to our senior citizens. Make sure you check it out.

Our seniors also enjoy the services and activities provided by the offices of the Council on Aging.

As you become better acquainted, you will find that the town of Belmont is well-served, not only by those elected and appointed officials who work hard to keep Belmont as you like it, but also the many volunteers who give unstintingly of their time and labor. If you have the time and the disposition to become involved, stop by Town Hall and explore how you can become involved in the many activities and functions which take place in your town.

Place a call to Town Hall (484-2300) and inquire about any concerns you may have. You will find a public servant eager to be of help.

Welcome to Belmont!

Very truly yours,
William P. Monahan

primary spokesman to the press as well.

Some of White's accomplishments fell outside of the medical world. Being an avid cyclist, it was largely due to White's efforts that the bike path around the Charles River Basin was created in the 1960s. He was also honorary president of the American Bicycle Hall of Fame and of American Youth Hostels (AYH).

Born in Roxbury in 1886, White's achievements were honored on the centennial of his birth when a three-cent commemorative stamp bearing his picture was issued in 1986.

Dr. White lived in Belmont with his wife beginning in 1948, first at 200 Marsh St. and then at 114 Juniper Road. He died in 1973 at the age of 87.

Over at MIT, another Belmontian was achieving recogniiton for his work. Dr. Vannevar Bush, born in 1890 in Everett, Mass., "was a key figure in the modern development of computers." He developed the differential analyzer, an early computer, "which modern analogue computers are the direct descendants of."

"In 1938 Bush left MIT to become president of the Carnegie Institution in Washington, D.C. Bush made numerous contributions to the scientific planning which became crucial with the approach of World War II." During the war he led the U.S. Office of Scientific Research and Development, in which he directed such programs as the development of the first atomic bomb.

Bush remained active in a number of both government and private organizations. He returned to MIT as chairman of the corporation in 1957. According to "Who's Who," Bush was one of five to be awarded the National Medal of Science by president Lyndon B. Johnson at the White House in 1964.

Bush moved to 304 Marsh St. in Belmont with his wife in 1919. He died in 1974.

Also at MIT was physicist Robert J. Van de Graaff. He was born in Alabama in 1901 and joined the staff at MIT in 1934.

He developed an electrostatic generator, better known today as the Van de Graaff generator, a key device in the advancement of nuclear research.

Like Bush, Van de Graaff applied his talents to the war effort. According to "Who's Who," Van de Graaff and his associates applied the generator to the production of penetrating X-rays for the military. The properties of penetrating X-rays have proven to be a valuable tool in the medical world as well, instrumental in the treatment of deep-seated malignant tumors. Along with an associate, Van de Graaff built an X-ray machine for the Huntington Memorial Hospital in Boston. The first patient was treated in 1937.

How town spends its money

Belmont's total budget for the current year (fiscal 1990) is $42.8 million, up about 5½ percent from last year's.

Education takes up the largest share of the town's budget — approximately $16.8 million, or 39.4 percent.

The public services budget, which includes street maintenance, water and sewer services, and rubbish collection, will eat up $8.47 million this year, or 19.86 percent of Belmont's total expenses. Public safety (the police and fire departments) constitutes 14.31 percent of the fiscal 1990 budget, or $6.1 million.

Other major budget categories are retirement and insurance, 7.82 percent; debt and interest, 6.07 percent; state charges, 4.38 percent; general government, 4.01 percent; culture and recreation, 3.43 percent; and human services, 0.67 percent.

In a cost-cutting move last spring, selectmen took almost all major equipment purchases out of the fiscal 1990 budget, so this year's capital expenditures budget is only $42,000, or 0.09 percent of overall spending.

In fiscal 1990, Belmont will receive approximately 60.4 percent, or $25.9 million, of its revenues from property taxes.

Local estimated receipts from motor vehicle excise taxes, sewer and water charges, and other sources is expected to total $7.7 million this year, funding about 18 percent of the town budget.

State aid to Belmont in fiscal 1990 was overestimated by about $1.3 million. While the town had been expecting about $6.5 million, the aid from the state was cut to $5.2 million in August, several months after Town Meeting approved the fiscal 1990 budget.

Because Belmont also overestimated the charges it must pay to the state for such services as water, sewers and transportation, the town's actual fiscal 1990 shortfall is about $974,243. Officials may call a Special Town Meeting this fall to deal with the shortfall.

Welcome from superintendent

TO BELMONT CITIZENS:

I am pleased to welcome you to the Belmont Public Schools, which serve approximately 2,800 youngsters in the Town of Belmont. Belmont takes pride in its traditions, its government, and its schools. The schools reflect that pride and are recognized for serving a community with high expectations for academic success, social development, and diverse extracurricular activities.

There are six schools in Belmont. The four elementary schools serve students from kindergarten through grade 5: Burbank, Butler, Wellington, and Winn Brook. Chenery Middle School is home for students from grades 6 through 8, and Belmont High school houses students in grades 9 through 12. The strong academic orientation of the schools, as reflected by the SAT scores of students, results from the Massachusetts Educational Assessment Program, and the colleges and universities selected by graduates of the Belmont Public Schools.

The Belmont Public Schools offer several noteworthy programs. The METCO program brings 125 Black and Hispanic youngsters from Boston to Belmont for their regular education programs. The DARE Program, Drug Abuse Resistance Education, is a collaborative effort between the Belmont Police Deparment and the schools and involves police officers and teachers working together with fifth-grade students on drug abuse prevention techniques. Belmont also hosts a Saturday Music Program for students at the elementary level. This very successful program supports the outstanding levels of music performance at the middle and high schools. Most recently, Belmont has participated in an Early Childhood Study. In addition to the Kindergarten Extended Day and After-School Care Programs, this study highlighted other areas for program development.

School Supt. Dr. Peter B. Holland

The Town of Belmont has been very supportive of the efforts an initiatives of the Belmont Public Schools including recent funding for the renovation of the Winn Brook School and the Burbank School. These renovations involved over $14 million in capital expenditures. In addition, new playground equipment has been designed and purchased by parent groups for the Wellington school and the area next to the Winn Brook School.

I am pleased that you have entrusted your children to the Belmont Public Schools. For more information on programs and activities, please contact the Administration Offices: 484-4180.

Belmont offers plenty of opportunities for recreation

Newcomers to Belmont will find the Belmont Recreation Department provides plenty of opportunities for all of the town's residents to participate in enjoyable activities during their leisure time. The department-sponsored programs are selected, organized and staffed with the objective of providing appealing programs to satisfy the diverse interests of Belmont residents.

The department provides a comprehensive and balanced recreation program by offering public programs for all ages; maintaining public playground and recreation areas and facilities; sponsoring special event and special interest programs; assisting community groups in recreation oriented activities.

The Recreation Department sponsors three indoor facilities for public use. The Higginbottom Pool, which is located inside of Belmont High School, the Mel Wenner Fieldhouse, which is also located inside the high school, and the pulic skating facility on Concord Avenue — a Jesse Barfield stone's throw from the high school.

The Higginbottom Pool offers kids a chance to frolic about and to learn how to swim while it gives adult residents a chance to relax or do laps after a hard day on the job. Special times are set aside Monday through Thursday evenings and on weekends for family and adult only swim sessions.

In addition, the department sponsors swim lessons for children, adults and special needs residents. The children's swim lessons range from beginner to advanced lifesaving while there are beginner and advanced levels for adults. Those kids who have reached the intermediate level can participate on the children's swim team which features two teams; one for 10-year-olds and under and one for 11-year-olds and older.

The Higginbottom Pool is scheduled to be re-opened to the public sometime in mid-October and will remain open until late June. Registration for swim lessons will take place early in October. Consult the Belmont Citizen-Herald for registration and pool schedule updates.

During the summer, the outdoor Underwood Pool provides the same services.

The Wenner Fieldhouse opens to the public in late October and remains open until late April. The facilities may be used for individual activity or department sponsored programs. The program schedule includes fitness and aerobics classes as well as volleyball and a men's basketball league. Family nights are held on the first Thursday of every month. Children are not allowed to use the fieldhouse on any other night. Special fieldhouse events include; handball, paddleball, volleyball, badminton, track, a basketball league and use of the weight room.

The adult programs offered at the fieldhouse include a men's basketball league on Tuesday nights and co-ed volleyball on Thursday nights. The weight room is open Monday through Thursday and offers a Universal weight machine. Fitness and aerobic classes are held in the upper gym on Monday and Wednesday evenings and is taught by a certified aerobics and fitness specialist.

The department also sponsors women's jazzerobics on Tuesday and Thursday mornings and senior aerobic dancing on Mondays and Fridays. Both of these activities are held at the Our Lady of Mercy Parish Center. There is also the Belmont Ladies' Bowling League, which meets on Wednesday mornings at the Turnpike Bowladrome in Cambridge and at Lanes & Games, Concord Turnpike, Cambridge. The senior aerobic dancing and the ladies' bowling league run from September to May.

Golf lessons are also available at the fieldhouse from March to April. Practice golf balls and mats are utilized to create conditions similar to those of a real golf course indoors at the upper gym.

Children's programs at the fieldhouse include the highly successful Belmont Youth Basketball Association (BYBA) and gymnastics. The BYBA is a league for both boys and girls which is co-sponsored by the Belmont Youth Basketball Association and the Belmont Recreation Department. A comprehensive program of instruction and competition featuring many different leagues for grades three through eight highlights this program. The BYBA graduates have gone on to make the Belmont High basketball programs one of the most successful in the Middlesex League.

Basic instruction is given in all types of gymnastics for children ages 6 and up. This program is held on Saturdays in the upper gym at the fieldhouse.

Other children's activities include the spring Pee-Wee T-Ball and Conley League baseball and softball programs. Pee-Wee T-Ball is an instructional program for boys and girls, ages 6 and 7, held in the early evening hours twice a week. Batting special balls from tees is utilized to teach the basic fundamentals of hitting. Conley League baseball and softball is designed for children who do not play in the Little League and provides an opportunity for every child age 8-12 to play ball. No players sit on the bench in this league as everyone plays in all of their team's games, weeknights only, beginning at 6 p.m. at the various playgrounds.

The Belmont Skating Rink gives children and adults a chance to skate, play hockey or figure skate. The facility is open seven days a week with special times set aside for public skating, pre-school and adult skating, skating and figure skating lessons and all levels of hockey for both boys and girls.

The skating lesson levels include; pre-school, children's beginner, children's advanced beginner, children's figure skating and adult. The hockey programs include; beginner's, elementary boys, girls middle school and high school, junior high and adult. For over 53 years, Rosen Pharmacy has served Belmont and surrounding communities. The "then" and the "now" are quite different. The most recent growth, quite obviously, has been the new store front pictured here - we've put on a new face that we're so proud of our buttons are bursting.

When dad started this business (and the tracks ran in front of our store) he had a goal to make our pharmacy withstand the test of time - that goal was to satisfy the customer's needs and keep him coming back. Dad's still around and enjoying the repeat business we've earned.

Along with the pharmacy our Belmont Medical Supply is able to provide all your home health needs. We sell, rent and service all our equipment.

Message from the Republicans

By B.L. AVERBACH
Special to The Citizen-Herald

Local Republican politics is centered around the Belmont Republican Town Committee. This, and the corresponding Democratic group, is organized in accordance with state law, MGL Chapter 92, and the membership is elected every four years on the presidential preference primary ballot.

The Town Committee interacts with the State Committee, it participates in the election of the state committeeman and committeewoman, and is involved in the selection of the delegates to the preprimary convention.

The state committee elects the national committeemen and women and the delegates to the national convention. In addition to the formal structure of state and national committees, there is an active information network that keeps the Town Committee aware of the national issues and the positions of the party on congressional matters.

Members of the state Legislature also visit to discuss political developments, and the Town Committee provides a forum for candidates in their quest for office.

The local Town Committee is the first rung in the political ladder, and the business of recruiting candidates for representative and state senator, participating in the state convention, and in organizing the local participation in the state and national elections campaigns are important functions of this group.

We have just completed the presidential election and are about to start the mid-term gubernatorial cycle. The Republicans have several attractive candidates for governor, and these, along with candidates for the other offices, will soon be making appearances before the committee to solicit support in the primary campaign.

This is a year of excitement in Republican circles. We sense that there is an opportunity to elect a Republican governor, and that all of the Democratic incumbents are vulnerable because of the extraordinarily poor performance of the executive and the legislature.

Taxes amid fees have been raised, aid to the cities and towns have been slashed, and there is a perception that the state government is out of control.

The Republican party in Massachusetts has been considered to be more liberal than the national party, but this is changing. We are encouraged by the number of new registrants and by the number of inquiries on how to become active in party politics.

Discussions with these new Republicans indicate a desire to return to more conservative political values, and the Republicans are seen as the vehible for such a restructuring.

The political pendulum will certainly not swing to the far right, but will probably settle closer to the center, in keeping with the consensus in the national party.

Town politics are non-partisan. This is certainly evident on attending a Town Meeting, or the meetings of any of the town committees. With the new cuts in state aid, however, some difficult choices will have to be made. The way in which these choices will be made will, of necessity, reflect the changes in political posture of the town.

There are strong feelings against raising taxes and fees, and the positions taken may well mirror the positions taken by the two parties on similar state issues. There will thus be an unspoken partisan viewpoint in these local debates, but we are all determined to avoid even the appearance of partisan politics in town affairs.

I urge all belmont citizens to become involved in political life, and since I am partisan, I hope that you will contact me, and I will make certain that you will be called to work with us.

Message from Democrats

By BARBARA MIRANDA
Special to the Citizen-Herald

The Belmont Democratic Town Committee is the grass-roots component of the Massachusetts Democratic Party in Belmont. Members include men and women from every precinct in town who support the principles of the Democratic Party. Thirty-five voting members are elected by Belmont's Democratic voters in presidential primary years and the committee also has a large number of associate members who participate fully in planning and activities, including serving as delegates to state conventions. Associate members are nominated and elected at regular meetings of the committee and can become voting members as vacancies occur.

The purpose of the BDTC is to provide an avenue for Democrats in town to participate in politics. Through public meetings, forums, and speakers, we provide information about Democratic candidates and issues. We also work with other Democrats in the state in the development of party policies.

The BDTC does not endorse or support as a committee any candidates for local offices in Belmont, but does endorse candidates for offices such as state representative, state senator, district attorney, congressman, and others, and actively works for their election. We also have sponsored forums featuring candidates for these offices, as well as non-partisan forums in local elections. We meet regularly for lively discussions of local, state and national issues.

The committee also sponsored a talk by Jim Braude, executive director of the Tax Equity Alliance of Massachusetts.

Any registered Democratic voter in Belmont is welcome to join the BDTC. The next meeting is tentatively scheduled for Sept. 21. For more information call our membership chairperson, Diane Palmer, at 484-0854.

Officers for 1989-90 are: chair, Barbara Miranda; vice-chair, Joe Autilio; secretary, Lauren Coyne; treasurer, John Buckley; and affirmative action chair, Gloria Milstein. Any of the officers would be happy to provide further information about the committee.

Watertown's Town Hall

Watertown oldest in the county

Incorporated in 1630, Watertown is the oldest community in Middlesex County. It is home for a diverse population of some 35,000 people.

Watertown experienced the Industrial Revolution early, aided by natural water power from the Charles River falls. In 1816, the U.S. Arsenal was located along the Charles. Considerable manufacturing activity continues today alongside a substantial retail base.

Watertown consists of four square miles of land. It enjoys easy access to Boston thanks to the nearby Massachusetts Turnpike, Soldiers Field Road and Fresh Pond Parkway.

Demographically, Watertown reflects incomes and occupational levels consistent with Greater Boston. A typical household earns over $36,000, while almost a third are employed in executive and professional occupations. more than half the dwellings are owner-occupied.

Politically, the town is heavily Democratic. More than 60 percent of the voting population are registered Democrats. The town is run by a town council/town meeting form of government.

Much of the town's retail activity occurs along Arsenal St., where the Watertown Mall and the newer Arsenal Mall compete for retail business. Manufacturing firms employ twice as many people as retailers, however; the total employment is more than 6,000. Many local companies are engaged in high technology and related enterprises.

Looking to the future, Watertown is unlikely to experience population growth. In fact, the town population appears to have peaked around 1960, when it approached 40,000. The town is changing dramatically, however, with the explosion of real estate prices in Greater Boston.

Boys and Girls Club serving area youth

The Watertown Boys and Girls Club, 25 Whites Ave., offers a myriad of activities for boys and girls of all ages in Watertown and surrounding communities.

Junior (ages 12-14) and senior (ages 15-high school senior) boys and girls are offered gym activities, swimming and basketball.

The recently-renovated pool at the Boys and Girls Club offers swim lessons for youngsters, adult lap swim and open swim hours for all ages.

Also available is a game room, with air hockey, table tennis, pool, bumper pool and table games offered.

It's Easier To Build A Boy, Than Mend A Man.

"They said to start him as soon as possible...so we did. At the earliest ages we encouraged him to read, to play sports, even to learn the trumpet. But we didn't urge him on spiritually. Not at all."

Brad's parents can go on for hours describing the pain they now endure over their son's reckless lifestyle. They're sure his getting involved with those so called "friends" didn't help. He's grown now -- even lives in another city, but it keeps getting worse. The divorce, now the drinking. They know it's not their problem anymore, but their hearts just won't agree.

Millions of parents know how Brad's mom and dad feel. Most will readily say it is easier to build a boy than mend a man.

WATERTOWN

Watertown's financial picture

Watertown's Fiscal Year 1990 budget of $49 million increased less than four percent over its FY89 budget.

The largest single department budget is that of the schools, which will cost $16 million to run. Due to rising costs of education and declining enrollment, the School Committee closed two elementary schools - the Phillips and Marshall schools - and the East Junior High School, at the close of the 1987-88 school year. The Marshall School was housed in a complex, known as the West/Marshall, because it also housed the West Junior High School, which no longer exists.

Instead, the West/Marshall building now houses the new middle school for sixth, seventh and eighth grade students.

Other town department heads were asked by Town Manager Rodney Irwin to level-fund their budgets wherever possible, with the exception of allowing for a 5-percent salary increase.

The Department of Public Works' $5.5 million budget is next in line. Over $2 million of that budget covers the costs of garbage collection.

The Police Department asked for, and received $3.4 million, while the Fire Department has a $3.8 million budget.

The general government budget, which includes the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority cost of water and sewer service, is $5.4 million.

Retirement system expenses for the town for FY90 are $4.1 million. Medical, unemployment, and building and vehicle insurance are expected to cost $3.3 million.

The remainder of the town budget funds the following departments: town manager, town council, election, auditor, assessors, treasurer/collector, town clerk, purshasing, town attorney, personnel, data processing, community development and planning, town hall, civil defense, health, multi-service, council on aging, veterans, library, recreation, and skating.

Questions newcomers often ask

By PAM BIRCHENOUGH
Special to the Star

For the convenience of Winchester's newcomers, representatives from the Town Clerk's and Manager's Offices, the Board of Health, Department of Public Works (DPW) and Recreation Department have answered their most commonly asked questions.

The Recreation Department receives the most calls from newcomers wanting to know where to swim in town. Right now, the answer is nowhere. Wedge Pond, and more recently Leonard Beach and Sandy Beach in Medford, have closed.

Activities apart from swimming, however, are most likely organized by the Recreation Department. In addition to offering programs for children such as gymnastics, dance, art, music, winter ski lessons, summer day camp and tennis lessons for all ages, the Recreation Department registers all community education programs and sponsors free Mill Pond concerts. A quarterly brochure from the Recreation Department is mailed to Winchester residents outlining programs, fees and all necessary information.

Representatives agreed that inquiries most often heard at the Board of Health, DPW and Town Clerk's and Manager's Offices concern the transfer station. The transfer station has an unlisted telephone number, which is 721-7149. The station is located on Cross Street and open Tuesday and Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Thursday 12 noon to 8 p.m. and Friday and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Dumping permits are issued from the Board of Health, which is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and located on the first floor of the Town Hall. Residents must present proof of residence, licence plate number of the dumping vehicle and $20 to obtain a permit.

All household rubbish can be dumped by residents, but a contractor must be hired to excavate commercial building debris.

Newcomers often contact the DPW (located on Lake Street, not at the Town Hall) to find out which of Winchester's four reservoirs their water comes from. When a resident wants to know if a tree onon his or her property is dying — another common inquiry — the DPW refers them to the Forestry and Highway Department at 721-7106.

In Winchester, politics is a people skill

By DAN CHANE

As brilliance flashes from flint upon steel, so too the shimmering gold weathervane, high above Winchester Town Hall, strikes pride in the hearts of townspeople.

Truly a building of the people, Town Hall for 100 years has been the gracious center of the public business and its political affairs.

Beyond the building, however, is our venerable yankee town meeting form of government — which includes the elected five member Board of Selectmen, the executive body of the town — and Town Manager who is responsible for the administrative aspect of town affairs.

Some say this form of local government is not the most efficient way of doing the public business anymore. Still, after over 350 years, it is the only political structure that thrives on individual participation, and fosters personal contact between citizen and "the system".

The corporate body of Winchester — town meeting — consists of 192 members elected from the eight precincts to serve three years.

Basically, town meeting pays the bills, borrows when necessary, creates special committees, and reviews zoning and the town.

It is the lively, twice a year, local forum that gives all — even those not elected as voting members — the chance to be heard on all matters of local import.

Equally important to Winchester are the nine various boards and committees directly elected by the voters and the five or more subcommittees elected by these boards.

Simple arithmetic tells us that there are nearly 300 opportunities for the Winchester citizens to get vitally involved in local affairs through town elections or varied appointments by the elected boards.

Further, there are well over thirty ways to get involved in most aspects of town government administration through application to, and appointment by, our Board of Selectmen to the committees and boards directly under its charge.

To cap it off, Town Manager has power of appointment for about thirteen department heads. Citizens with the required skills are cordially welcomed to apply whenever a position opens.

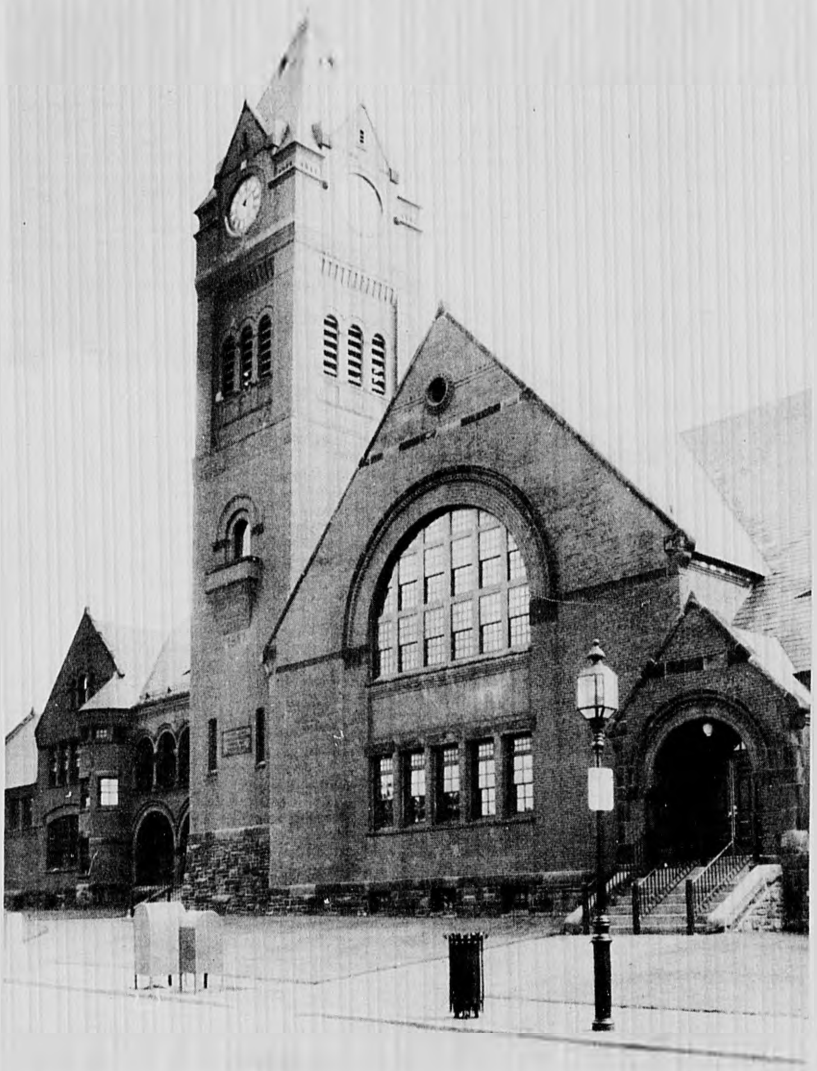

A final and perhaps most vital way to become involved — and there are 21,450 positions open at present — is to go out and vote at each local election.

In our town meeting form of government, where each of us can count if we make an effort, the critical observation is often better left subordinate to constructive personal action.

It is surprising how easily "they" becomes "us" as one begins contributing to the well-being of Winchester — or anyplace!

Winchester has been blessed too, over long years, with a caliber of citizen where personal convenience is far outweighed by civic spirit.

This one fact has had the long range result that as Winchester has grown into one of many large suburban communities, but a few miles from Boston, almost alone it has been able to retain a lovely traditional flavor so characteristic of the old New England town.

Winchester's renovated Town Hall

Welcome from the Town Manager

Dear Winchester Resident:

Welcome to the Town of Winchester.

I hope your move into our community will be a positive experience, and that you will truly enjoy Winchester with its many amenities, fine muncipal services and its dedicated citizens.

Winchester has had a long tradition of citizen involvement in Town government. Whether or not you have been involved in government or in community activities where you previously lived we urge you to participate in Winchester's government. We have many committees and activities needing volunteers.

Feel free to call the offices listed or visit any office to obtain information or register your concerns regarding municipal services.

Best wishes and good luck!

Sincerely

W. Chadwick Mauer

Town Manager

Town offers affluence, and access to Boston

Winchester combines easy access to Boston with a suburban lifestyle. It is one of the most affluent towns in Massachusetts.

The area known as Winchester was created in 1850 from parts of Medford, Woburn and West Cambridge (now Arlington). It was named after Col. William E. Winchester, a Watertown resident. The Winchester area was originally settled in 1640 and was successively called Waterfield, Woburngates, South Woburn and Blackhorse Village.

Today Winchester is a tree-lined bedroom community just a 13-minute train ride from downtown Boston. It encompasses 21,000 people and 6 square miles of land.

Winchester's population is white-collar and highly educated. Of those who work, almost half are managers or professionals. Many work in Boston because of the convenient access provided by the Boston-to-Lowell train. The train has passed through Winchester since the inception of the Boston-to-Lowell route in 1835.

Winchester is conservative by Massachusetts standards. Roughly 40 percent of the town's registered voters are Democrats, while 26 percent are registered Republicans. The remaining one-third of the registered voters are Independent. Town government takes the form of a representative town meeting.

Irish people outnumber other ethnic groups in Winchester, comprising 30 percent of the population. People of Italian descent represent some 25 percent, while the people of English ancestry are approximately 18 percent of the total.

Winchester is heavily residential, as more than three-quarters of the dwellings in town are single-family units. Approximately half the dwellings in town were built in 1950 or earlier.

Winchester has comparatively little industry, but a considerable service economy. On the retail side, Winchester has undergone considerable revitaliztion in recent years.

Newcomer's Club offers help

Meeting people in a new town can be a difficult task, but with the help of Winchester's Newcomer's Club, that stint is made a little more pleasant.

According to Newcomer's President Katie Conley, the club was formed approximately 15 years ago by the Winchester College Club, a group which decided something must be done to make people moving into town feel welcome. With such an influx of people, an organization was needed to provide support, said Conley.

Thus began the Newcomer's Club, which today boasts a membership of approximately 50 couples. Conley pointed out that membership is not limited to couples, and that anyone is welcome to join.

The benefit of the club is that it provides new folks in town with a resource for information.

"Most of us have gone through this in the past," said member and publicity officer Jennifer Regentz. "If you're looking for a dentist or a doctor or a place to buy shoes, we can provide that information."

The club has a wide age-range among its members as well, said Regentz.

"It's sort of a guaranteed way to have a social life," added Conley. With monthly activities ranging from Super Bowl parties to coffee hours, and socials to luncheons, there is plenty of opportunity to meet new people. Conley said most activities are informal "so you don't have to worry about coming."

One other aspect of the Newcomer's Club is the Diner's Club. Although not all Newcomer's participate, it is an option open to all members. Four times a year, a group of four couples from the club gather for a dinner. Three times, each couple is a guest, and the other time, they serve as the host and hostess, said Regentz.

"It's another way for people to get to know each other on a more intimate basis," she added.

As far as the activities of the club, Regentz said it usually depends on the needs of the group. Future plans include a trip to the Boston Pops as well as museum trips.

According to Conley, people on average tend to retain their membership for approximately five years.

"A lot of clubs have a specific purpose," said Conley. "Newcomer's exists for the sole purpose of making people feel comfortable who move into town. That's our objective."

The club also hosts monthly coffees on the third Tuesday of each month at 10 a.m. at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church. Babysitting is provided.

Most years, the Newcomer's Club hosts a Christmas party for all of its members. However, they are often faced with the difficulty of setting a date which does not conflict with family and office gatherings.

For tickets or information on the Newcomer's Club, call Regentz at 729-8240 or Pat Carucci, 729-0123.

Meeting of the minds

A bird's eye view of Town Meeting deep in discussion on proposals for dealing with the town's fiscal troubles.

TM approves spending shuffle

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Town Meeting gave its stamp of approval to selectmen's recommendations for dealing with the town's current $775,000 shortfall.

Town Meeting took favorable action on the four motions with minimal discussion Monday night during a Special Town Meeting.

Winchester was hit with a $775,000 shortfall after Governor Michael Dukakis announced during the summer months that a reduction in local aid was necessary. In addition to reduced local aid, fewer reversions and less interest generated by investments contributed to the town's fiscal dilemma.

However, actions taken by Town Meeting Monday night take care of $580,000 of that shortfall, while the remaining $195,000 is expected to be generated from increases in fees at the transfer station approved by selectmen last week.

"We're here to solve a ($.75 million) problem," said Selectman Chairman Thomas Schmitt in addressing Town Meeting. Schmitt likened the town's dilemma to a story about Justice Wendell Holmes. As the story goes, Holmes could not find his ticket on board a train one time. The conductor told him not to worry about it. Holmes responded that it was not the ticket he was worried about, he was just not sure of where he was going.

"Finding the money is only part of the problem," Schmitt said of Winchester's fiscal dilemma. It is where the town is going in the future that is of greater concern, he added. Schmitt said

Single tax rate retained

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Commercial and residential property taxation will remain equal, selectmen decided Tuesday night.

In a brief public hearing, selectmen discussed the possibility of accepting tax classification. However, the board unanimously voted to retain level taxation.

Director of Assessments Dan McGurl noted that any change in classification would simply shift the burden of taxation to the business community, and would not raise additional revenues for the town.

Winchester is approximately 92 percent residential property, with the remaining eight percent commerical.

Chamber of Commerce President Anthony Albiani noted that the business community is in favor of level taxation.

"To shift nearly $1 million on approximately 7 percent of the population seems unfair," said Albiani.

Albiani noted that Winchester's commercial/industrial base is small. "It's a very small percentage. Almost the smallest in the area," said Albiani.

In a letter to selectmen prior to their meeting, Albiani noted that with the small number of businesses in town, the impact of a tax change on residential property owners in terms of savings would be minimal. Conversely, he said, " ... it would have a very negative impact on our business or commercial base or future development. Towns that have adopted the tax classification have at least three times the commercial property we have in Winchester," said Albiani.

"We feel it would be an unfair burden on the business community, and would send out a negative message we feel would have a serious impact on future growth in our town," Albiani said in his letter to selectmen.

Selectman Robert Deering said tax classification was initiated for towns whose residents were carrying a heavier tax burden than business and commercial property owners.

"Classification has its place in a community of heavy commercial or industrial (use)," said Deering. "The intent of tax classification does not fall onto towns like Winchester."

Selectman Steve Powers said he does not believe businesses are using "an inordinate amount of the town's services compared with residents." Instead, Powers commended business owners for their prudence.

Selectmen voted 4-0 for level taxation. Selectman Judith Muggia was absent.

Borrowing money

Winchester will need to borrow approximately $1.1 million to cover bills for a month. According to Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer, "This is to get us through a cash flow problem we're currently having."

Maurer said the state's decision to provide local aid payments semi-annually rather than quarterly as was done prior to this past summer has caused problems for the town.

The loan will reportedly cost the town approximately $7,000 to $7,800 for the 30-day period. The loan will be repaid as tax bills are collected.

"This is the first time in about six years the town has had to borrow in anticipation of taxes," said Maurer.

Group seeks formula for fiscal future

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Winchester's financial future has been on many minds, and the Alliance for Winchester's Future has decided to take steps toward educating the public.

The Alliance has planned a community forum Sept. 28 at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Hall auditorium to discuss "Winchester's Fiscal Crisis: Planning Long-range Solutions."

Spear-headed by former selectman and Alliance Chairman Lawrence Smith, the event is intended to open up discussion of ideas for multi-year solutions to the town's current fiscal problems. In a sense, said Smith, the event is a kick-off for what promises to be a lively fiscal debate at the Spring Town Meeting.

According to Smith, the meeting will be essentially educational. Smith said his group hopes to inform residents of the options the town faces in the future, and give town officials some long-term planning ideas.

Among the panelists are three former Finance Committee chairmen — Lorna Tseckares, Robert Frank, and Chester Haskell; as well as two incumbent town officials, Selectman Chairman Thomas Schmitt and Capital Planning Chairman Peter VanAken.

The panelists will comment on each of four topics. These include; what factors contributed to the current crisis; the disadvantages of short-term solutions; the advantages of multi-year planning; and the options available to solve the problem.

Parents implored to join drug battle

Lt. James Pierce agrees drugs are present in Winchester, but says addressing the problem has to be a joint educational effort.

And included in that educational process are parents. At the local level, that means parents in Winchester, he said.

Pierce was invited to speak before the Rotary Club last week in conjunction with President George Bush's recent war on drugs campaign.

"The national picture is not good," said Pierce. "Until the money is appropriated, all we're doing at the local level is putting our finger in the dike."

Pierce said one factor which troubles him locally has been the lack of response by parents to an offer by Pierce and the Winchester police to speak to parent groups about adolescents and drugs.

"Nobody's ever called. We want to talk to the parents," said Pierce. "Unfortunately, I think the parents don't want to hear it."

According to Pierce, Winchester is part of Northeast Metropolitan Law Enforcement Council. Through NEMLEC, Winchester and surrounding towns have targeted and seized drugs and dealers.

"Drug usage affects everyone — the public, private, police, teachers ... There's no area that is immune," he said.

The problem, said Pierce, is that drug dealers and users "don't care what they do to the people further down the line."

Pierce said one of the major drugs available and used today is cocaine, referring to it as "the drug of choice." While many people may believe marijuana was "a drug of the 60s," Pierce assured Rotary members that it is "alive and well and living in Winchester."

In his discussion, Pierce outlined a number of drugs available in today's society. The problem, he said, comes with the inconsistency in drugs. "Some are made in the home, some in a lab. They could be cutting it with manitol or they could be cutting it with rat poison," he said.

Valium, said Pierce, is "one of the most commonly abused drugs we deal with." However, by and large, Pierce said he sees the greatest problems with alcohol.

"Alcohol is one of the most devastating drugs we have," said Pierce.

Winchester High School Principal John Ritchie is ready to take on challenges in his new position.

Principal Ritchie settling in at WHS

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

When high school principal Dr. John Ritchie stops a student in the hall and asks to see that student in his office later — it doesn't always mean trouble.

In fact, Ritchie is usually just hoping for a nice sit-down chat, a get-to-know-you kind of conversation. For the last few months, that's exactly what newly-appointed principal Ritchie has been striving to do — get to know the students, teachers and staff at the high school.

Ritchie replaces retiring principal Vincent Larocco, and officially set up his space in the corner office this fall. Although being "the new principal on the block" can carry an inordinate amount of responsibility as well as a pretty spacious proving ground, the 39-year-old Ritchie appears relaxed and ready. The new post seems to suit him just fine.

From his beginning years at Dartmouth, where Ritchie earned his bachelor's degree in English, he said he was always interested in the field of education and "always wanted to become a teacher."

He later earned his master's degree at Harvard University and just recently received his doctorate from Harvard as well.

After graduation, Ritchie made the change from student to teacher. An English teacher for seven years in the Brookline school system, Ritchie then moved on to the position of "housemaster," or the equivalent of an assistant principal, a position he held for six years before coming to Winchester.

The switch from teacher to principal was in essence a move closer to the students for Ritchie. His interest in school-wide issues that affect students and the ability to deal with the student on a broader range could be achieved in a more adminstrative role, Ritchie said.

What's a regular day for a high school principal? That's just the

Former Veteran's Services chief Howard E. Chase Jr. dead at 68

Howard E. Chase Jr., former director of Winchester Veteran's Services, died Sept. 15 at his home after several months' illness. He was 68.

Employed by the town for 10 years prior to his retirement in 1986, Mr. Chase was the veteran's and workers compensation agent.

However, according to Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer and others, Mr. Chase went beyond the duties of his job description, and will be remembered as a warm-hearted man who was always willing to help out.

"Howard also served the town as an unofficial social worker in that if people in town had a problem, they came and talked to him about it," said Maurer. "Even if they weren't veterans, Howard went out of his way to solve their problems.

"As far as I knew, they were taken care of," he said. "Howard always seemed to know how to deal with people in a very compassionate way and solve the problems they had."

Assistant Town Clerk Dot Cleary agreed: "He was a very warm-hearted person. Anytime anyone was in trouble, he would help out." When people called with no food or no place to stay, Cleary said the Town Clerk's office referred them to Mr. Chase. "Howard would find

According to police reports, the man was transported from the Arlington Police Department by Officers Stephen Roche and Thomas Groux.

Saturday, Sept. 16
6:15 p.m.
Police responded to a report of breaking and entering on Highland Avenue. According to reports, Officer Jonathan Dean spoke with the residents of the home who had returned home to find someone had broken into their home.

Police reports said forced entry had been gained via a cellar door. Taken from the home were a color television and VCR. Although the upstairs area was gone through, the owners indicated they believed nothing was missing.

The case is under investigation.

2:35 p.m.
Officer Philip Coss responded to an accident on Swanton Street near McKay Avenue involving personal injury.

According to police reports, a 32-year-old Swanton Street woman was complaining of neck pain after being involved in a collision.

Police reports said an unknown car suddenly applied its brakes in front of the 1987 Jeep Cherokee driven by the Swanton Street woman. A third car, a 1985 Pontiac Sedan, was driven by a Stoneham woman. The Stoneham woman told police she attempted to step on her brakes but could not stop in time.

The unknown car had left the area, said reports.

The Cherokee suffered damage to its bumper and tail end. The Sedan was damaged extensively on the front end.

Friday, Sept. 15
12:37 a.m.
While on foot patrol making building checks in the downtown area, Officer C.P. Austin noted a panel of glass missing from the garage door at Winchester Gulf station.

Sargent John Guarante responded to assist. According to police reports, it appeared the intruder entered through the window, and exited through the front door which was ajar.

The owner of the station reported nothing appeared to be missing. Police cleared the area.

7:45 p.m.
Officer Peter MacDonnell responded to a report of breaking and entering on Cambridge Street. According to the report given to police by the homeowners, the break had occurred at some time between the hours of 5:30 and 7:45 p.m.

Entrance was gained through a kitchen window in the rear of the home. Officer Lawrence Hill responded to assist.

Further investigation of the home revealed that the bedroom and a jewelry box had been disrupted, but that no other rooms were disrupted.

The owners of the home were unsure at the time of the report whether or not anything was missing from the home.

The investigation continues.

12:14 p.m.
Officer Theodore Yeanacopolis responded to a motor vehicle accident on Main Street involving a 1988 Econovan and a 1985 Ford Escort.

Police reports indicated a Woburn man driving the Econovan was doing a three-point turn when it collided with the Escort driven by a 30-year-old Woburn woman which was passing by.

The Econovan sustained minor damage. The Escort had damage to the left door and rear fender.

The Woburn man was issued a citation for failure to use caution when backing up a motor vehicle.

the local aid problem is "only the tip of the iceburg. There is a larger problem below the surface."

Schmitt noted that if the town chose to make personnel cuts to make up for the shortfall, it would have cost the town an additional 30 employees — approximately the same number cut during last Spring Town Meeting.

Town Meeting approved the four steps recommended by selectmen and supported by the Finance and School Committees.

Short-term solutions

Town Meeting unanimously approved a motion to transfer $80,000 from the Town Hall Renovation account left over from that project. According to Schmitt, the funds would normally revert into the general fund for next year. Town Meeting's approval would simply take that step a little earlier than usual, noted Schmitt.

The second motion proposed transferring $255,700 from the stabilization account to the capital improvement account. The funds will pay for previously voted capital projects including the purchase of police and Department of Public Works (DPW) vehicles as well as asbestos removal at the DPW park garage and in some school buildings. The motion easily gained the two-thirds vote necessary to pass.

The third motion also transfers funds from the stabilization account, drawing that fund down to zero. A total of $144,300 will be used to fund water systems improvements previously approved by Town Meeting in 1987 and 1988. These projects will take place on Swan Road and Main Street.

The fourth motion, cutting $100,000 from the current budget, passed by a majority voice vote without discussion. A total of $40,000 was cut from the municipal budget, while $60,000 was reduced from the school budget.

These reductions include funds for overtime, totalling $1,500 from the assessors budget; $1,000 from the Town Clerk's office; $1,000 from the Engineering department; and $20,000 from the recreation department. In addition, other expenses budgets were reduced in the library account ($2,500), highway account, ($9,000) and insurance ($5,000).

The school department's cut comes to $60,000 from the supplies and materials account. According to School Committee Member Donna Brandt Landry, the committee had "no interest" in further personnel reductions. "Supplies and materials is exactly that: textbooks, paper, worksbooks, art supplies," she said.

Landry said the cut was made "with regret, but with a cooperative spirit".

Attempts to amend

Former Selectman and Chairman of the Alliance for Winchester's Future Lawrence Smith proposed an amendment to the second motion, transferring funds from the stabilization account, to return those funds next year. Smith said the reduction in that account was justified at this time "only because of the extreme emergency situation the town finds itself in."

However, opponents of the measure said approval of the amendment would hamper the budget process next year and assure the need for a referendum question to override Proposition 2½ in the spring.

"I see nothing wrong with using that stabilization account today ... when we're in tough shape," said Town Meeting Member Michael Saraco.

The amendment failed by a voice vote.

them a place. Howard did a lot of good, especially for the veterans."

"Howard was one of those few individuals who never had a mean thing to say about anybody. That always impressed me about him," said Town Clerk Carolyn Ward. "I think that's an admirable quality.

"He was famous around here for doing good deeds, and very quietly. I don't think many realize how many people he really helped," said Ward. "He was a problem solver."

Born in Woburn Sept. 1, 1921, Mr. Chase was a life-long resident of Winchester. He attended Winchester schools and graduated from Winchester High School.

Mr. Chase attended Boston University Business Law and Management, and the Northeastern University School of Business Administration.

He was a member of the American Legion, Disabled American Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Friends of Winchester Hospital.

Mr. Chase was the husband of Florence (Pynn) Chase of Winchester; father of Marsha (Chase) Rice of Winchester and Robert H. Chase of Boston; grandfather of Wendy Rice and great-grandfather of Jessica Harris.

He also leaves his brother, John Stanley Chase of Chelmsford; and five sisters, Dorothy Roberts of Woburn, June Ricker of Tewksbury, Helen Vona of Stoneham, Betty Ann King of Warren, N.H. and Barbara Chase of Campton, N.H.

Funeral services were held in the First Baptist Church Sept. 19, followed by burial in Wildwood Cemetery. Arrangements were handled by the Lane Funeral Home.

Burlington man faces breaking, kidnapping, assault other charges

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

A 27-year-old Burlington man remains in jail after being charged with forced breaking and entering at night, parental kidnapping, assault and battery with a deadly weapon and violating a restraining order.

The man reportedly forcibly entered a Charles Road home, struck and injured one man with a tire iron and then took his four-year-old son from the home, said police reports.

The suspect was arraigned in Woburn District Court Sept. 17 where he pleaded not guilty. He is presently being held in Cambridge and awaits trial after not being able to make bail.

Police responded to a report of a violation of a restraining order on Charles Road Sept. 16 at 1:44 a.m. Upon arrival, police found the man's estranged wife and several other people in the home. According to police reports, the man attempted to gain entrance into the home, but was not allowed to do so. After being refused admittance, the man allegedly went around to the rear of the home and smashed the lower, rear door window, reaching in to unlock the door.

According to police, the suspect entered the home with a tire iron in hand. "Pushing and shoving" ensued with other visitors in the home, said reports, and a Charlestown man was allegedly pushed into a living room wall and struck in the head with the tire iron. Police reports indicated the man had a one-inch gash on his head, and that there was blood on the living room wall.

The suspect reportedly struggled with a Melrose man as well, said reports. Police were told that the man then took his four-year-old son from the home and fled in a white vehicle.

While police were taking reports, the suspect's estranged wife apparently received a number of short phonecalls from the man. Winchester police requested a wire tap from New England Telephone Security, and police monitored the calls.

The man finally agreed to return the child to the home provided no police were present. If he saw any police cars, reports said the man said "the deal would be off."

According to police reports, Officer Carl Fuller and Sgt. John Guarante waited in the home while other officers and cruisers moved to East Street near the tennis courts.

The suspect's wife and another person remained in the home with police. When the vehicle arrived, the child was dropped off. Cruisers on East Street were radioed and the 1981 Oldsmobile Delta 88 which dropped the child off was reportedly stopped at the intersection of George and Charles Roads.

The vehicle was operated by the suspect's girlfriend, who also had her daughter in the car. The suspect was not in the car at that time.

The woman was reportedly uncooperative to police with regard to the suspect's whereabouts. However, the suspect later emerged and was ordered to assume the prone position on the ground.

Police arrested the man and advised him of his Miranda rights. Police reports indicated the man had a bandage on his right forearm where he said he had cut himself on glass. He was transported to Winchester Hospital where he received 15 stitches.

The Charlestown man was also treated at Winchester Hospital and received eight stitches on the back of his head.

The Burlington man was tranported to Winchester Police station by Officers Peter Hersee and Carl Fuller, and booked by Lt. Charles Culhane.

Police reports said the man admitted to entering the home and taking the child. However, he said he did not strike the Charlestown man, said reports.

Winchester Kernels

Prop. 2½ override will be inevitable

By DAN CHANE
Special to the Star

Winchester Common begins to resemble its Boston counterpart as the trash barrels continue to overflow onto the ground on these last lovely weekends of the season.

Colonies of hornets swarm among discarded food wrappers, half eaten subs, and sticky sundae cups from Brigham's. All that is missing is a colorful drunk or two sprawled out in ignorant bliss under the trees.

This same picture presents itself in any public gathering place in town, on the weekends, and if local eyes sting at the sight, one wonders at the impression visitors are left with as they sniff the odor of yesterday'd lunch and hurriedly leave to enjoy areas of better civic comport.

Last Monday a Special Town Meeting was convened in order to choose which size band-aid to use in mending the fiscal 1990 budget.

Spending local reserves down to nothing is ridiculous — but what's left?

Can we get the money from the excess water and sewer revenues or shall we lay off more police and fire people? Let's reduce the D.P.W. staff some more! We could get further revenue by increasing dump fees — or by prematurely dissolving the entire Town Hall Committee so we can use what is left of its funding? And then there is always the school system — our singular hope for the future.

Since Spring Town Meeting we have heard nothing from either The Alliance for Winchester's Future or The Winchester Tax payers Association — the two citizen groups which advocate opposite sides of the 2½ issue - which have had great influence on the voting public.

Both groups purport to carry a "citizens banner" and both therefore should assume the deep responsibility of citizen education which goes with the charge.

Winchester, over the years, has maintained its healthful small town flavor and has built up many systems and programs that reinforce the belief that there is no better place, closer to the inner city, in which to live.

Years ago, in Our Town, one pointed out, with great civic passion, that Winchester was the best — and the town was never compared with any other place. We knew Wincheter was the best for we all put our hearts and souls (and our dollars) into it with great gusto.

Make no mistake about it, Winchester is going to have to override Proposition 2½ next year in order to prevent a general collapse of the services that have made the town what it is.

As Dorothy did in "The Wizard of Oz", we can look to the future wistfully, "Over The Rainbow", as we long for the imagined pot of gold — but in the end, like Dorothy, in order to save ourselves we will have to realize "There is no place like home."

Bailey supports chief's push to improve weapons

By R. BRADFORD BAILEY
Special to the Star

I am writing in response to Fiorvante A. Bares' thoughtful and well-reasoned letter to the editor entitled "Bares questions need for weapons" (Winchester Star, Sept. 14, 1989). While I agree with the writer's perspective that Winchester must carefully prioritize among the many urgent needs occasioned by our present financial crisis, I strongly disagree that the need for our police department to upgrade the capacity and quality of their service-issued firearms is not a seriously compelling matter.

Before discussing the substance of this issue, however, it is important to stress that the police department's fundraising initiative is a purely private endeavor. From this standpoint, I was somewhat surprised by the implicit criticism of the department's attempt to fund the upgrading project. As I see it, Chief Perritano should be praised, not chastised, for seeking to support this initiative solely through private contributions.

Clearly, the Chief had the option to include a weapons-oriented, line-item request in the public safety annual budget submitted to the town last Spring. Therefore, his decision to select an alternative approach, in my opinion, does not show a lack of control on the part of someone "administering" to the town of Winchester. Rather, it reveals a keen understanding, sensitivity and prescience to our financial predicament by our Police Chief which should be acknowledged and applauded.

As to the central issue involved in the discussion, the matter can be reduced to questioning whether the Winchester Police force faces true danger in its daily rounds and whether a need to upgrade their firearms truly exists. Sadly, the answer to both questions is yes.

Mr. Bares asks the question, "When was the last time (Winchester Police had to exchange fire) with the extremely bad guys populating the Winchester Corral?" While it wasn't exactly yesterday, I am sure many readers still recall the running gun-battle between Winchester Police and three fleeing bank robbers that occurred on Washington Street in 1980. To Lt. James Pierce and members of the department

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

McLean speaks in favor of improved police equipment

TO THE EDITOR:

The Winchester police are not "out of control" in requesting more fire power to better protect us and themselves against the greater fire power possessed by many criminals.

It is not the "extremely bad guys populating the Winchester corral" who should be the focus of concern, but rather those residing outside the "corral". Ninety percent of the housebreaks are committed individuals living outside of Winchester.

The donation of $1,000 by the Christopher Columbus Lodge was a generous gift of concerned citizens.

The needs of the police are in our best interests as well as theirs and to equate this to our failure to pay our tax obligations in not worthy as a response.

We are particularly fortunate to have public servants of the calibre we have. We should support them with appreciation and approval.

Donald E. McLean, M.D.

Clock is ticking on dump site

TO THE EDITOR:

Very early on a peaceful winter morning, John Morgan saw a dozen mallard ducks bobbing atop Library Pond in Winchester Center, where the Aberjona River pauses in its flow into Upper Mystic Lake. He asked a town official, "Why don't you do an autopsy on them?"

"They've been dead too long," he was told.

Morgan is not sure why state officials recently closed Sandy Beach on the Upper Mystic, but if the ducks are resting there, he knows it wasn't the fault of the lake.

Morgan is a former local police officer who is about to mark the 10th anniversary of his war against the town of Winchester.

You may remember him as the frustrated property owner whose front porch overlooks 25,000 cubic yards of downtown Boston. The lounges, shops and theaters started arriving at the Winchester sand pit in January, 1980, when the state was making space in Boston's Park Square for its new Transportation Building.

In addition to all those buildings that fell off the trucks on their way to the hazardous waste landfill in Amesbury, Morgan also has identified about 2000 cubic yards of Toxic Surprise that arrived from the W.R. Grace properties near Alewife Brook in Cambridge.

Since our last report in April, 1986, Morgan has bludgeoned the town into spending $10,000 to find out what's inside the Toxic Surprise.

He is no happier about his view from the front porch now than he was a decade ago. It's as sad as ... well ... a flock of dead ducks floating through Winchester Square.

Morgan has just served notice on Winchester that he intends to sue the town and property owner Charles Ferrari for violation of the Toxic Dumping Act.

The town pretends to be his new-found pal, ever since he started piling up victories at Town Meeting. But Morgan did not fall off the truck that delivered the Hillbilly Ranch to his front lawn. He remembers, after seven years of war and front-page notoriety over the dump, the chairman of the board of selectmen wondering at a televised meeting, what's all this talk about a dump? It was news to him. "That one slipped by me," said the fellow who is now the Winchester Town Counsel.

There are piles of reports all over Town Hall. The lawsuit is Morgan's way of guarding them against any further spead of Alzheimer's.

He is in no hurry to bring the civil suit, but the Toxic Dumping Act is a criminal statute and the clock on the six-year statute of limitations is running.

The Supreme Court says the clock starts ticking from the moment of "public awareness" — in this case, a 1984 study by Hidell-Eyster & Associates, Inc. that found traces of arsenic, cyanide and stuff like that.

The study commissioned by the town was presented by EA Engineering, Science, and Technology, Inc. on May 30, but the town isn't exactly working overtime to get the news out.

"If I were a suspicious man, I might think they're treading water until the statute of limitations passes, so this is just my way of preserving our new friendship," says Morgan.

The new report found something the first report didn't — water, at between 50 and 60 feet at all four test wells.

That is terribly bad news for the mallard ducks.

The state has put the dumpsite on its investigations list. Based on the earlier analysis, the state was willing to allow the Park Square grave to be covered and sealed. But finding it floating on a water table is something else. It may order the stuff removed. In 1985, the state said that if the town wanted to remove it, it could only have hauled by "a licensed hazardous waste transporter" to "an approved sanitary landfill authorized to receive such materials."

Massachusetts doesn't have one!

It had one in Amesbury, but closed it in 1984. That was where the state was sending Park Square in 1980 when it slipped off those trucks in Winchester.

The sand pit dump is located between Morgan's property near the Woburn border and the old Woburn Loop line of the Boston & Maine Railroad.

New test wells along the Loop, which the state has refused to convey to the town for a planned development of the area, discovered the same water table at 32 feet.

What runs under the Loop and Ye Old Park Square is a stream once known as Russell Brook. Where does it go? It goes into the Aberjona River, about midway between the Woburn wells that are at issue in the cancer deaths liability case against (among others) W.R. Grace, and the mallard ducks floating into Upper Mystic Lake.

This could put the state in a ridiculous pickle. It is fond of imposing $50,000 and $100,000 fines against little folks who spill a can of motor oil on a coastal pigeon retreat, and its own contractor mixes a section of downtown Boston in a sand pit with dangerous chemicals that are now leaching into a mallard ducks habitat en route to Sandy Beach.

Only a hypocrite would leave it there.

And only the idiot state bureaucracy would prohibit itself from relocating it.

Since the town cannot escape a criminal liability suit by letting the clock run, there is no reason to delay the test announcements any longer.

It is going to be mighty interesting to read the list of ingredients in Winchester's recipe for Toxic Surprise. Plus, we gourmets want to know how the ducks are being basted, and why they glow in the dark.

Wendell H. Woodman

Welton comments on Star article

TO THE EDITOR:

The fine article by Ellen Fanning in the Sept. 7 Star about the display at the Winchester Public Library did a good job of explaining the efforts of Genevieve Lynch to help children cope with the death of a friend or relative. Your readers should know, too, that they can obtain a copy of the bibliography compiled by Mrs. Lynch by contacting the library, which is at 80 Washington St.

Thank you for an informative article.

Alliance hosts Sept. 28 meeting on town's future

TO THE EDITOR:

The Alliance for Winchester's Future is pleased to invite you to an important public forum concerning our Town's fiscal dilemma. On Thursday, Sept. 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Hall Auditorium, the Alliance will present a panel of current and former Town officials to discuss "Winchester's Fiscal Crisis — Planning Long-Range Solutions."

Our distinguished panelists will be Tom Schmitt, Bob Frank, Chet Haskell, Lorna Tseckares, and Peter Vanaken. Larry Smith, chairman of the Alliance, will serve as moderator.

Refreshments will be available.

It is painfully clear that Winchester is at fiscal cross-roads, demanding a thorough, systematic reassessment of our approach to the Town's fiscal matters. This panel will help focus attention on the consequences of short-sighted responses and will begin a dialogue on the necessity for long-range fiscal planning. The topic is vital to the future of Winchester.

We hope that you will attend to hear the panelists and to participate in the discussion that will follow.

We look forward to seeing you on Sept. 28.

Alliance for Winchester's Future
Lawrence T. Smith, Chairman

Sports group seeks support

TO THE EDITOR:

The first meeting of the Winchester Sports Foundation was an eye opener to many attending, and hopefully by reading this, many more eyes will be opened. People didn't realize that, even with level funding, next year's athletic budget would be drastically cut by $60,000. Level funding might not be possible next year, and the cuts could very well be greater.

Many towns are experiencing these cuts now, and eliminating part of their sports program, such as freshman sports, or sports that require the rental of out of town facilities. Don't forget, Winchester has no swimming pool or hockey rink. These cuts will affect all the youth in Winchester. Once a sport is cut, it will be difficult to reinstate it.

The town's financial problems are not going to go away. That's why this foundation is being set up now. Our founders fund will build over time, and we will be running fund raisers to supplement it. We know that town meeting is very supportive of the youth of Winchester regarding athletics, but help will be needed.

Let's not wait until it's too late. Support the Winchester Sports Foundation now.

Lucille Bourque
President
Winchester Sports Foundation

Abortion letters are addressed

TO THE EDITOR:

Let us put statistics and polemics aside. Legalizing abortions does not mandate them nor will outlawing abortions eliminate them. The choice to continue or terminate a pregnancy must be dictated solely by the collective conscience of those involved; it is not fodder for a legislative or judicial forum.

Would it not better serve our own humanity to address the root causes of unwanted pregnancies and seek to eliminate them?

Soccer club seeks equipment

The following letter was received for publication in the Star.

Dear Past and Present Soccer Coaches:

We need your help! There are thousands of soccer balls, bags, cones and spare shirts through out Winchester, that are NOT being used anymore.

Where are they? They are in your basements, atties, garages, and sheds. If you do have any of these articles, we would appreciate your leaving them at 23 Nelson St. (on the porch). If you can not drop them off, please call 729-1081, leave a message and someone from the Soccer Club will pick these articles up.

Thank you for your help.

Bailey supports chief on weapons

shot at during the exchange of gun fire, I am sure the incident remains indelible and vivid.

Similarly, I am certain that a day does not go by in which Detective James Gray does not think about the gunshot wound he received as he approached a car on Cross Street during the investigation of an armed robbery in 1983.

Recently, we have been much luckier here in Winchester. From my inside perspective as a local prosecutor, however, I respectfully suggest to Mr. Bares and opponents of the fundraising plan that our good fortune is simply owing to luck and not geographic, economic or social circumstance. Among the last cases I prosecuted before leaving the DA's office in June were three matters that help illustrate how truly real and close by danger is.

Mr. Bares might be surprised to learn that as recently as January, Lowell police apprehended an individual at the tail-end of a week-long succession of violent robberies involving a handgun. From facts revealed in open court during the investigation, it appeared that the robber moved up Route 93 north, choosing random robbery targets in Woburn, Stoneham, Tewksbury and Lowell. It is chilling to learn that minutes before he forced a 17-year-old employee to the store of a Woburn restaurant at gunpoint, the robber spent approximately 20 minutes allegedly "casing out" a Winchester store located less than one-half mile away.

In a separate incident in February, Wilmington police apprehended two men after a high-speed car chase following a masked armed robbery of a Wilmington convenience store. Fifteen minutes before that robbery, the men had robbed a Billerica store and fired a shot at the clerk. After further investigation, it was also learned that these men had recently robbed Lowell and Reading stores at gunpoint and had again shot at the clerk in one of those incidents as well.

But for a patch of ice that caused one of these fleeing felons to fall, it seems likely that the robbers would have shot it out with police, using Taurus .357 Magnum loaded with copper-tipped hollow-point bullets one of the robbers dropped when he fell. But for the absence of a Winchester branch of the chain store victimized in all four of these robberies, it is also possible that the final scene could have played out in Winchester.

Finally, still active is an investigation I handled concerning multiple armed robberies allegedly committed by the same two persons between January and April of this year at locations in communities surrounding our town. Mr. Bares might be interested to learn that this investigation focused on "corrals" such as the Cafe Escadrille in Burlington, a sporting goods store in Woburn, and a Stoneham candy store. As the investigation also included robberies in Bedford, Wakefield, Wilmington and Reading, one can only wonder why Winchester was spared from this spree.

It is a sad fact that with today's combination of the ubiquity of drugs, the ridiculous accessibility of guns and extensive mobility of society, we live in increasingly dangerous times. With its easy access and high standard of living, it is also a fact that Winchester will remain an attractive target to desperate felons. Unfortunately, as well, and quite frankly, the bad guys are not only getting bolder, but are also better armed!

Their weapons of choice today are not the old single action or wheel-loaded firearm carried by our police. Rather, their abundant menu includes ample selections of semi or fully automatic pistols with a minimum of two-and-one-half the load capacity of standard-issue revolvers, 9mm pistols, .45s, Barrettas, .357s, Mac-10s, AKs and Uzis. A formidable and potentially deadly line-up when compared with the increasingly obsolete six-shot cylinder loaded .38 carried by the men and women in blue charged with the protection of our community and the enforcement of our laws.

In 1986, a young police officer was gunned down in a quiet, residential neighborhood in New York City. He died when his assailant emptied the clip of a semi-automatic into his body as the officer paused to reload the empty cylinder of his .38. God forbid that any other officer in the line of duty is ever faced with a similar situation.

Happily, the great majority of police officers nationwide never discharge their weapons in the line of duty (many never even draw them). Let's hope and pray that our officers continue to contribute to this statistic. However, if we are to win this much bally-hooed "war on drugs" and drive the bad guys from our streets, we must do all we can to support and protect our police. Like it or not, such support and protection necessarily means that we must assure they are never out-gunned or underarmed. Yes, there are many compelling concerns and needs facing our community today. Nonetheless, the initiative to upgrade our police force's weapons privately is one I fully support.

Parents implored to join fight against drugs

"We're not addressing the problem of alcohol.

"Nothing compares to the people that die on the roads due to alcohol. It is, as far as I'm concerned, our worst problem in this country," he added.

Pierce addressed a number of factors which contribute to drug and/or alcohol abuse, including peer pressure, experimentation, mimicking, and addiction.

"Most of it is a learned experience. 'Dad's doing a joint and it doesn't bother him; Mom's doing a line in the kitchen and it doesn't bother her ... I think I'll try it,'" said Pierce of the beginning of drug use for many youngsters. "It's depressing, but that's how it can happen."

Pierce said signs to look for if a person suspects drug abuse are: sleeping disorders, eating habits changing, changes in grades, new friends that haven't been around before, more irritability, things out of place or missing in the home, mood swings, and significant weight gain or loss.

In addressing a problem, Pierce said there are a number of steps which can be taken.

"The first thing you have to do is to learn to communicate with your kid," said Pierce. "And that doesn't mean stand there and yell at them. Listen to them.

"Educate yourself. Know the facts about drugs and what they can do.

"Set an example. Most of the kids who take their first drink, their first (marijuana) joint, their first line (of cocaine) have seen it in the home. That's where it starts. That's where the education has to start," he said.

Pierce advised parents not to panic, and not to skirt around an issue. "If you find it, confront it," he said.

"Don't disown the person. Don't close the case on them, because that's the time they'll need you the most," he said.

In response to a question, Pierce said he doesn't believe this country could enforce prohibition of drugs. However, he reinforced his belief that education is the key to addressing the problem.

"It can't be just a one-pronged effort. Just the schools, or just the parents or police or community. It has to be a coordinated effort with all four of those groups working together. That's when it's going to change," he said.

Alliance seeking formula for Winchester's fiscal future

term planning" is what Smith said is key to the town's future. Smith said he sees the discussion possibly revolving around re-examination of where the town has user fees, sharing the costs of some programs with other towns, exploring new sources of revenue, and the various ways the town could choose to override Proposition 2½. However, Smith added that he hopes panelists and audience members alike will come to the forum with an open mind and with ideas.

Following the panelists comments, residents will be allowed to comment and ask questions.

"I'm hoping we'll get a good turnout and there will be a lot of discussion," said Smith. "For the most part, this is to start the educational process the town embarked on last year.

"This has been very much a part of the Alliance committee's meetings since last spring," said Smith of the planned forum

The Alliance was formed last year by a group of residents concerned about the town's bleak financial picture. The group's main goal is to educate the general public about the town's fiscal problems and possible solutions.

The Sept. 28 forum begins with refreshments at 7:30 p.m. followed by the panel discussion at 8 p.m.

Temple Shir Tikvah observes High Holidays

This year, Temple Shir Tikvah — which serves the communities of Winchester, Arlington, and Belmont — will be commemorating the most holy period of the Jewish year with an active program of worship services and other events. On the last weekend of September, the Temple will inaugurate the beginning of the High Holidays with its first Rosh Hashanah, or Jewish New Year, worship service on Friday, Sept. 29, at 7:45 p.m. in the First Congregational Church in Winchester.

On the following morning, Sept. 30, at 10:00 a.m., Shir Tikvah will hold services for the first day of Rosh Hashanah. That afternoon, the Temple will hold a special service for children in grades 2 through 8 and their families. Following the service, all Temple members are invited to a social event featuring the fine art of conversation, known as kibitzing, and a traditional food — apples and honey. The kibitzing allows members to catch up with one another; the apples and honey reminds them of the sweet and joyous promise of the New Year. On the next morning, Sunday Oct. 1, the Temple will convene a study group to discuss the meaning of the High Holiday period.

Anyone interested in observing the High Holidays with Temple Shir Tikvah should contact either Temple President Jerry Blaine, at 721-2561, or Rabbi David Kudan, at 643-8282 for ticket information.

First Baptist Church hosts dedication recital

The First Baptist Church of Winchester will hold a dedication recital Sunday, Sept. 24 at 4 p.m. for the installation of its new Casavant organ. The public is invited.

Recitalists for this program are Carolyn Day Skelton, originally from Omaha, Neb., and the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston. She is presently on the faculty of Phillips Academy in Andover and the organist of Emmanuel Church in Manchester-by-the-Sea.

John Skelton is director of music at the Maple Street Congregational Church in Danvers, and is a member of the faculties of the University of New Hampshire and the University of Lowell. He received his bachelor and master of music degrees from the New England Conservatory of Music. From 1970 to 1982, Skelton was organist of the First Congregational Church in Winchester and is well known in the area.

Henry Hokans of Ogunquit, Maine, received his bachelor's and master's degrees in music from the New England Conservatory. For many years he was organist of All Saints Church in Worcester and is currently organist of St. Anne's Episcopal Church in Kennebunkport, Maine. He has been heard in recital throughout the United States and most recently at Westminster Abbey in London, England.

WINCHESTER PAST AND PRESENT

Transfer station was industrial site

By ELLEN KNIGHT
Special to the Star

Once again, on account of fee raises, the town dump is in the news. Part of the town for 45 years, the dump is one of the most familiar parts of town. Before 1944, however, there was no dump on the site, and the area was put to quite different use.

Until late in the 19th century the land north of Swanton Street between the railroad and the river, had not been built upon. In 1876 the Chapin School was erected in the area (just south of the present dump) and stood alone for many years. In 1891 a "Plan of House Lots Belonging to the Suburban Land Improvement Company" proposed that the entire area surrounding the school, just north of Swanton Street between the two branches of the railroad, be broken up into house lots. This plan did not go into effect. Rather, the area became an industrial site.

Industry came first to Swanton Street in the 1870s when the Moseley Tannery (later owned by Loring & Avery, then Beggs & Cobb) was built by the Woburn branch of the railroad, on the south side of Swanton. In 1893 the McKay Metallic Fastener Company built a large factory, along the main line of the Boston & Maine, behind the school — where the dump is now located. After several years, the company being absorbed into the United Shoe Machinery Company, the factory was sold to the Puffer Manufacturing Company.

The site presently occupied by the transfer station was at one time the site of the Puffer Company.

The Puffer Company moved to Winchester in 1907, continuing a very successful business begun during the 1840s in Boston manufacturing soda fountains, long marble counters equipped with carbonators and fancy spigots. During World War I the company made munitions which led to a serious post-war decline. All but two buildings were sold in 1937 to the International Cooperage Co. Destroyed by fire in 1944, the remaining two buildings were partly rebuilt by the Greif Brothers but are now gone.

In 1944 when the town was searching for an area to put its dump, several sites were proposed — and protested. At the April 1944 Town Meeting the site of the former Puffer Company was chosen.

The site might have changed again during the mid-1950s when the prospect of creating a new dump arose. In the 10 years that had passed, the saturation point of the dump, which had begun as a sanitary landfill, was almost reached. New dump sites were suggested, principally one on Cross Street; however, following several years of committee reports, town meeting discussions, and a variety of proposals and arguments, an incinerator contract was awarded in 1960 and the town dump remained where it still is. The incinerator was in operation until 1976, when the dump — as it will always popularly be called — was developed into a transfer station.

The route to the dump has become increasingly familiar during the present decade after trash collection disappeared completely in 1981, a victim of budget constraints. Following upon recent decisions, wherein permit fees, which increased eight-fold just this year, have been subjected to new increases (20 times higher than last year), the route will become no less familiar but increasingly more expensive and burdensome to travel.

Ritchie getting settled at high school

point, there is no such thing as "regular," says Ritchie.

"It's always being on the go, making decisions — and hoping they're the right ones — getting back to the person you were supposed to speak with, meetings, group conferences ... and going to pep rallies," grins Ritchie.

Ritchie admits any type of change is tough but he has been pleased with the "welcoming and friendly" reception he's gotten in Winchester thus far.

And Ritchie realizes too, that being a teacher in 1989 isn't an easy task. "In general, there's an increased demand and expectations on teachers ... many new responsibilities fall on the school," says Ritchie. Budget problems, a lack of positions for new teachers, all these issues present obstacles to teaching professionals.

"Teaching is just terrifically hard work. It can be tremendously draining and sometimes the rewards are internal," says Ritchie.

For example, the reward for a teacher after teaching a great class is a great "feeling," says Ritchie. What he wants is for the high school teachers in Winchester to know, "I'm interested in seeing them, talking about what they're doing and getting to know them," says Ritchie. Also, he wants to know "what they need to do their job."

Although he may not always be able to provide everything the teachers need, he hopes most goals can be achieved through a group effort — a channeling of optimism and energy.

And his confidence in the quality of the high school educators is strong. "The teachers here are first rate," says Ritchie.

A mixture of his own high expectations of the teachers and support for them is the combination Ritchie thinks will work in bringing teachers' morale to an all-time high.

Ritchie is also concerned with the role the school plays in relation to the community. To battle the problem of teenage drinking, Ritchie plans to "establish a solid partnership with parents and the community, while being very open with successes and problems," says Ritchie.

Helping students to make "thoughtful decisions" and to work with them to overcome problems is a goal for Ritchie.

Ritchie was chosen for the position of principal in an exhaustive search for just the right candidate. He was actually hired for the position last November and beginning in January, Ritchie worked in the capacity of a consultant, getting to know the issues of the school — while learning a few names and faces as well.

A full-time schedule began this summer, and Ritchie says this time gave him a real opportunity to learn the "system" of the high school. And Ritchie says support from the staff and teachers has been "tremendous" through his period of getting settled.

By and large, Ritchie sees the high school students as serious and highly motivated youths. "It's important to recognize and congratulate the kids who do well, but to also strike a balance to make sure they're encouraged to learn, rather than to compete," says Ritchie. "We have to find ways of making them not worry so much, so they still have time to enjoy their youth."

Ritchie sees parents in Winchester as "concerned and committed to their kids. They are very supportive of education," he says.

Although budget constraints have proven to be "a real challenge," Ritchie understands the problem is "not peculiar to Winchester."

Ritchie himself is the father of two, Alexander, age eight and Rachel, age six. His wife Jane is a former English professor and is currently a free-lance writer.

Speculating about the future, Ritchie would hope to someday write a novel "about teenagers and for teenagers," but beyond that, "I love where I am now, it's the perfect place to be," says Ritchie, "I'm taking it one step at a time."

Herbs thrive in a window

Some of the best herbs for growing in pots

By PATRICK DENTON
Copley News Service
For What's UP

The pleasant picture of attractive, fragrant herb plants churning out their culinary treasures at a sunny kitchen window or under plant lights carries great appeal for anyone who loves cooking and plants.

Here are some of the best herbs for growing in pots.

CRESS

Absurdly easy to grow, garden cress is the speediest of all herbs to produce its foliage, which is pungent and peppery and an ideal spicing ingredient for soups, salads and sandwiches.

Cress is one exception to the rule that herbs need good drainage, and it requires only a shallow soil depth. I've grown cress in little foil pie tins and, when the children were young, even in egg cups with a happy face drawn on the cup to await its fast-growing green "hair."

And the wait isn't long, as germination is rapid and the cress is often ready to cut within a week to 10 days of seeding. Each plant will take two or three "crew cuts" before it tires. A seeding every few weeks will give a continuous fresh supply of this delicious herb.

DILL

This feathery herb is a pleasure to look at and an indispensable ingredient in fish and vegetable sauces. The snipped greens add a fresh spicy flavor to salads and cooked vegetables.

Dill germinates quickly and new seedings can be made every month or so to replace plants grown too tall.

For pot culture, a compact variety such as Bouquet is ideal. Keeping the foliage trimmed with frequent use will help hold dill plants within bounds.

Maintain a moist soil for this herb.

PARSLEY

For indoor culture the more compact curly-leaved parsley is preferred over plain-leaved Italian parsley. Notoriously slow to germinate, parsley will sprout successfully within two weeks, provided the seed is fresh.

To facilitate germination, place the seeds to be planted in the refrigerator or freezer for a week prior to planting. Then soak them overnight in warm water the night before seeding. Barely cover the seeds and keep the soil moist during and after germination.

Parsley will produce its flavorful and decorative foliage most abundantly given full sun and rich, moist soil. Pop an extra dab of sterilized, processed manure into the soil mix for this herb.

BASIL

A few leaves of fresh basil will heighten the flavor of any tomato dish. Basil fans may wish to grow both a purple and a green basil for an added decorative flair in salads and garnishes.

Pinch back the growing tips of this highly fragrant herb to keep it bushy and productive. Basil germinates quickly in warmth, within a week of seeding.

CHIVES

Chives are slow to establish from seed. Purchase a small clump or dig and pot a small section of a clump from your own or a friend's garden.

Trim the plant back a little at transplanting, and set the pot outdoors. Use the foliage as needed and with the first frost cut the tops down just above the crown of the plant. Leave it outdoors to catch another frost or two and then bring the pot indoors. Your chives will yield the best greens indoors after this exposure to the cold.

Keep the soil moist for this herb.

SWEET MARJORAM

This neat, soft-leaved, bushy plant is an aromatic sun-loving herb useful for stuffing poultry and for flavoring tomato and egg dishes.

Soak the seeds for a day prior to planting. And add a little extra perlite to the soil mix for increased speed of drainage.

SUMMER SAVORY

The pungent foliage of this sturdy little bush is handy for flavoring snap and broad beans, salads, egg and meat dishes and stuffings.

THYME

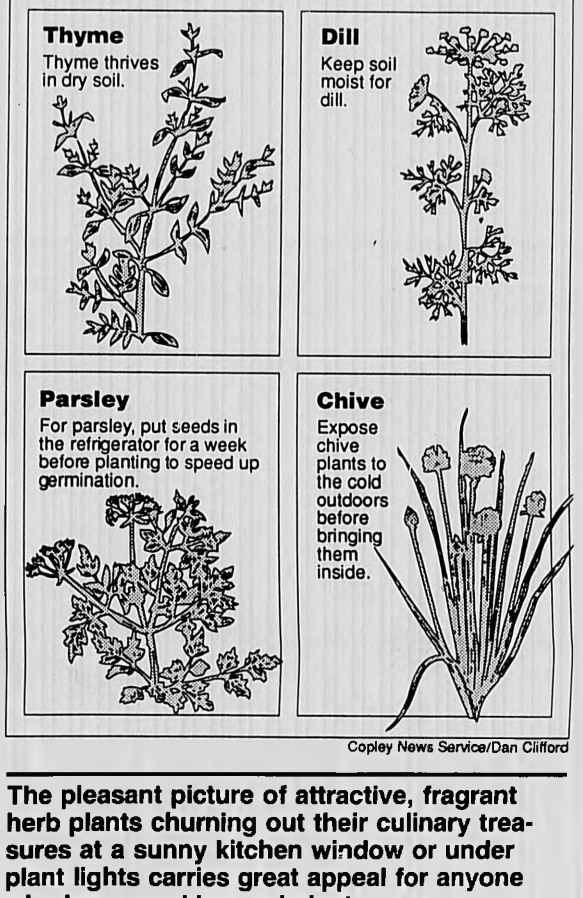

Use a small purchased transplant or rooted stems from a garden plant or sow seeds. Thyme seeds take about two weeks to germinate.

The soil for this herb should be decidedly well-drained and open-textured. Add a little extra perlite to the mix. And keep the soil on the dry side, watering only when a substantial portion of the soil in the pot has dried and the pot feels light.

Thyme is a prime ingredient in stuffings and a flavorful accompaniment to fish steamed in foil.

Jackie Robinson exhibit comes to Boston

Jackie Robinson: An American Journey, an in-depth, muti-media depiction of the life of baseball superstar and civil rights spokesman, Jackie Robinson, opens Sept. 22 at International Place located at High, Purchase and Oliver streets in Boston.

This sixth stop on a national tour of the 3,900-square-foot traveling exhibit, commemorates Robinson's historic entry into major league baseball as its only black player.

National sponsor of the exhibit is Coca-Cola USA. Local sponsors include BML Associates, International Place and Boston's four professional sports teams — The Boston Red Sox, The Boston Celtics, The Boston Bruins and the New England Patriots. This is the first time the four sports franchises have participated in a joint-sponsorship.

The exhibition contains more than 175 photographs and 200 artifacts, including trophies, letters, uniforms and other memorabilia, along with films and interactive videos highlighting Jackie Robinson — the athlete and the citizen. Robinson's career with the Brooklyn Dodgers, his off-field activities and impact in business, politics and the civil rights movement are examined.

William P. Casey, executive vice president, Coca-Cola, USA said the exhibit is part of three-year commemoration of Robinson's courage and achievement in breaking baseball's color barrier and accelerating the struggle for racial equality in this country.

"Jackie Robinson's baseball feats are legend, and the record of his successful personal battle against prejudice and hostility throughout his career as a Dodger is widespread," Mr. Casey said. "But this exhibit also tells the rest of the Jackie Robinson story — chapters perhaps overshadowed by his baseball record, but inspiring episodes which often had more impact when put in proper perspective," Casey said.

Robinson, who died Oct. 24, 1972, became the first black player in the major leagues in 1947, with the Brooklyn Dodgers, and paved the road to the majors for hundreds of other minority athletes. He was named Rookie of the Year as the Dodgers won the 1947 National league pennant.

The exhibition began its tour in 1987 at The New York Historical Society in New York City and the California Afro-American Museum in Los Angeles. In 1988 the tour visited the Robert W. Woodruff Library at the Atlanta University Center and the Charles Sumner School in Washington, D.C. The 1989 tour began in Chicago, where it was featured at the Museum of Science and Industry, and later travelled to Miami at the Historical Museum of Southern Florida.

Rita Moran

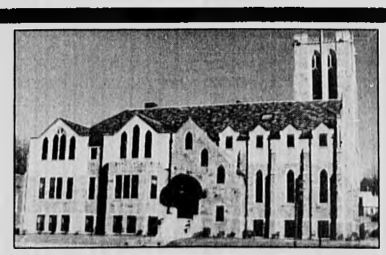

Rita Moran, who has been a desk volunteer at the Jenks for the last 3 years, became active at the Center several years ago when her husband, Joseph, was a member of the recreation committee.

"We used to go on all the trips and to Square Dancing," said Rita, who retired from social work at the Catholic Charitable Bureau in Boston 5 years ago. "We enjoyed the activities and the people so much. I think the Jenks is one of the most beautiful senior centers in the state and the atmosphere is so personal."

Active in the Altar guild at St. Eulalias Church and a bridge player, Rita, who swims everyday at the Woburn YMCA, also spends much of her time visiting her 6 children and 16 grandchildren.

"We're family oriented," said Rita, who attended the BC school of social work and Tufts teaching college where she met her husband in 1932. "Our children and grandchildren all live within 50 miles of us."

Rita and Joseph have made their home in Winchester since 1942.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Be courageous and try a new activity you've been afraid of. You'll succeed if you do it now; otherwise the chance will be gone for good.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Make time for a Leo, but avoid Capricorns. A Virgo can help you reach the goal you have set.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Break the rules just this once. Trust your own ideas and impress the people around you.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Engage in some healthy competition while keeping your perspective. Give the project all you have, but be willing to let others share the spotlight.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Live for the moment. Try new ideas and activities, but avoid long-term promises.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Spend your time wisely. Others may try to distract you, but stick to the timetable you've set for yourself.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Romance will come rushing around the corner unexpectedly. Relax and savor it. Enjoy some childlike pursuits.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Speak your mind about problems that have been bothering you. Demand total honesty from friends and loved ones.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Avoid a Libra who might persuade you to overindulge, but seek out the company of an Aquarius. Keep your high ideals.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — You are about to be given new responsibilities. Have confidence. You can do it.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Work at understanding someone who has a hard time expressing feelings. Be ready with a clear answer.

PISCES — (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Be wary of people who make promises they can't keep. Take a clue from their actions rather than their words.

If You Are Thinking Of Remodeling . . .

Many homeowners think of remodeling when they should be considering buying another home. You should give the pros and cons of the issue serious thought because it may save you money.

Going overboard. The negative side to remodeling is the risk of over-remodeling—spending more than you can hope to recover by asking a higher price later when you sell your home. The value of your home is determined greatly by the value of neighboring homes. The value limit is especially strong in neighborhoods where homes are similar in size and price.

Example. The remodeling council of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) suggests this rule of thumb: the market value of your home, plus the cost of improvements should not exceed the value of the neighborhood's top homes by more than 20 percent.

For example, if your home is currently worth $95,000, and the top homes in your area are selling for $100,000, you would be safe to limit your remodeling cost to $20,000 or less. Remodeling the kitchen is often a good improvement because the old maxim "The kitchen is the room that sells the house" is still alive. However, if space is your problem, adding a new room can cost between $20,000 and $30,000.

Where do you start? First you need to know the value of your home in relation to the value of the other homes in your neighborhood. Call Keenan/Cusack Realtors and we will get that information for you. At the same time Keenan/Cusack can tell you the amount of equity you have in your home Then we can discuss the wanted improvements in relation to the NAHB 20 percent rule of thumb mentioned earlier. You may decide that another home would be your best financial investment.

Sachem girls soccer kicks into high gear with early wins

By MARK NADEAU
Sports Editor

Move over, Brockton High football; Winchester High girls soccer is invading your turf.

Last Wednesday, the already confident Sachems received another boost when the national daily newspaper USA Today recognized them as the 16th-ranked team in the country in the publication's Top 25 poll of high school girls soccer teams. Coach Chris Scanlon and the players are proud of this prestigious recognition and they plan on channelling it towards improving their play even more.

Winchester faced its first challenge of the young season last Thursday when the squad travelled to Arlington. The Spy Ponders stayed with the Sachems for much of the first half, but the relentless Winchester offense simply overpowered the home side en route to an impressive 4-1 victory.

"This was our first test of the season," said Scanlon. "I thought we came through and played really well."

The Spy Ponder match-up was also the first opportunity for highly-touted freshmen Liz Kelley and Renee Bussell to strut their stuff in a quality varsity contest; and did they ever impress. Kelley looks like she's been playing for the Sachems for the last three years with her poise, slick moves and powerfully accurate shot. Bussell is more youthful in appearance but equally impressive in her soccer skills. Coach Scanlon has given her the corner kicking duties, and the Sachems first three goals against Arlington came as a direct result of her consistent accuracy.

Winchester went up, 1-0, in the first half when senior Denise Delaney headed home a Bussell corner kick. The Spy Ponders caught a break a few minutes later when the referee missed a tripping penalty, which allowed Arlington's Nicole McMillian to streak in alone down the right side. She scored with a booming shot just inside the far post.

The Sachems grabbed the lead right back when Delaney found the twine again. Spy Ponder goalie Leah Wedge tried to clear a Bussell corner kick, but sophomore Jenny Gilpatric intercepted it and bounced a shot off the post. Delaney then put the rebound in while falling on her backside. Gilpatric has yet to score this season, but she continues to terrorize opposing defenses with her flawless ball control and great instincts.

Bussell provided an insurance goal early in the second half when Wedge was unable to handle her corner kick cleanly. The ball wound up in the net and Winchester led, 3-1. Kelley fired home the final goal off a great play by sophomore Jessica Lanzo. Lanzo sacrificed her body while beating Wedge to a loose ball at the right side of the net. While Kelley found the upper right corner, Lanzo got sandwiched between Wedge and an Arlington fullback as the three went down in a heap.

Lost in all this was the fine play of the Sachem midfield and defense. Senior Shana MacConkey and junior Emily Lewis played particularly well, as did quad-captains Sonja Johnson and Jenna Maconochie, senior Danielle Berkhout, juniors Courtney Perkins and Amy Coakley, and sophomores Sara Noonan, Daisy Lewis, Jessica Murphy and Julie Struthers.

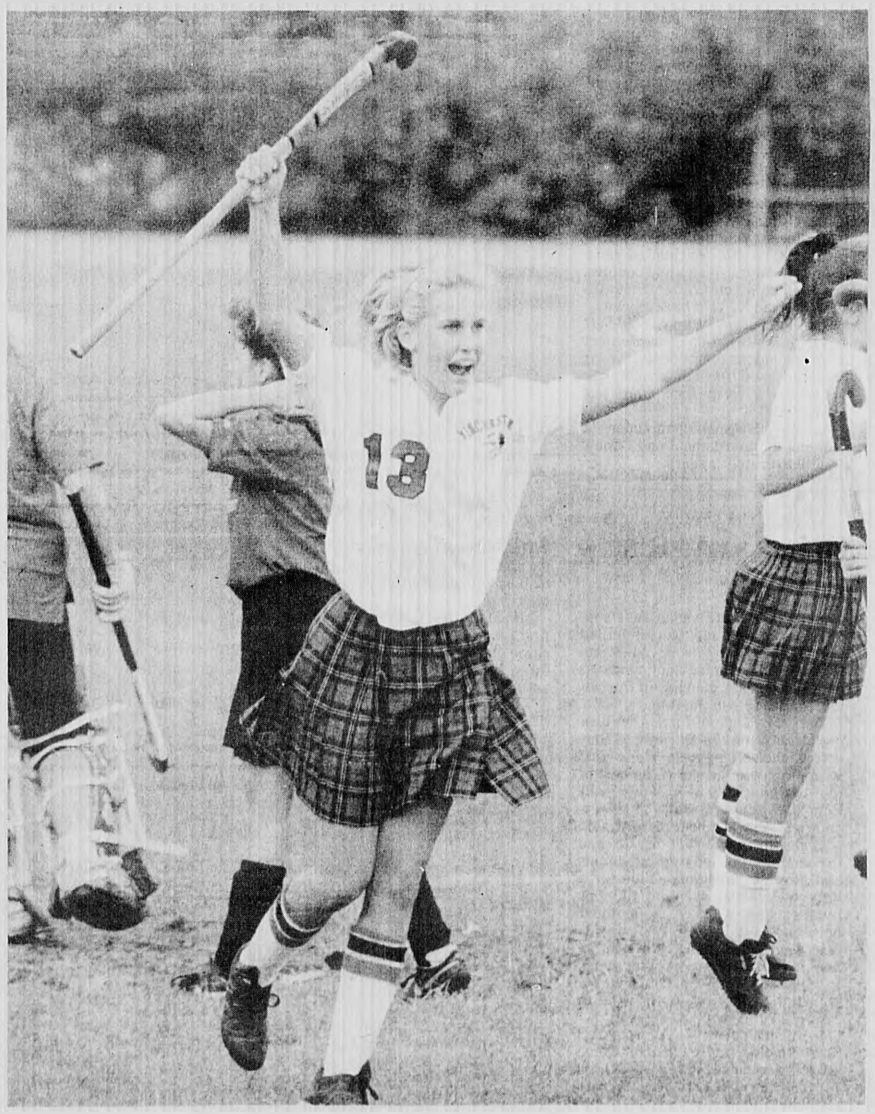

It was more of the same on Saturday as Winchester shut out Burlington at home, 4-0. Liz Kelley toyed with the right side of the Lady Devil defense and she fed Denise Delaney for the first goal. Quad-captain Margaret Cunningham made it 2-0 when she headed in a Renee Bussell corner kick. Quad-captain Shalagh Murdock stole the show in the second half, scoring twice, including a beautiful arcing shot from in tight on the right side. Sophomore Melissa Mandracchia played well at midfield after sitting out the Arlington game and goalies Kathryn Ford, Jen Russo and Dauren Nowell combined for the shutout.

Winchester will host Belmont on Tuesday in what should be their toughest game on the first half of their schedule.

Sophomore Jenny Gilpatric avoids the sliding tackle of an Arlington player during last week's 4-1 triumph over the Spy Ponders. The Sachem girls' confidence was boosted prior to the game when it was announced that they had been ranked 16th nationally in the USA Today's Top 25.

Field hockey impressive in opener

By MARK NADEAU
Sports Editor

The Winchester High field hockey team picked up its first victory of the season last Friday when the Sachems beat Burlington, 3-2. Unfortunately, they could not sustain the momentum at home on Monday, dropping a tight contest to Reading, 2-1.

The win over the Lady Devils was keyed by senior Kathryn Colson, who scored twice and assisted on the third goal. Colson scored the lone goal on Monday and is the Sachems' leading scorer. Although Colson primarily plays a defensive position, coach Mary Brown likes to move the quad-captain up front on corner-penalty situations. All of Colson's goals have come off of corners.

Winchester jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first half against Burlington. Colson put home a rebound of a Margaret Behnke shot and quad-captain Sarah Power did the same with a Colson corner shot.

After the Lady Devils got one back late in the half, the Sachems got some much needed breathing room when Colson scored on a pass from Lorette McWilliams. The two hooked up again for the lone goal on Monday against the Rockets. Goalie Amy Poftak stopped eight of 10 Burlington shots.

According to Brown, the Sachems actually played better in defeat on Monday then they did in victory on Friday. Reading outshot Winchester, 8-5, but the game could have gone either way. "It was a good game," said Brown. "It was pretty even."

After the Rockets went up 1-0 midway through the first half, the Sachems tied it at 14:00 of the second half. Reading went ahead to stay four minutes later.

Coach Brown says the team will practice picking up the tempo this week. "We'll be working on our speed and getting to the ball quicker."

Winchester will host Lexington on Friday before travelling to Belmont Tuesday afternoon.

Boys win as Bouley gains 300th victory

By ARAM GOUDSOUZIAN
Special to the Star

It was quite an eventful week for the Winchester High boys soccer team. First, on Thursday, they pummelled Watertown, 7-0, to earn coach Gene Bouley his long-awaited 300th victory. Then on Saturday, an upstart Burlington team tied the Sachems, 1-1, in their first big challenge of the year.

The huge crowd during Thursday's landmark game was treated to a scoring barrage courtesy of the talented but unproven Sachems. Co-captains Mike Queenan and striker Jan Pyro each poured in two goals, while Jason Law banged home a Dave Rodriguez shot that had hit the post, and co-captain Kiley Hertel converted a penalty kick following a Watertown error. The icing on the cake was an extra special treat, a final goal off the foot of Mike Bosco, who was appearing in his first varsity contest.

Speaking of cake, Coach Bouley received one during the postgame celebration, accompanied by a large amount of water, which was poured over his head. The huge crowd, led by Number One Fan Frank Perrone, cheered throughout to honor the man who's been called "The Grey Squirrel," "The Silver Fox," and his newest, "The Raging Boul."

The next day it was back to business. Inspired by a pep rally during which the excited Sachems received thunderous cheers, the squad went through an intense practice to prepare for Burlington, a young and talented group many feel is still a year away from reaching its potential.

Winchester's hard work was almost for naught, as Burlington held a 1-0 lead late in the second half. Desperate to generate offense, Bouley moved Hertel, normally the stopper, up as a fourth forward. The way the undermanned Sachem defense responded was to rise to the occasion. Led by sweeper Dave Keane, they played flawlessly. Second half goalkeeper Steve Mueller turned away shot after shot and he combined with right back Josh Briggs to stop a certain goal in spectacular fashion.

Finally, it all paid off when left wing Dave Rodriguez finished off a play with a clutch shot in the lower left corner. His late-game heroics earned him the "Sachem of the Week" award. To Winchester's credit, the Sachems went for the victory with an all-or-nothing attitude. They pressed until the very end, but fate would not reward them with a victory. They had to settle for a tie. The Sachems left Burlington knowing they were the better team, with at least some consolation in the fact that in a few weeks, Burlington would have to answer to Winchester and the Sachems' tremendous home-field advantage.

Next time, they won't be settling for any ties.

Harpoon takes softball title

By GARY FLOYD
Special to the Star

Welch & Eller coach Dave Errico commented after his team had surrendered the title to Harpoon Ale in the fourth and final B league championship series game, "What can I say, we lost to a very good team."

Errico's words were reflective of the series. After losing the first two games, Errico went for broke; playing a short fielder against many of Harpoon Ale's hitters. It was a strategy that has largely fallen out of favor in recent years in Winchester softball circles, but in game three, it paid handsome dividends for Welch & Eller as several of Harpoon's hitters appeared tentative and Welch & Eller's offense ambushed them.

In game four, Harpoon Ale was the hungrier team and forced Welch & Eller's outfield to play more straight up than they had in earlier games. Harpoon Ale jumped out in front quickly, 5-1, after an inning and a half, and its hitters attacked the ball until it was apparent that no amount of shifting was going to stem the onslaught. On at least one occasion, when the outfield was shifted, the re-allignment turned a single into an extra-base hit.

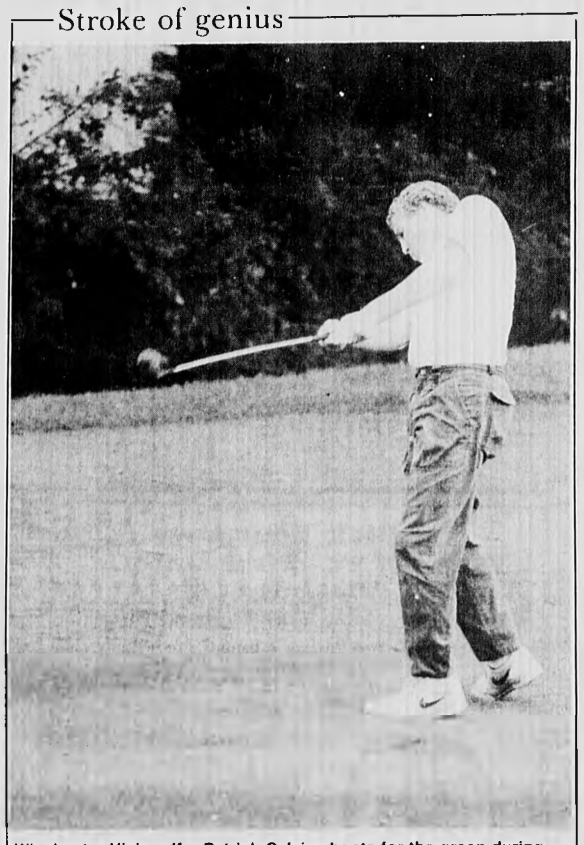

At this point, the momentum swung to Welch & Eller. The big blow being Dave Errico's two-run single in the bottom of the third that cut the deficit to 5-4 after three innings.

But Welch & Eller had no magic left. In each of the next two innings, they were able to get a man on but were unable to plate him

As for Harpoon Ale, they took advantage of Welch & Eller's lapse of runs and set out to win the game. In the top of the fourth, Nick Asaro (a double and a home run in three plate appearances) cracked a two-run home run to make the score 7-3. Then, an inning later, Harpoon Ale's Chris Garden rapped a double to right which put runners on second and third with nobody out. An intentional walk loaded the bases and Welch & Eller managed to slide out of a nearly fatal knockout punch, surrendering two more runs and falling further behind.

Whatever thunder Welch & Eller bats had initially was now gone and Harpoon Ale's defense dominated the last two innings en route to a 9-4 win and the championship.

Curtin brings down house for Winchester football, 33-0

By AL DITULLIO
Special to the Star

It was a day that Winchester High's Joel Curtin will remember for a long time to come. He was the offensive weapon for the football team against non-league opponent Somerville last Saturday afternoon, in a contest that had the fans roaring so loud, the sound could be heard all the way to the Winchester/Medford line. The Sachems pounded the Highlanders, 33-0, in their season opener.

Curtin began his offensive show in the first quarter when he brought Winchester its first six points of 1989 by going in from the one yard line, putting the Sachems up 7-0. Quarterback Chris Umscheid added the kick. But that was just the beginning for Curtin, as he answered the call again, this time with a 12-yard run, putting Winchester up 13-0 at the end of one period.

Quarterback Chris Umscheid, wanting to get in on the fun, answered with a touchdown of his own on a four-yard run that gave Winchester a 20-0 halftime lead.

In the third quarter, Curtin did it again. This time with a 65-yard run that had the Sachem fans in a complete state of amazement, and gave Winchester a 27-0 lead. Winchester added another touchdown in the fourth quarter when Mike Rauseo punched it in from the five to put this one on ice, 33-0.

It may have been Joel Curtin as the offensive weapon, but a lot of credit has to go to Stephen Tartarini, who sparkled on defense with six unassisted tackles to make it a complete day for head coach Manny Marshall's troops. The Sachems move on to their Middlesex League schedule this Friday night against Melrose at Melrose High. Kickoff is at 7 p.m.

WHS swim team downs Burlington in first match

The Winchester High girls swim team opened its season on a positive note with a 46-37 triumph over Burlington at Northeast Regional Vocational School last Saturday.

Julie Buchanan led the way for the Sachems with victories in the 200 individual medley (2:17.55) and the 100 butterfly (1:09.36).

Maura Riley and Patty Williams finished 1-2 in the 200 freestyle, as did Brooke Foley and Rachel Bonnell in the diving competition. Riley's winning time was 2:23.27 and Williams finished in 2:46.06. Foley accumulated a total of 182.55 points from the diving board and Bonnell had 165.25 points.

Diana Coughlin was victorious in the 100 backstroke (1:21.13) and Kristen Herlihy was second in the 500 freestyle (7:02.27).

Winchester took second in both relay races. Coughlin, Allison McKay, Siobhan Murray and Amy Provenzano participated in the 200 medley relay, while Beth Crawford, Cara McGillicuddy, Andrea Marquardt and Jen Murphy took part in the 400 freestyle relay.

The girls' next meet will be this Saturday against Belmont at the Northeast Vocational in Wakefield, beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Town tennis tournament completes 60th successful year

Some final musings on 1989 tourney

By ALEX POPP
Special to the Star

The 60th Annual Fall Town Tennis Championships deserves some additional comments and for what they are worth, here goes.

1. Every tournament this year sponsored by the Tennis Association has been plagued by rain, resulting in matches moved from clay to indoor carpet. (A move fun for some, painful to others.)

2. Did someone really show up for a match with a face painted to look like "The Ultimate Warrior" from the World Wrestling Federation? (Nah, not in Winchester!)

3. A semi-final doubles match was played in the rain because the players had to be there, but who were the guys playing singles in the rain for no apparent reason?

4. Did Anthony Ciulla really play the entire tournament in day-glo lime green shorts? (Maybe he borrowed them from Bill Wolfe.)

5. It was nice to see former singles champion Bill MacNeil checking out the draw sheets at the Packer Courts. MacNeil dominated town singles in the 1970s, and it looked like he was checking out the talent on hand.

6. What happened to all the women who play tennis in Winchester? The draw for singles, doubles and mixed was at an all-time low. (No excuse, ladies!)

7. Does any other town in Massachusetts or New England have the 60-year tradition that we are fortunate to have in tennis?

8. Whit Gray, we miss you; Joe Palumbo and Chris Ciulla just don't know how to apply the thumb test to the courts after it rains.

9. Come back, Charlie Watson. The backboard is still up.

10. A thank you to Lou Desmarteaux for staying out of the tournament and giving the rest of us a chance in men's singles and doubles. (Sweeping the courts after winning a match is bad for your back anyway.)

11. A men's singles final should not have to be played on court number 12 at the indoor tennis center. A big thumbs down for the people who refused to give up their court and move over.

12. Steve Brosnan did a super job running the tournament and I doubt if he'll ever do it again!

Guarnotta rejoins UNCC soccer squad

Winchester High graduate Meghan Guarnotta has returned to the University of North Carolina-Charlotte for her sophomore season with the women's soccer team

Guarnotta is a starting forward for the Spartans. Last season, she scored four goals and led the team in assists with 11.

"Meghan is one of the strongest and most natural collegiate wing players I've seen," said Spartan coach Jack Poland. "She has improved with her back to the goal and moving to the open space. She has a tremendous will to work hard and win."

Guarnotta had a 3.0 grade-point average her freshman year.

James, Byrne take singles

By ALEX POPP
Special to the Star

Lance James and Joan Byrne were the winners of the 60th Annual Fall Town Tennis Tournament singles titles, which concluded this past weekend. Lance dominated the men's division, dropping only 11 games in four matches, topping it off with a 6-1, 6-3 victory over Joe Culhane in the finals. For James, this was his second straight title and second straight over Culhane.

Joan Byrne won her first town singles championship with a tough, 6-7, 6-3, 6-3 victory over unseeded Sue Bailey. For Byrne, who has town titles in doubles and mixed doubles, this was a very sweet victory and her aggressive style of play was a pleasure to watch and certainly paid off for her.

Ron Salter continued to dominate the men's 45-and-over singles event, blasting through four rounds without dropping a set and besting Gordon Nicholson, 6-1, 6-3 in the finals.

In men's doubles, Lance James and Ted Martin, finalists in 1988, outshot Bill Wolfe and Alex Popp, 6-4, 6-3. James and Martin nailed return of serves and volleyed exceptionally well, coming back from 1-3 in the second set, running off the last five games to win the title.

The men's semi-finals doubles match between Neil Hurley and Gordon Nicholson against Wolfe and Popp proved to be one of the best of the tournament, with Wolfe and Popp surviving a 7-5, 3-6, 6-3 endurance test. The last hour of the match was played in a steady drizzle, and the combination of exciting tennis and adverse conditions made for a very interesting event to the few fanatics that watched from under umbrellas and inside cars.

In women's doubles, Janet Burke and Judy Harrington swept by Joan Byrne and Mary Golden, 6-0, 6-1, winning their first town title in impressive form.

In mixed doubles, Burke paired off with tournament chairman Steve Brosnan and coasted to a 6-3, 6-2 win over Harrington and Andy Oxenhorn.

Cross country gets by Melrose

The Winchester High cross country team began the season in fine fashion with an exciting victory over Melrose.

Although the Red Raiders took first place in the race, the Sachems came out on top by placing the next three finishers. Junior Kevin Guarnotta was second (18:26), senior Paul O'Neil was third (18:44) and sophomore Didi Chen was fourth (18:49). Jesse DeGeorge and Chris Powers finished sixth and 10th, respectively.

There were not enough participants for an official girls race to be run.

Rawson hits holes-in-one

One hole-in-one in a lifetime is a great accomplishment for most golfers. Most do not ever accomplish this once-in-a-lifetime performance.

But Tom Rawson of Arlington, Boxing Commissioner, Harvard Boxing Coach and former Arlington Selectman, twice hit the golf ball into the hole with one shot in one round in a Mixed Invitational Tournament at the Winchester Country Club on Sept 10.

His daughter, Zita Leger, was his partner as Rawson used a six-wood to record his first hole-in-one on the ninth hole.

Five holes later, on the 14th, he again knocked the ball into the hole on his first shot, this time using a seven-wood. One of his opponents in the foursome at that point in the tournament was his grandson Tom Leger.

Rawson, who has been playing golf for 60 years, had never hit a hole-in-one before.

As far as is known this marks the first time that two holes-in-one were made by one person in one round at the Winchester Country Club.

Jazzerobics is an aerobic dance exercise program that combines fun and fitness development into choreographed routines. The class consists of warm-ups, strength and flexibility exercises, aerobic work-out and cool down. Class time is 6:10 to 7:10 p.m.

EasyRobics incorporates low impact techniques and sports moves into simple, easy to follow routines. Additional emphasis is placed on strengthening the key postural muscles and toning areas. Class time is 7:15 to 8:15 p.m.

Teenagers and adults, both male and female, are invited to join either group. Classes meet Monday and Thursday evenings for 10 weeks at a cost of $60. # Fit for kids begins Sept. 27

Children, ages 4 to 6 years are invited to join this exercise class designed to develop coordination, balance, cardiorespiratory strength, self-control, muscle tone and stress release. Through music and movement your child will learn to appreciate and enjoy aerobic exercise. Nutrition and the human body will also be discussed.

The instructor is a certified elementary school teacher as well as a certified aerobics instructor. Beginning Sept. 27, the class will be held on Wednesdays from 1 to 1:45 p.m. in the Youth Center, McCall Jr. High. Ten weeks will cost $50. To register please call Winchester Recreation at 721-7125 or Judy Whitney at 729-1599.

Drama workshop begins season

The 16th season of the Winchester Drama Workshop will open with a 10-week series for boys and girls in grades four through six on Sept. 27 from 3:15 to 5:15 in the Social Studies area of the High School, 2nd floor front. Third graders also may send their names to the Recreation Dept. to participate if space is available.

A photo display at the Junior Library will describe better than words the joy of creative expression from the artist within everyone. Toward this goal the workshops begin with Yoga exercises which stretch, relax and center the body and mind. Then focusing on each of the five sense increases awareness; mime and creative movement facilitate organic communication; theater games educe spontaneity; and finally improvised scenes express life experiences in artistic form. These scenes will be presented in an open demonstration tentatively set for Dec. 7.

After leading such after school workshops in Winchester since 1972, Paulett Taggart has more recently extended her work into the school classroom; with material drawn from the Language Arts curriculum the Drama Workshop process stimulates right brain intuition to effect a balance with left brain cognitive learning. This ideal of whole brain education is practiced with growing success throughout the world.

Junior assistants trained in previous workshops will be Matthew Ducharme and Ulrika Malone from McCall Jr. High School.

Registration for this and other activities described in the fall brochure are now being received by mail at the Recreation Dept., McCall Jr. High School, 721-7125. Further information is available from Paulett Taggart, 17 Ridgefield Road, 729-6669.

Ribbs exhibits work at hospital

The Winchester Hospital Coffee Shop is currently exhibiting several watercolor paintings by Woburn artist Ann Ribbs. They will be on display for the month of September.

Ribbs' work is realistically portrayed in a variety of subjects. She is an active member of the Woburn Artists' Guild, Lexington Arts and Crafts Society and the Reading and Winchester Art Associations. She has exhibited in North Shore art shows, banks, hospitals, and business establishments.

Ribbs has received numerous awards for her work. Her paintings are in private collections throughout the country and overseas. Having attended painting workshops in Rockport, Ireland and the Bahamas she will journey to Yugoslavia in October to paint with members of the Rockport Art Association.

Ribbs is currently studying watercolors with Carolyn Latanisian of Winchester.

Voke offers adult education

It's that time of the year once again — the time when scores of local residents register for evening classes at the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School in Wakefield. Registration will begin on Sept. 26 through 28, 4 to 8 p.m., with classes scheduled to begin during the week of Oct. 10.

The adult education courses offer a little of everything — a chance to accelerate a career, get a little exercise or participate in a hobby.

Over 2,000 area residents have taken advantage of this opportunity and have enrolled in the adult education program at the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School during the past year.

According to John X. Crowley, Director of Adult Education at Northeast Metro Tech, the fall semester evening school offers 70 different courses, ranging from Architectural Blueprint Reading to Red Cross Advanced Life Saving. The school also offers apprentice classes in the following State approved program areas: carpentry, electrical, gas fitting, machine shop, plumbing, and sheet metal.

"Our evening programs offer recreational, vocational informational and fitness courses," Director Crowley said. "Some of the courses run 11 weeks while others vary from 4 to 14 weeks. We are trying to offer a full service educational program for the residents of the district and are very pleased with the public's response to our efforts."

"Our enrollments keep increasing," School Committee member John F. Looney, Jr., of Winchester said.

"Since we first started the Adult Education program, our enrollment figures have skyrocketed, having more than tripled in the past three years," he added.

Director Crowley attributes this increase to the variety of courses which are available and the quality of instruction.

"We're fortunate to have the instructors that we have," the Director continued. "We have the ability to offer courses for hobbies or for job-related growth."

The fall semester program will begin during the second week of October. For further information on Adult Education, please contact the school at 246-0810.

Tiffany Workman and Jesse Christopher receive lounge car service on the L.A. Express from Junior Assistant Christina Manzo in a scene improvised at the Winchester Drama Workshop. The Recreation Department opens a new series for grades three through six on Sept. 27 in the Social Studies open area of the high school, 2nd floor front.

Two accepted to ABC program

Joining the incoming freshman class at Winchester High School last week were two newcomers to town, Charles Baldwin and Joe Bustamante. Baldwin and Bustamante have been accepted by Winchester's A Better Chance, a local program that is part of a national effort to give deserving minority students a challenging high school education.

Both young men come from the New York City area and were among approximately 2,000 students nationwide who applied to National A.B.C. for placement in independent, day, and public school programs. Both traveled to Winchester to be interviewed, Bustamante in April, and Baldwin in June.

Having been accepted, they returned Labor Day weekend at the invitation of A.B.C. Resident Directors Patty and Tim Peterson for an orientation to the program and the town. Currently, they are settling in, getting to know the six other boys in the program, and learning their way around town.

When asked about their special interests, both boys spoke enthusiastically about basketball. Although they attended different schools in New York, it turns out they had played on the same basketball team at home, the Riverside Hawks, and look forward to playing together here.

Baldwin, who says math is his strongest subject, has two older brothers and Bustamante, three younger brothers. Both were chosen for their strong academic records and their willingness to accept new challenges in order to achieve their goals.

"A.B.C. welcomes Charles and Joe", says President Kathy Bodie, "and we wish them well as they start their high school career in our community."

Printmaker's work exhibited

During the month of September, Edward Rice of the Winchester Art Association will exhibit his serigraphs and etchings in the gallery of the Winchester Public Library, 80 Washington St.

Rice is an art instructor at St. John's Preparatory School in Danvers and has been affiliated with the school for 14 of the past 17 years. He earned a B.A. in American History from Catholic University in Washington, D.C. in 1968, and an M.F.A. in Art Education from Boston University in 1978.

Rice has worked at developing his skills in silkscreening, etching and painting over the past 15 years. He was introduced to these two printmaking processes while studying at Boston University and enjoys exploring the creative potential of these media. The color blends of his images are a dominant feature of his serigraphs. Whether soft and subtle or bold and vibrant, they provide a sense of depth that is unique.

Rice has won several prizes over the years in juried shows through the Winchester and Danvers Art Associations. His last one-man show was in October 1986 at the Peabody Institute of Danvers. His prints are currently on display at the Upstairs Gallery in Middleton, the Aries East Gallery in Brewster, and at Gallery 9 in Osterville and New Seabury. This past summer Rice also participated in the Marblehead Arts Festival, held annually during the July 4th weekend.

The exhibit is on view during normal library hours. For information, call the library at 721-7171.

Raising good kids in hard times is topic of talks

A series of workshops by Susan Axe-Bronk, PhD, Licensed Psychologist, will be offered this Fall as part of Winchester's Community Education Program. All workshops are limited in size so the presenter can focus on specific conerns and questions of participants. The schedule is as follows:

Effective and Compassionate Discipline: The workshop on Wednesday, Sept. 27 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Winchester High School will help parents find more satisfying approaches to disciplinary problems. The emphasis will be on effective and compassionate discipline which results in an improved parent-child relationship when stress is reduced and mutual respect is enhanced. Register at the Recreation Dept. in McCall Jr. High. Workshop fee is $10.

Dealing With Sibling Rivalry: This workshop, Wednesday, Oct. 4, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Winchester High School teaches parents to turning hostile sibling relationships into one of mutual respect and underlying love. # Library drop-in begins Sept. 28

The Children's Services Department of the Winchester Public Library will hold a series of "Drop-In" story hours this fall. After School drop-in story hour is for children in grades one through four. It will be held on Wednesdays from 3:30 to 4:15 p.m. from Sept. 27 through Nov. 15.

Latanision exhibits work

Carolyn Latanision, a Winchester resident, will participate in a two-person exhibit "Talk/Time" at The Copley Society of Boston, Sept. 26 through Oct. 7. The opening reception is Tuesday, Sept. 26 from 5 to 8 p.m.

Rather than simply chronicling different kinds of time-keeping devices, her works in watercolor, gouache, pastel, and oil do have various kinds of clocks in them, but more importantly, they depict places and ways time affects our daily lives and moods throughout days, seasons, and years, and how so frequently it plays a role in our communication with one another. Many of the things we do require an implicit knowledge of time and several of her paintings attest to that as well. Among her works being exhibited will be her Winchester Town Hall painting used as the set logo for Winchester Cable TV's "Focus on Winchester."

Latanision was just honored as a finalist in Jackson Hole, Wyoming for her painting of the Woburn Public Library, which was her entry in the Arts for the Parks competition sponsored by the National Park Academy of the Arts. Additionally, her work is represented in more than 20 corporate collections in the United States and Japan. Internationally, her work is part of many private collections. She has exhibited her paintings nationally and has had numerous one-woman exhibits throughout the Northeastern states.

Tina Prentiss of Wilmington, exhibiting collages on the same theme, is Latanision's co-exhibitor. She has exhibited her work nationally as well as internationally. Her Symbolic Portraits are in the Archives of the Smithsonian, and she represented the U.S. in the International Women's Year Exhibition at the Royal Society of Art in Adelaide, Australia.

The public is cordially invited to attend the opening of the exhibit on Sept. 26, 5 to 8 p.m. and the show will remain at The Copley Society through Oct. 7. The Copley Society is located at 158 Newbury St., Boston.

Visiting nurses seek support for telephone fund

Visiting Nurse and Community Health, Incorporated kicked off their small business fund raising drive appealing to the local business community to offer their financial support for the purchasing of a new "badly needed" telephone system. The current system is constantly breaking down and unable to be adequately fixed. The cost of a new system is $10,000.

A group of local business people have joined together to help raise this money, part of which we are raising within the community and part from foundations. Attorney Henry Quill and William Coppins of Coppins Company are just two of the many businesses in Winchester that are supporting this fund raising effort.

For more than 80 years, Visiting Nurse and Community Health, Incorporated has been providing quality nursing and home health services to the residents of Arlington, Lexington, Winchester and more recently in Burlington. Residents rely on these nursing and home health services and have for many years.

Help keep the phones ringing by contributing to the telephone fund. Contributions may be sent to: Visiting Nurse and Community Health, Incorporated, 87 Pleasant St., Arlington, Massachusetts 02174, Attention: Telephone Fund.

It's time for back to school physicals

Back-to-school rituals. Parents know them well. Unlike shopping for new clothes and notebooks, however, getting the children's physical exams is a duty nobody eagerly anticipates.

Nevertheless, there are ways to make the process rewarding for both child and parents, says Dennis Markovitz, M.D. a family practitioner on the staff of Winchester Hospital.

Preparation is the key. During the year, parents should observe certain developmental areas such as school progress, making friends, and self-confidence.

"Others have stated that this is a child's work," says Markovitz. "Just as a parent's job is his or her work, developing confidence and making friends is a child's work. A doctor will want to know how a child is doing in these areas."

As the date for the exam approaches, make a list of your questions and concerns. That way, you're certain of getting them answered. Also, talk to your children about the exam so they know what to expect. Depending on their ages, you may need to allay their fears.

"Children who are five to seven have active imaginations, and their fears are very real," says Markovitz. "Inevitably, children worry about shots. In most cases, they should have had all of them by the age of five, so parents can be reassuring."

Due to outbreaks of measles in various parts of the country, however, many major medical authorities are now recommending a secondary measles booster shot. Check with your doctor, both for your child and yourself.

At the exam, be sensitive to the fact that your children may want to see the doctor or nurse alone. They'll usually tell you when that time comes. Also, be aware that many doctors like to see the child for a few minutes without the parent, to help establish a relationship.

During the exam the doctor may ask questions and let them know what to expect, especially if anything is likely to hurt. The child will be weighed and measured and his vision and hearing will be checked.

The doctor also will check heart, lungs, stomach and other organs as well as breasts (boys and girls) and external genitalia. Then, the doctor will recommend appropriate tests (such as blood, TB etc.) check the child's inoculation record and ask if there are questions.

"As children get older, they may have questions they want to ask confidentially. Hopefully, the parents will respect their wishes and give them the privacy they need," says Markovitz.

The exam is an ideal time to help children learn to deal with peer pressure. "Kids and parents need to see that no child is perfect. Kids tease each other about being too short or too fat. An exam can help clarify what normal ranges really are and also determine and reinforce a child's self-confidence," says Markovitz.

A back-to-school exam also provides the opportunity to cover safety issues, says Markovitz. "Safety on buses, in cars (especially drinking and driving with adolescents), and injury avoidance in sports can be discussed."

Lastly, an exam can reassure children they're normal and healthy and the parents that they're doing a good job of nurturing their child.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

WHEN A LOW OFFER COMES IN

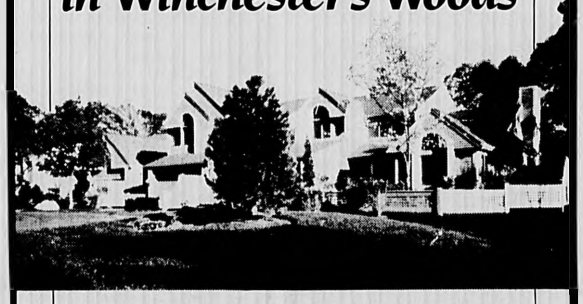

Your dining room table is the scene of high drama. Your home has been listed for sale for six weeks, and finally an offer has come in. You are meeting with the agents, and the offer sounds terrific until you get to the price. It's a whole lot less than you had expected.

Before you pass out or feel offended, remember that the first offer is often just the beginning of a negotiating process. Your agent can help you to weigh the good and the bad points, and sometimes an offer with a low price can look quite attractive to you once you understand all of the terms. If you are willing to make some compromises, the buyers may accept a counter offer that will net you more money. Also, a lower price from highly qualified buyers may be better than one from people who may have difficulties getting financing.

For solid advice on buying or selling real estate, consult the professionals at the Bixby & Porter Company Realtors. Please call us at 729-7000 or stop by our offices at 33 Thompson Street in Winchester.

Anne Perrault returns as Glee Club director

By MARY P. KELLY
Special to the Star

Anne Perrault is volunteering her musical abilities as pianist and director to lead the Jenks Center's Glee Club again this season.

Perrault will be performing as part of Trio Classique, a piano, cello and violin concert, at Town Hall, on the evening of Oct. 15. Many seniors will want to attend the performance.

To the dying leaves of Autumn
All the brilliance of nature

CSA sponsors 'Crackerbarrels'

The Community School Association (CSA) is the umbrella organization for the seven Winchester School Parent Associations, and is committed to fostering communication among parents, teachers, and the school administration, and to coordinating parents' efforts to maintain and improve the quality of our schools along with the Parent Associations, CSA is planning five informal get togethers with Superintendent, Dr. Charles L. Mitsakos. Each "Crackerbarrel" meeting will be held at a home of a community member.

Parents of school children and any interested members of the community are welcomed to attend any one meeting. Please plan to attend one of these meetings to ask questions and share concerns about education in Winchester.

The first two are scheduled for Sept. 28 at Diane Thilly's, 12 Brooks Street (Lincoln) and Oct. 3 at Lori Lerman's, 27 Forest Circle (Murraco). The remaining dates are Oct. 11 (Lynch), Oct. 29th (Vinson-Owen) and Oct. 25 (Ambrose). Locations for these will be announced later. All meetings will begin at 7:30 p.m. Any other questions please call 729-2594 or 729-1803.

Six named as semifinalists for National Merit

Mr. John M. Ritchie, Principal of Winchester High School, has the honor to announce the names of six semifinalists in the 1990 Merit Scholarship Competition of the National Merit Scholarship Program.

They are: Margaret S. Bauman of Everett Avenue, daughter of Dr. Roger A. Bauman and Dr. Margaret Bauman; Laura K. Jacobs of Winslow Road, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Jacobs; Jennifer S. Lee of Viking Road, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bom Sang Lee; Alison E. Roberts of Lebanon Street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Roberts; Heather L. Walsh of Wedgemere Avenue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David I. Walsh; and Elizabeth A York of Salisbury Street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard York.

CSA hosts halloween show

Join in the revelry of Halloween by attending the National Marionette Theatre presentation of the "Sorcerer's Apprentice" on Sunday, Oct. 29 in Lincoln School Auditorium. Children and adults will delight in the expressive puppetry, enchanting music and dramatic special effects.

After the Recreation Department's Halloween Parade, come over to Lincoln for the first show at 2 p.m. To accommodate the great interest in this high quality marionette production, a second show has been scheduled for 4 p.m.

Tickets are available for $5 and may be purchased by sending your request and a self-addressed stamped envelope to Gail LaRocca, 7 Mount Pleasant St., Wincheter. Indicate which show you will attend and enclose a check made out to CSA Enrichment.

The proceeds from the "Sorcerer's Apprentice" will benefit the Community School Association Enrichment Committee. This year, CSA Enrichment needs to raise monies to cover more than $8,000 in town-wide performances which reach over 1,700 students in Winchester.

Four major events are planned this year. Back by popular demand, Brian Gillie will return to grades 1 through 6 during the week of Nov. 6 to perform "Song in America", a rousing musical and historical review of our nation's songs.

Kindergarten students will be spellbound by storyteller Jennifer Justice, who will conjure the power of good which overcomes the force of evil through a collection of fairy tales. This coming spring, in addition to the annual Colonial Day celebration for second-graders, all students will enjoy the visual and musical imagery of Leland Faulkner. His Japanese folktales take on new meaning through the mesmerizing technique of shadowgraphy.

Due to underfunding of the Massachusetts Council on Arts and Humanities by the State, fewer grants are available through various cultural agencies. CSA Enrichment depends on community support which directly benefits the students of Winchester.

Mini-college program begins

Every Wednesday after school at 2 p.m. in the cafeteria of the high school, the Guidance Office will be conducting a Mini-College Program to which all high school students and their parents are invited.

On Wednesday, Sept 27, the following institutions will be represented:

American University, Baldwin Wallace, Univ. of Denver, Johnson State College, LeMoyne College, Univ. of Mass at Amherst, Univ. of Notre Dame, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Trinity University, Wellesley College, West Virginia Wesleyan College and Williams College.

Some thoughts on the open campus

By DARRYL NASH
Special to the Star

When a student at Winchester High School becomes a junior, their first thought is "open campus — finally!". And from there, they are off to Mister Donut or White Hen Pantry, among other popular daytime stops. But should a student have to wait this long?

Some students simply do not. A freshman or sophomore who wishes to leave school during lunch time will not be stopped. Though discouraged by teachers, the students often take the gamble, as many catch a ride with an upperclassman and it's off to fast food heaven. Why is it acceptable for upperclassmen to leave during lunch, but those in the ninth and tenth grades are confined to the cafeteria? This is simply a case that, if addressed enough with those in authority, could be easily altered.

Aside from lunch time, what about study hall release? Is it not just as easy to do homework at home as it is in a classroom? The same rules apply here as they do with lunch rules, except grades play a factor in study hall release. No matter what grade the student is in, a free, open period in the middle of the day is very valuable. For some, it may be used for what study hall is intended for — time to study and catch up on some homework. Others deserve the chance to use the period as a leisure break to take a walk downtown or a quick drive home to remedy what is a very stressful day for some. Why freshmen and sophomores are not given the choice is a mystery.

In with the new...

Students of WHS were welcomed this year by new principal John Ritchie. Ritchie, successor to Mr. Vincent Larocco who retired at the close of school last year, brought a new attitude to the students as he addressed each class upon their first day arrival.

Mr. Ritchie was quick to point out the fact that students are welcome to speak with him, as well as all other members of the school faculty, on personal and private terms if desired.

Mr. Ritchie seems to show a different, more laid-back attitude than his predecessor. His sense of humor, though, will take time to adjust to. Students of the Class of 1991 are still baffled over Mr. Ritchie's comment stating that he planned to arrange for all of the class to be accepted to an Ivy League school. Joke or not? We have yet to find out.

However, the fun and laid-back attitude of someone in such a high position helped to start the year off on a good note, one which has been maintained since day one. Even though he has only been part of the school for a few weeks, his enthusiasm at the year's first pep rally was felt. He, like the crowd in the stands of the gym, was crammed full of Sachem Spirit. Welcome aboard, Mr. Ritchie!

Sports stars pay the price: right out of their pockets!

This year marks the first year that sports players must pay a transportation fee to be on a team. Parents have started to speak out against this decision, which was made late last school year. The price is $35, which is paid for before the season begins.

There is more con than pro on the subject. Face it, this is absurd! A student that plays three sports over the school year (there are a lot that do) must pay more than $100. There are also others that may make a team and will travel as a member of the team ... but will rarely play. Not only has this person made only a small contribution to the team, he or she is also out $35 bucks!

Unless parents and students speak out more, the rule will continue and there will be small dents in the pockets of sports stars when June comes around.

WHS sports notes

Catch these exciting sports home games out on the field this season: Cross Country (Meets at Lynch School), Golf (Matches at Winchester Country Club), Field Hockey (Games at Skillings Field), Varsity Soccer (Games at Skillings Field), Jr. Varsity Soccer (Games at Leonard Field), Freshman Soccer (Games played at Manchester Field), and the girls Swim Team (Meets at "The Voke" in Wakefield). For those that just might find a little interest in football, flaunt your Sachem spirit at Knowlton Stadium, Manchester Field ... Congrats to Gene Bouley for his 300th win as a soccer coach ... Complete fall sports schedules are available at WHS upon request.

128 Service

by Dan Hogan, Service Manager

It's time to prepare your car for the seasons ahead. Start under the hood and the first thing to check, of course, is the radiator and cooling system. First, take a look at the anti-freeze coolant. If it shows signs of discoloration and rusting or had debris floating, it must be drained and replaced. The cooling system must also be flushed to clean it of any rust or scale buildup. The best type of flush is a good high-pressure flushing. Make sure whoever does the flushing uses a good system to flush all and any harmful deposits that may be accumulating.

Modern equipment is used to service cars at PETER FULLER OLDS. Open 8-5. Tel. 924-8100. M/C, Visa & A/E honored. We have our own body shop. We are authorized to do all factory warranty work on Oldsmobiles. We will finish servicing your car at the promised time. Stop in at PETER FULLER OLDS, Watertown Sq. "Olds National Service Award Winner".

315 Child Care

• AD-TIP •
CHILD CARE PROVIDERS:
Are you offering CHILD CARE in YOUR home for 1 or more children? Massachusetts state law requires that you must REGISTER with the MA Office For Children, and include your OFC license number in all ads.
If you have registered with the Office For Children and are just waiting to receive your license number from them, please indicate this when ordering your ad. We will verify the application with the OFC and print your ad with the words "license pending".

• AD-TIP •
CHILD CARE PROVIDERS
If you offer child care services for:
• 1 or more children
• outside the child's home
• during schooltime hours

Massachusetts State Law requires that you must register with the MA Office For Children (OFC). This office issues a license number to you which must, by law, appear in all advertising materials.

Babysitting service provided during after-school or weekend hours, in the child's own home, is an exception to this law.

Century Classified regrets recent confusion concerning use of the words "License Pending". The most recent ruling of our OFC contact is that this phrase does not satisfy state law. Therefore, Century Classified will not accept child care ads without an OFC number.

About this issue

This year, Century Newspapers is publishing an encore edition of the annual Newcomers' Guide.

In this second edition of the 1989 guide, Century hopes to give newcomers and longtime residents alike a chance to get better acquainted with their neighbors.

Publishing The Arlington Advocate, The Belmont Citizen-Herald, the Watertown Sun and The Winchester Star, we at Century report on a variety of issues that are common to many suburban communities. We often get requests from readers to tell them how neighboring towns are handling their problems, especially their budget problems.

In response to those requests, this installment of the Newcomers' Guide offers a sampling of recent front-page news from each of the Century communities: a 'Suburban Sampler' section. We hope it will give our readers some insight into events in neighboring towns and help them gain perspective on the issues in their home towns.

For newcomers to greater Boston, this issue offers a Back to School segment that outlines the wide variety of continuing-education opportunities available in the area. And Watertown Sun columnist John Moxley provides a primer on the greater Boston lifestyle in the Survival Guide pages.

Finally, we give the area's businesses a chance to introduce themselves in the From Our Advertisers pages of the guide.

The Century team hopes this encore edition will help all the residents of Arlington, Belmont, Watertown and Winchester get to know the neighbors just a little bit better.

Winchester photographer Arthur Griffin, a pioneer of color photography, has published many books of photographs. The books, along with prints of his works, are available for sale to the public. Griffin shot the cover photo for the 1988 Century Newcomers' Guide and for the first edition of the 1989 Newcomers' Guide. (George Ferrar photo)

Arthur Griffin puts N.E. in perspective

Since his days as a staff photographer at the Boston Globe more than 60 years ago, Winchester photographer Arthur Griffin has been snapping photos and turning landscapes into landmarks throughout New England.

With only a single photography course at the Boston YMCA to his credit, Griffin went on to become the New England photographer for Life and Time magazines.

As a freelancer, he shot for such magazines as Holiday, Liberty, Collier's, Coronet and the Saturday Evening Post. One of his photographs was the first color shot the Post ever used.

His photographs have appeared on the covers of telephone directories, on calendars and more recently in a collection of books he has created to showcase his work and the works of his literary colleagues.

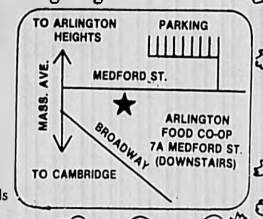

The books are "New England," "New England Revisited" and "New England: The Four Seasons." Each chronicles the picturesque New England landscape in visual images accompanied by essays from luminaries such as John Updike, William F. Buckley and Archibald MacLeish.

For the past few years, Griffin has been seeking a spot in Winchester to found a museum that would display his works. But there have been setbacks. Sites are scarce. And just when one site seemed suitable, a rare flower was identified on the land. A group of citizens rallied behind the flower, and Griffin had to look elsewhere. He searches still.

If he cannot find a suitable site in Winchester sometime soon, he laments, he may have to expand the search to neighboring communities.

Exactly what is Proposition 2½?

(Editor's Note: Many of the stories in the subsequent 'Suburban Sampler' pages deal with tight town budgets. To put those stories in context, we provide a brief explanation of the state's property-tax cap, which has played a major role in the suburbs' fiscal picture.)

By PATRICIA DAUKANTAS
For Century Publications

If you're new to Massachusetts, and heard your local officials mumbling this and that about "two and a half," you may be wondering what the fuss is all about. Does it have something to do with your new house costing two and a half times what your old house was worth?

No, it's only Proposition 2½, the colloquial term for the most famous — or infamous — law to be enacted in the Bay State in the past decade. It's been blamed and credited for everything from mass teacher layoffs to the booming state economy in the mid-1980s.

The legislation now known as Proposition 2½ appeared as Question 2 on a statewide referendum ballot in 1980, where it won approval after a heated campaign.

The law got the nickname of "Prop. 2½" because of its main proviso: cities and towns must limit their property taxes to 2½ percent of the "full market value" of all properties in the community. If communities had been taxing their homeowners more than that, the law mandated tax decreases of 15 percent annually until the 2½ percent cap was reached. Once there, property taxes can go up by only 2½ percent per year.

Around the time that Proposition 2½ was implemented, a lawsuit against one Massachusetts town resulted in the state requiring communities to revalue all properties every three years. Previously, it had been the custom in Massachusetts to conduct property revaluations only about every 10 years or so, and in some towns they were even more infrequent.

With Proposition 2½ came the expectation that cities and towns would cut back on governmental waste and fat, and, if necessary, could charge new or increased fees for municipal services. But for communities that wanted a lot more money, such as for school construction, the tax-cap law provided two avenues: the debt exclusion and the general override.

In the debt exclusion, the cost of a given capital project is excluded from the limits of Proposition 2½. The cost of the project is added to the base tax rate determined by Proposition 2½. When the project is all paid for, the tax rate goes back down to the normal Proposition 2½ limit.

A general override permanently allows a city or town to levy more than 2½ percent of the tax base in property taxes.

But municipal officials cannot raise money through either a debt exclusion or a general override unless a majority of their voters give their blessing in a referendum.

The Proposition 2½ law also contains several, perhaps lesser-known provisions.

Under "2½," Massachusetts renters get a state income tax deduction of half of the rent they have paid on their residence for the past year.

If you moved to Massachusetts from another state, you may be eligible for a partial rental deduction for the rent you paid during the part of the year you lived in the Bay State. See the Massachusetts income tax form instructions for details.

The auto excise tax, levied by cities and towns on all motor vehicles registered in their jurisdictions, was limited to $25 per $1,000 of valuation (or 2½ percent, just like real estate taxes). If you move to Massachusetts and register you car in this state, you soon will get an excise tax bill from your assessors, and you will get one each Jan. 1 thereafter.

Proposition 2½ took effect on July 1, 1981, the start of the next fiscal year after its passage. (The Massachusetts fiscal year runs from July 1 to June 30.)

The first few years following the implementation of Proposition 2½ saw a lot of layoffs and belt-tightening in area towns, which had already been suffering from the high inflation of the 1970s and a less strict tax cap imposed several years earlier.

The steady increase, however, ended this summer, when a large budget shortfall ushered in the start of the 1990 fiscal year, and the state cut back on its aid to the municipalities.

Arlington schools feel squeeze

By DAVID P. HAMILTON

And P.L. BUSTAMANTE

FROM THE ARLINGTON ADVOCATE

"This will be the first significant year people will begin to feel the effects of the cuts — more than other years, but how much they feel it will also depend on individual needs."

David McKenna

Arlington School Committee member

As Arlington Schools open, parents and students will begin feeling — some say for the first time — the sting of the heavy cuts the system has had to take over the last few years.

"This will be the first significant year people will begin to feel the effects of the cuts — more than other years," said School Committee member David McKenna, "but how much they feel it will also depend on individual needs."

If the individual need is to participate in sports or take music lessons, the first stings will come when parents will be asked to open their checkbooks and wallets and pay for their children to participate those activities.

Users fees for athletics and music were instituted last spring to offset some off the budget cuts. Officials are looking into charging for clubs, or just honing down the wide variety of clubs.

School Committee members were faced with imposing user fees, which most consider "distasteful," or cutting certain extra-curricular activities.

"Though they may not like paying, most parents I know would rather pay the user fees than lose the programs," said Carolyn Simmons, a parent with four children in the Arlington school system and a Town Meeting member from Precinct 12. "When a program is cut, out there isn't much of a chance of having it back."

Extra-curricular programs had to be cut anyway, and parents were rudely awakened when their children came home suddenly unable to sing in their favorite chorus.

"All of a sudden this cutting stuff is a reality," said Simmons. "It becomes a reality when your child is interested in something that no longer exists."

But extra-curricular activities are not the only options that no longer exist.

To avoid cutting academic programs altogether, school officials cut back on various subjects, such as foreign languages, or scheduled them to be alternated year to year.

Though a student may still get the two years of a foreign language required by colleges, the choice of languages and of the years in which they will be studied are more limited.

"Students will get the minimum requirements of college only — the extras ... that's just not going to be there," said Virginia Fuller, president of the Arlington Teachers Association, a teacher at the Brackett School.

Schools feel the squeeze in Arlington

User fees, cut backs forced this year

As programs and budgets are cut because of a steady decline in secondary school enrollment, the elementary grades are beginning to feel an uncomfortable tightness — the mini-baby-boomers of the 80s are just now reaching kindergarten and first-grade, swelling the ranks.

Two first-grade classrooms at the Brackett School were expecting 26 and 27 students to show up for the first day of school, Fuller said.

Elementary schools were hit pretty hard with the latest rounds of budget cuts, including the threat of losing the Academically Talented Program, science programs, and music.

Additionally, the $12,000 stipend for Bishop faculty members attending fifth grade outdoor education was eliminated, which means that, if the program continues, it will cost the students more, according to Jeanne Lefevre, co-president of the PTO at Bishop.

Teachers have been feeling the budget crunch for some time, and Fuller believes it is up to them to tell parents what it really means.

"Teachers need to communicate: 'I don't have enough of something to teach properly,' " she said.

While some of the changes are subtle or felt by only a few students at a time, one of the most dramatic signs that the town's budget was getting tighter faster and enrollments were declining was the decision to close the Gibbs Junior High School.

The move saved the school department $534,000, but also precipitated long, heated, and emotional debates. Some said the students would be traumatized; they would never get over the disruption in their lives.

Ironically, as the new re-arranged junior high school opens, it is the parents, not the students themselves, who seem to have had the most problems with the move.

According to Simmons, her daughter, who attended the Gibbs and will be entering the 8th grade at Ottoson, can't wait to get back to school.

"She's looking forward to going to the Ottoson. She knows 90 percent of the kids coming from the Gibbs, and that's what matters most," said Simmons.

Though some believe this year will be the first time those in the greater community will start to get an inkling of what the long discussions of budget cuts, huge dollar figures, and mega-teacher lay-offs really mean, most still claim Arlington offers quality education.

"I still have faith in the school system or I wouldn't be up there at every School Committee meeting," said Simmons. "I still believe the school system is good, but if something isn't going right, go up and fight for it, don't just sit around and wait for it to disintegrate."

Belmont officials face tough choices

By NINA ASCOLY
FROM THE BELMONT CITIZEN-HERALD

An override of Proposition 2½, closing the Chenery Middle School or a fire station, cutting recreation programs or laying off town employees were just a few of the ideas Warrant Committee Chairman Terry Milligan tossed out for discussion when members of the Warrant Committee met recently to begin the process of hashing out a new set of recommendations for a budget they thought they had concluded discussions on months ago.

The budget that Town Meeting appropriated funds for and passed in April anticipated level funding at the state level, Milligan explained. The recent events concerning local aid have made that budget "inoperative," he said.

The cut in state aid has left Belmont with a $1,075,459 budget deficit to contend with.

Belmont now has until Dec. 1 to come up with a balanced budget, Milligan said, adding that a Special Town Meeting would have to be held later this fall and the Warrant Committee will have to make proposals for revised appropriations.

> "The question is not whether we want it or need it, but how we're going to pay for it."
> Terry Milligan
> Belmont Warrant Committee chairman

Milligan presented committee members with several ideas for generating revenues and achieving operating and structural savings.

Milligan outlined four ways in which revenue could be raised to cover the shortfall.

He suggested that $430,000 could be raised in water and sewer charges and that money could be used as general revenues instead of for sewer repairs. In the spring of 1990, sewer repairs could be included in a package of capital items of about $15 million that would be funded through an override of Proposition 2u

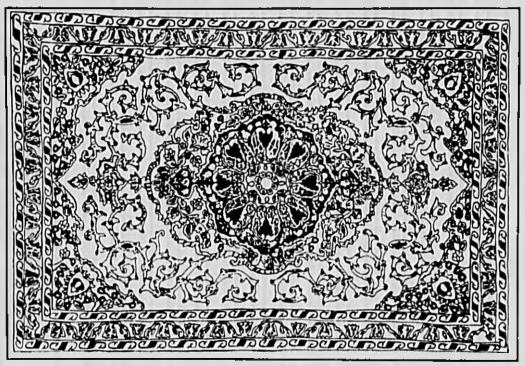

Milligan's second idea was to impose a user fee for solid waste collection, which would cost each household $220 for a townwide total of about $1,800,000. An alternative would be to seek an override of Propostion 2½ to maintain funding for trash collection through taxes, he suggested.

"The question is not whether we want it or need it, but how we're going to pay for it," Milligan said.

Town Accountant Harry Northway noted that when this item comes before voters for an override it often passes. Selectmen Chairman William Monahan said that setting up a user fee program is difficult.

Belmont faces tough choices

Cuts, fees under study

(From page 8)

The town could collect revenues from the sale of the old Kendall School or the town could retain the land and collect rent on it, Milligan suggested.

A final idea was a general override of Proposition 2½ to raise $1,075,00 in taxes. This would represent about a 3.75 percent tax increase, Milligan stated.

Ideas for operational savings would be to not fill any vacant jobs, delay the payment of bills and set up a biweekly payroll, impose a general cut of about 3 percent in all budgets or to offer early retirement incentives to reduce staff, Milligan suggested.

Ideas for structural savings that Milligan listed were closing Chenery Middle School, closing a fire station, consolidating deaprtments or functions or cutting recreation programs and services.

"It seems to me we're being forced into a variety of bad choices," said committee member Bruce Davidson.

"Don't take this list as the end," Milligan said. "It's only the beginning."

A public opinion poll might be a way of getting a sense of how residents feel about financial decisions the town might make, Milligan said. A survey would also begin the education process, he said.

"We as a Warrant Committee could begin to gather some information from the citizenry," Milligan said.

"People just don't believe it," Monahan said of resident's perception of the town's fiscal situation.

He called for a series of public forums to better inform residents on the choices that need to be made.

Members should be careful not to think of the solution as a choice between making short-term cuts or long-term changes, Milligan said.

"We have to do both," he said.

Belmont's three selectmen attended the recent session and agreed that immediate action must be taken to remedy the current shortfall, but they all pointed to the need for a long-range fiscal strategy.

Dumping fees in Winchester hiked

By KAREN BUCKLEY
FROM THE WINCHESTER STAR

A decision by selectmen to raise fees at the transfer station is just one step toward addressing the town's $775,000 shortfall.

In a 3-1 vote Sept. 11, selectmen voted to raise residential permits from $20 to $50 per year, and commercial hauler permits from $10 to $150 per year.

Selectman Robert Deering voted against the motion. Selectman William O'Leary was not present. The fee hike will raise an additional $195,000 in revenue for the town.

"This is not an easy process," said Selectmen Chairman Thomas Schmitt. Schmitt said the board generally agreed commercial haulers are presently "carrying more than their fair share" of the transfer station financial burden.

Deering, who has been against the fee hike all along, called the measure "regressive."

"It has nothing to do with usage," he added. Deering said he favored using funds from the stabilization fund, anticipated funds from the sale of the town-owned Woburn Loop land to private parties and $80,000 in reversions from the Town Hall renovation project to make up the $775,000 shortfall.

"I'm telling you, it's a form of tax, not a user fee. It's almost political suicide when people come up with those kinds of fees. There are people who can't afford it."

Michael Saraco
Winchester Taxpayers Association

"That way we're using available funds and aren't sacrificing any capital projects," said Deering.

Winchester's shortfall

Winchester was hit with a $775,000 revenue shortfall when word came from Gov. Michael Dukakis that cities and towns would not receive as much local aid as had been originally anticipated. In addition to local aid cuts, fewer reversions and less money generated from investments for the town also contributed to the town's shortfall.

The fees implemented by selectmen go into effect Jan. 1, 1990. According to the board's vote, all permit holders will be informed of an abatement system to provide an option for those who cannot afford the increased fee. Selectmen also asked that Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer prepare a proposal for a fee-based system at the transfer station to be presented to selectmen no later than May 1, 1990. Selectmen indicated they would consider and vote on such a proposal by July 1, 1990. Any rates set by July 1, 1990 would be effective Jan. 1, 1991.

Through a fee-based system, residents would pay for the amount of trash they dumped rather than a set fee. In this way, a family of two would not be paying as much as a family of six since a family of six generates more trash.

Winchester hiking trash dumping fees

In addition to the increase in permit fees, dumping of building debris, brush and limbs, mixed debris and metals will now cost haulers $150 per ton, as opposed to the current $90 per ton charge. Selectmen indicated the fee hike for these materials is in an effort to discourage haulers from bringing them to Winchester. Instead, the board hopes haulers will bring such debris to the Cambridge facility, where it costs $110 per ton to dump.

Fees for compost ($30 per ton) and commercial and residential trash ($35 per ton) will remain the same.

Enforcement

Town Manager Maurer said enforcement at the transfer station will be increased so that people without permits will not be allowed to use the facility. Many of the residents and commercial haulers at a recent public hearing on transfer station fees voiced concern about out-of-town people using Winchester's transfer station to dump their trash.

The new permits will be sold at the transfer station starting Dec. 1, and all residents will be mailed application forms. Stickers will be affixed to vehicles when the permits are bought to further assist in enforcement. "We will not allow the current process of not requiring (permit holders) to affix the stickers to their car," said Maurer. "There will be more rigid enforcement."

Resident's plea

Prior to the board's vote, resident Michael Saraco, vice-chairman of the Winchester Taxpayers' Association, urged selectmen not to raise the fees.

Saraco said he had received a number of calls from residents who were upset about the potential fee increase. Saraco said raising fees such as those at the transfer station would make Winchester unaffordable for some residents. "Is that what this board wants?" asked Saraco.

"I'm telling you, it's a form of tax, not a user fee," said Saraco. "It's almost political suicide when people come up with those kinds of fees. There are people who can't afford it."

"While you may hear from people who don't want a $30 additional transfer fee, I hear from people who don't want additional (budget) cuts," said Schmitt.

Chairman of the Alliance for Winchester's Future Lawrence Smith urged selectmen to implement the fees only as an emergency measure. "These are difficult times. This is a unique situation we're facing," he said.

"I agree this is not an easy solution," said Smith. "But I would sincerely urge you to set forward a real limitation (on the amount of time these fees will be in affect)," he added.

No choice

"At this point, I don't think we have any other solution," said Selectman Steve Powers. "Maybe this is something that should have been looked at several years ago." Powers also said if fees were not raised and Winchester eventually did away with the transfer station, the town could bring in a trash removal service such as Brown and Ferris Industries (BFI).

However, he added, "Once BFI has a hold of the Town of Winchester, it can raise the rates at any time and we have no say."

Selectman Judith Muggia said she was in favor of a long-range policy.

"I'm interested in seeing this set of decisions being the first step toward seeing the whole transfer station on an enterprise system," said Muggia. Through an enterprise system, fees charged would cover the total cost of operating the facility. Muggia also suggested the town could institute a credit system for recyclers.

Watertown eyes school spending

An audit of the School Department budget was requested by the School Committee when a surprise surplus of $700,00 was discovered just before the close of the fiscal year.

By Linda Rosencrance
FROM THE WATERTOWN SUN

A Boston accounting firm has determined there was no evidence of fraud involved in the School Department's Fiscal '89 budget surplus and that a full audit of the budget is not needed. An audit of the School Department budget was requested by the School Committee when a surprise surplus of $700,00 was discovered just before the close of the fiscal year.

At the independent accounting firm's preliminary presentation to the School Committee recently, Barbara Breen of KPMG Peat Marwick said the Committee "wouldn't find any information from a full audit that wouldn't be available from the business office."

The preliminary findings indicate that although internal budget controls are in place and the system is functioning properly, there is no accurate documentation of these controls, according to Peat Marwick representatives.

It is the conclusion of the auditors that there was no way for the School Committee or the School Department to track the status of the budget during the year.

Middle School PTO Co-President Richard Balzer questioned the competency of the present staff in light of this conclusion. Auditor Patrick Hyla responded "the management review did not evaluate staff or personnel." He said "it examined the procedures and policies being utilized by the School Department and pointed out the deficiencies in the utilization of the computing process."

The review included examination of the school department's accounting and reporting practices, the preparation of the budget document, and resource utilization (who does what and how often).

Peat Marwick recommended budget information about prior year expenditures be made available to the School Committee; the committee be provided with budget information regarding capital improvements and building maintenance; and the committee know what monies are "going into and coming out of these funds."

It was the opinion of the accounting firm that the School Department does not have enough staff to carry out these recommendations as well as run the business office. Peat Marwick's recommendation was to create a new position or enlist outside help.

The review also pointed out the "failure of the communication between the town and the School Department regarding the capabilities of the town's computing system."

Town Auditor Joseph O'Reilly said one of the criteria used in the on-site inspection of new systems was "how the systems affects the school structure." He said one of his primary goals is the combination of the

Aid guarantee sought

By CAROL BEGGY
FROM THE ARLINGTON ADVOCATE

A plan by Town Manager Donald R. Marquis to alleviate some of the crunch felt by the state's cities and towns got a boost earlier this month. State Attorney General James Shannon approved the measure for inclusion on the 1990 ballot.

Supporters of instating the guarantee for 40 percent of growth taxes to be returned to the municipalities will now have to go about the task of collecting the necessary 70,000 signatures for the question to actually be placed before the voters.

The question could mean as much as an additional $6 million in aid for Arlington. The increased local aid would come from the growth of corporate, sales and income taxes.

Called the MMA/Arlington proposal — after the Massachusetts Municipal Association — the plan to be brought to the voters is modified from an idea Marquis had originally proposed six years ago.

If the signatures are collected, voters will determine whether 40 percent of the growth taxes should be mandated to the 351 communities in the state. The money would be allocated according to the population and need of the municipality.

The second criterion was added to the Marquis plan by the Massachusetts Municipal Association — a private organization of municipal officials that works lobbying and watchdog group for local concerns.

If the question passes, it would take effect for fiscal 1992.

Marquis' plan gained momentum after Governor Michael Dukakis conditionally vetoed more than $250 million in local aid in July. (Arlington lost $1.2 million and had to call a Special Town Meeting to make further budget cuts.)

The MMA, of which Marquis and Selectmen Chairman Charles Lyons are board members, has indicated it will pursue the MMA/Arlington question.

The association will be relying on its membership — representatives of nearly all the municipalities in the state — to collect the signatures and support for the question.

"The manager really should be commended for his work," said Selectman Lyons. "This is his idea."

town's general ledger and the School Department ledger.

The final report will be made public on Sept. 15, after the School Committee has had time to check the factual basis for the report.

School Committee Chairperson Maureen Loukas, said there are "few internal and management controls in the School Department" and the Fiscal '89 surplus occurred because there was "no tracking of the budget." She said the School Department needs to work closely with the town to design an appropriate computer system. She said the recommendations of Peat Marwick "are an excellent springboard to the future."

School Superintendent Sally Dias said the review was "helpful in confirming that the systems in reporting, budgeting and accounting need some improvement." She said it was important to work with the computer people at the town hall to develop the most efficient system possible. It is important to "build a better system of reporting and accounting" in order to "proceed to build a better school system," Dias said.

Get to know the Boston area

Some helpful tips for newcomers to Bean Town and environs

By JOHN MOXLEY

So you're new to the Boston area and you've turned to the What's Up section for a little guidance, a few words of wisdom, on how best to avail yourself of all the amenities here in the Hub of the Universe. You want the skinny on all the right places to eat. You want to know the sights to see. You want the insider's tour of Bostonian High art and high living. In short, you want someone with a modicum of sophistication, good breeding, and a touch of elan to point the way.

Sorry, they've all left for the day. But don't be too disappointed. I'll do what I can.

Let me begin by saving your life.

If you just got in from Logan and haven't driven yet around here, there is something you ought to know about the traffic code in Boston and environs. There is none.

Well, to be technical about it, there are traffic laws on the books, but we Bostonians long ago made a collective decision to ignore them.

Perhaps our vehicular derring-do is a reaction to the stifling tradition of Puritanism that has oppressed us since Plymouth Rock. Perhaps it has something to do with the lead in our ancient water pipes accumulating in our accelerator feet. Or maybe, as some say, it's just plain old-fashioned blood lust. Draw your own conclusions. But in the meantime, watch out, buddy!

Do not be surprised when the light turns green to see oncoming traffic heading homicidlly toward you before they cut you off to turn left. They're not trying to kill you; thy're simply trying to spare themselves a 10-second wait – an infinity by Boston standards.

Do not become flustered to observe while travelling 40 miles per hour that the car in front of you has stopped suddenly, inexplicably, and without signalling, occasioning in you the unpleasant sensation that comes only with an attack of angina. He's just making a turn - Boston style. You'll get used to it.

Highway driving in the Boston area poses its own set of problems. Travel in the passing lane on the Pike or Route 128 at any speed short of hyper-space and you will invariably be rewarded with the sight of a road warrior crawling up your bumper.

The archetypical Boston road warrior drives (to use the word loosely) a Chevrolet Camaro - IROC model - and is one of the few Boston drivers who makes a habit of vigorously signalling, albeit by means of a raised index finger. If you attempt to placate him with higher velocity, he will only speed up, so just pull over when he locks in on you. Pull over, that is, if anyone will let you.

If you think Boston driving baffles you, wait till you find yourself trying to make sense of the Boston accent.

When, as is inevitable, you are "injid" in an accident, you will be taken by ambulance, if traffic permits, to one of the area's many fine "huss-piddles."

After a gangrenous three-hour wait, you may decide to forego treatment and make sheepishly for the local "baaaa" where you will want, understandably, to "orda a bee-yah."

Do not be surprised when the light turns green to see oncoming traffic cut you off to turn left. They're not trying to kill you; thy're simply trying to spare themselves a 10-second wait -- an infinity by Boston standards.

If you leave the "baaa" early enough, you might get home in time to have "dinna", drink a few more "bee-yahs", eat some "pup-con," and watch "Mundy Night Football." Get the drift?

There is more to life in Boston, however, than getting a black belt in defensive driving and tuning your ear to the local language. These accomplishments, though significant, are but a warm-up for Bay State politics where a fastened seat belt and careful listening are but minimum requirements.

We've got Boston Mayor Ray Flynn, the "neighborhood mayor", who, when he is not riding snowplows, playing basketball, facing down pit bulls, or charging into burning buildings, can be counted on to spend an occasional afternoon at city hall.

Then there's Boston city councillor Albert "Dapper" O'Neil, the clown prince of Bay State politics whose tirades against gays, liberals, commies, and assorted do-gooders are always good for a chuckle on the evening news.

In the state legislature, diminutive South Boston Senator Billy Bulger - the cock of the senate walk - reigns supreme. Bulger's Saint Patrick's Day dinner-cum-political roast in Southie is a major media event in a state ruled mostly by "ethnics," especially those of the Irish variety. At this event, much as in the Senate where he rules iron fistedly, it is considered impolitic for an office-holder harpooned by the stale-humored Bulger to react with anything but obsequiously fetched guffaws of self-deprecation.

Not everyone in Massachusetts politics is Irish.

There's the Duke, of course, whose sedate manner raises questions about his putative Greek heritage. A campaign aide to the Rev. Jesse Jackson spoke for many Mass. Democrats when he described the staid governor as "a Greek with a Nordic personality."

There's former state rep. Mel King of Boston's South End, a black, and the leader of the state's "Rainbow Coalition."

There's quick-witted House Speaker George Keverian of Everett, who carries the banner for the Armenians. And a whole bunch more. The melting pot overflows.

U.S. Senator John Forbes Kerry represents what's left of the Brahman impulse to govern; former Attorney General Frank Bellotti, an Italian, is a one man government-in-exile.

We've covered driving, accents, and politics, the major areas of danger and confusion for newcomers to Boston, and now it's time to move on. There's so much more.

In pro sports, we've got the Celts, the Red Sox, the Bruins, and the Patriots. No need for introductions here. One or more of these teams is usually in contention. You can count on the Celts to win; the Sox to disappoint; the Bruins to thrill; and the Pat's to be on the auction block.

The Sox' Fenway Park is one of the grander fields in all of baseball. Whatever your feelings for the spot of baseball, you are well-advised to attend a least one game per season.

Ditto for the Celts. The Boston Garden, though grubby, has its charm. And so, for that matter, does winning.

I'm not much for hockey, but as for football games, I can tell you from personal experience to stay away from Sullivan Stadium unless you like traffic jams, animalistic fans, and more traffic jams - in that order.

One cannot live by sport alone, and so God invented Harvard Square, home of the Big H, and the Berkeley of the east.

The Square, as it is called, has magazine stands (Out of Town and Nini's Corner); bookstores (Paperback Booksmith, Reading International, WordsWorth, the Coop, and countless others); museums (the Fogg, Bush-Reisinger, the Peabody); ice cream shops (Herrell's, Steve's, Baskin and Robins, et al); and, most interesting, its people (freaks, egg-heads, air-heads, and Replace your old fuel-wasting boiler with a new, energy-efficient Weil-McLain CGM gas boiler, and save 20% or more on your heating bills—this winter alone.

While most older boilers operate at 60% efficiency or less, a new CGM—with pilot-less ignition and an automatic vent damper—operates at 81% efficiency. A new CGM uses less gas to keep your home warm and comfortable, all winter long.

The CGM is made of cast iron for longest life. And it's built and backed by Weil-McLain—America's leading boiler manufacturer for over 100 years.

punks). Rounding off The Square's offerings, so to speak, is a wide selection of watering holes; movie theaters where patrons laugh ostentatiously at foreign language jokes; and even a witchcraft shop. It's that kind of place.

You may have to sign away your first-born to get a parking space, but if you can manage it, The Square is worth a look-see.

If you like Italian food, put the North End on your list of places to visit. From pizza to pasta fasulli, you'll find it somewhere along Hanover Street. And if you're a do-it-youselfer, you can try putting the squeeze on the North End's famous outdoor vegetable markets. A word of fair warning: don't let the vendors catch you!

Within walking distance of the North End, there are lots of things to do. You can frolic in the splendor of Waterfront park; take a (polluted) harbor cruise - sight-seeing, musical, or comedy - from the historic wharves; or watch the fish at the New England Aquarium. Both the fish and the divers who feed them, I am told, are newly wired for sound, an innovation that will doubtless provide hours of fun for those inclined to aquatic eavesdropping.

Bike riders, walkers, roller skaters, and skate-boarders will find the Dr. Paul Dudley White bike path a handy alternative to car travel into Beantown. The path runs from Watertown Square along the Charles River past Harvard Square into Boston. In addition to costing nothing, the path bestows upon its non-polluting users a sublime feeling of environmental superiority unknown to fossil fuel commuters.

The Sox' Fenway Park is one of the grander fields in all of baseball. Whatever your feelings for the spot of baseball, you are well-advised to attend a least one game per season.

For the ocean-minded, there are the beaches. Although drab condoization has largely replaced their ingratiating carney tackiness, both Revere and Nantsket beaches continue to offer an excellent alternative to good taste. Aesthetic considerations aside, however, these two beaches still draw the crowds. The fried clams at Kelly's at Revere are reason enough to make the trip; and for old-fashioned romance, it's hard to beat a ride on Nantasket's famous carousel.

Of course, there's always the couch potato approach - an old New England tradition. Just stay home. I do it all the time.

Mount Auburn Hospital helps newcomers find medical services

In today's mobile and urban society, choosing a doctor can be an overwhelming task.

But doing so is as important as ever.

Conditions diagnosed at an early stage are much more likely to respond to treatment, which is why regular plysical examinations are among the most important things you can do for your health.

When selecting a physician, shop around: look at location, health-plan affiliations, hospital affiliations, and credentials.

If you know anyone in the area, ask for recommendations.

To make the process of finding a doctor a little easier, Mount Auburn Hospital publishes A Guide to Mount Auburn Hospital Doctors, which includes comprehensive information about some 250 local physicians.

For a free copy, call community relations at 499-5098.

Affiliated with Harvard Medical School, Mount Auburn Hospital, Cambridge, is a 305-bed community and teaching hospital serving the residents of Arlington, Belmont, Cambridge, Lexington, Somerville, Watertown, and surrounding communities.

Merrill Lynch Realty welcomes newcomers

Helen Poftak

Dear Newcomer to Winchester,

First, let me welcome you to a wonderful community in which to live.

As a real estate professional, I have an opportunity to see many communities but I always have a warm feeling when I see the Mystic Lakes or the Middlesex Fells as I return to Winchester. The downtown shopping area is one of the only centers which boasts its very own Duck Pond flowing directly through the downtown business district.

Working for Merrill Lynch Realty has provided me and my 15 sales associates with a wonderful opportunity to work directly in the center at 552 Main Street. I'm sure you can remember the first time you looked at apartments or houses and how the town "grabbed" you!

Hopefully, you will become part of the fabric of the town. There are many volunteer positions and we have been fortunate to have a great number of townspeople volunteer their time and talents. It's also a great way to meet people.

We know you've probably already bought or rented but please feel free to stop in and ask questions regarding Winchester and surrounding towns, refinancing the recent revaluation of property townwide or how do I get my real estate license.

Again, welcome. Winchester is where I chose to raise my family and it was a very good decision.

Sincerely,
Helen Poftak

Cordima Chiropratic stresses natural care

What is Chiropratic?

Health, not disease. Natural care, not drugs or surgery. These are the central concepts of chiropratic. Chiropratic beliefs are based on the fact that the nervous system controls, regulates or monitors all functions of the body. Therefore, interference with normal nerve function can cause disease or malfunction as well as severe pain.

Nerve distribution and body mechanics is such that this interference occurs most often within the complex spinal column. But the effects are not confined to the spine. It can cause disorder in any organ, part or system of the body.

Chiropratic care realigns misalignments, relieving nerve interference, thereby allowing the nervous system to reestablish its role and allowing the natural body activities to heal disorders and relieve pain.

Our responsibility to our patients is to (1) understand the extent of health disorders, (2) communicate that information to our patient and (3) render the care necessary to correct the problem.

Correcting these misalignments (subluxations) are done so by using gentle and painless techniques. Upon the first visit the patient undergoes a thorough case history, complete orthopedic/neurologic and chiropratic examination, along with x-rays if they are needed. Following the evaluation of the x-ray analysis and comprehensive exam the doctor will give you a report of findings. At this point the patient begins treatment which consists of spinal adjustments, physiotherapy and myotherapy.

The doctors at, Dr. Thomas Cordima and Dr. Christopher Cordima have dedicated their family pratice to your health care. Dr. Cordima has been our community chiropactor for the past 26 years. Their 14 room office is designed specifically for you, complete with the most up to date equipment needed to relieve pain and restore health.

The objectives of the Corima Chiropratic Office are to be primary health care providers, where healing and education are the first and foremost priorities and to provide quality chiropratic services in an office that is warm, caring and professional.

Greater Gardner Furniture worth visit

The Greater Gardner Furniture Outlets are located in North Central Massachusetts and offer people in New England quality, brand name furniture and accessories from traditional to country to contemporary at outlet prices.

We welcome your visit to the Greater Gardner area and the rich heritage of fine craftsmanship that is native to the region.

Settled in the early 1700s, this area attracted fine wood workers from around the world. In 1805 chair making began in the city of Gardner which became known as the "Chair City of the World;" Winchendon is historically known as "Toy Town" for their workmanship.

Gardner, Templeton and Winchendon are still known today for fine craftsmanship and the many furniture factory outlets that feature well made home furnishings from all around the world at prices that fit any budget.

Whether you're furnishing a new home, remodeling, looking for that "special" piece or just browsing, you will discover accessories that enhance any room in your home.

For historical background, be sure to stop at the Gardner Heritage State Park Visitors Center. Exhibits will tell you about the history of furniture making in the area. If you need more information, call the park at (508) 630-1497.

Comprehensive Academics a complete tutoring service

Comprehensive Academics is a complete tutoring service located in the center of Winchester.

It provides educational support to students in grades K-12 and college. Gitte Irving, director, points out that many students experience difficulties in school, sometimes as a result of a learning disability, sometimes due to absence from school

"Some of our students need long-term remediation and support, others find themselves in a temporary 'slump' and need help getting back on track. A student may have had several successful years in school, but suddenly finds some of the work very hard.

A little extra help can go a long way to restore that student's self-confidence," explains Ms. Irving.

After pursuing an education overseas (France, England, Iceland) Ms. Irving received her M.Ed. from Lesley College, Cambridge, MA in 1977. Ms. Irving taught in the public schools for 5 years prior to starting private tutoring in 1983. Ms. Irving is listed in Marquis Who's Who in the East and Who's Who of American Women.

Ms. Irving is certified by Mass. General Hospital in the use of Orton-Gillingham strategies for remediation of specific language/learning disabilities (dyxlexia). For more information about the tutoring program, or for a free consultation, call Ms. Irving at 729-3686. Comprehensive Academics is located at 573 Main Street, Winchester.

RE/MAX offers seasoned brokers

RE/MAX internationally is known as the company that has "the cream of the crop" brokers - seasoned, high producing and dedicated to careers in real estate.

This means that each transaction is handled in a careful, business-like manner with the highest degree of ethics and energy.

They are very serious about their work and the peer support is very strong. The end result is superior service to the seller and buyer who can feel confident that highly trained experts with proven abilities will be servicing their real estate needs. They are serviced by not only one seasoned agent but also the support of an entire staff to swiftly meet their needs.

The concept encourages greater efficiency and competence.

The formula behind RE/MAX is that all high-producing real estate agents should be able to keep 100 percent of commissions and not split money earned through hard work with the broker-owner of their office. In return RE/MAX agents share the minimal expenses of running the office.

There is an old saying that the real estate industry has the best possible retirement plan, the real estate agents work hard for years, split their commissions with their broker/owner and the broker/owner retires.

As one RE/MAX agent said, "RE/MAX is not interested in a share of my profit, only my success."

RE/MAX gives the sales agent the authority to be his own boss, cut special deals without the broker/owners' permission, allowing for quicker sales.

The RE/MAX agent can make their own decisions, set goals and have the benefit of a large international network, which in turn will allow for a stronger and more profitable future in real estate evidenced by 23 sales by RE/MAX all united realty in the month of July, a time considered a "slow market".

Sales agents buyers and sellers enjoy the pride of being associated with a top-flight company. RE/MAX personifies the image of an ideal real estate company, a win/win situation for seller, buyer and sales agent.

Photography by Mary now located in Arlington

"Who is Mary?", is a question many may have wondered since the appearance of a sign "Photography by Mary" above New England Photo, at 432 Mass Ave, this past May.

Mary Therese Bush, an award winning photographer, relocated her Lexington-based business when she found her locaton in Arlington.

Mary photographs people "People are interesting and unique, and should be viewed in that way." After many years of photographing studio subjects, her style has developed into a very personal service to her customer. "I believe in capturing the personality of my subject, along with the love that they have for the person the portrait is for. In my group portraits, of families and children, my goal is to capture the love that they have for each other."

Environmental Portraiture is people photography in a natural setting, being indoors or out, at the home, park, city or beach. Natural settings make people much more comfortable. We are in the final stretch of the outdoor season, so don't wait if you are thinking about that portrait in the yard!

From Plum Island to the Public Gardens, Mary enjoys traveling to many beautiful locations. A portrait at sunrise will tell you the extend she will go for the perfect shot. She operates by appointment, offering complete customer service to each and every client. "People want quality from me, otherwise they'd go to a department store. I offer One-of-a kind images, like a painting."

"When a mother is holding back a tear after she sees the portrait I just created of her child, I know I have achieved success. What a great satisfaction!". Call 643-7279.

McCabe's Home Specialities carries home-related items

McCabe's Home Specialties celebrating 17th anniversary

McCabe's Home Specialties is the retail division and headquarters of Dan McCabe's Creative Carpentry, Inc. which is now celebrating its 17th year of operation in Lexington.

Company founder, Dan McCabe describes the Home Specialties store as the source for just about any house-related item you can think of.

"Seven years ago we opened the store more or less in response to the many requests we'd received over time from homeowners we had done carpentry work for.

Many of them were looking for alternative heating equipment, specialty hardware, accent items and so forth.

It was soon clear that there was no singular source for this wide range of products — particularly top-quality products — so we decided to fill the void and become that source.

Ever since we've been continually adding to the scope of the store in keeping with the overall 'house accessory' theme as you can see displayed in our showroom."

Expert installation services are available for all products, and special requests of any kind are encouraged by McCabe's knowledgeable staff.

It's Easier To Build A Boy, Than Mend A Man.

"They said to start him as soon as possible...so we did. At the earliest ages we encouraged him to read, to play sports, even to learn the trumpet. But we didn't urge him on spiritually. Not at all."

Brad's parents can go on for hours describing the pain they now endure over their son's reckless lifestyle. They're sure his getting involved with those so called "friends" didn't help. He's grown now - even lives in another city, but it keeps getting worse. The divorce, now the drinking. They know it's not their problem anymore, but their hearts just won't agree.

Millions of parents know how Brad's mom and dad feel. Most will readily say it is easier to build a boy than mend a man.

We're into mending. But we'd much rather help you build. Get the kids and come. We're waiting with open hearts.

Ann Blackham meets challenges of today's real estate market

"Today's real estate market is a challenging one," says Ann Blackham, CRB, CRS President and owner of Ann Blackham & Company, Inc., Winchester's continuing leader in residential sales and listings.

"It's not a matter of a 'good or bad' market; it's a different market that demands top-notch realtor skills and constant professional service."

"The real estate market is cyclical and today we find more cautious buyers for a larger inventory of homes and people continue to buy and sell homes" she says.

With the decline in mortgage rates, Mrs. Blackham expects to see an increase in market activity this Fall.

Not many people know and respect the Winchester real estate market as well a Mrs. Blackham. The Blackham family is in their fifth generation in Winchester.

"When your name is over the door," says Mrs. Blackham," you have a commitment to excellence and personal service of the highest degree - we have a continuing tradition of that kind of excellence!"

Founded in 1968 by Ann Blackham, former General Sales Manager and Corporate Director of James T. Trefey, Inc., ABCO, Inc. is the only Winchester real estate firm to be a member of the Multi-Million Dollar Club every year since 1971 when the club was started and in 1979 achieved the coveted Life Membership Award.

Mrs. Blackham has a distinguished record of achievement in the business world and a history of outstanding civic participation. She is presently a Director of Bay State Health, Corporate of Winchester Hospital, Director of the Speech & Hearing Foundation, Director of Mass Taxpayers Committee, and is listed in Marquis Who's Who of American Women, Who's Who in Finance and Industry, and Who's Who in the East.

"Our job as Realtors," says Mrs. Blackham of herself and a staff of 26," is to help people through the very exhaustive and complex process of buying and/or selling homes. It is a decision that impacts many areas - beyond pocketbooks alone - of our lives."

In keeping with its "Traditions of Excellence," ABCO's Realtors represent an average of more than 10 years in the real estate business. Many boast long records of achievement, such as Mary McCue with 30 years of Realtor success. Newcomers to the business contribute an impressive variety of career experience and accomplishment to this sesoned staff.

Ongoing professional training and local involvement are mainstays to ABCO's continued success. "We are locally owned and staffed by professionals who have spent years living and working in this area. # Four charged in salon drug raid

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

A Winchester hair salon was the site of a combined drug raid by local, regional and state law enforcement officials on Sept. 22 which resulted in the arrest of two Winchester residents, a Lexington resident and a Woburn resident on various drug charges.

The raid was conducted by Winchester Police, NEMLEC (Northeast Metropolitan Law Enforcement Council) forces and DEA (Drug Enforcement Adminstration) agents, who stormed the Swanton Street site following a lengthy investigation.

The four were arraigned Sept. 26 in Woburn District Court on charges of illegal drug activities, after the raid allegedly turned up cocaine, heroin and drug paraphernalia and confirmed the suspicions of local police that the 102 Swanton St. business was a center for drug distribution.

Charged in the case are: Joseph Forester, 44, of Spruce Street, John P. Griffin, 30, of Orange Street in Woburn, Anthony Bellino, Jr., 24, of Lincoln Street in Lexington and a 17-year-old Winchester woman.

A three-week surveillance period gave Winchester detectives enough evidence to secure a search warrant on the morning of Sept. 22 and proceed with an investigation of the premises later that afternoon.

At 3 p.m. police arrested one occupant of the house as well as the three other individuals on charges of illegal drug activities including distribution and conspiracy.

Police confiscated undisclosed amounts of substances alleged to be cocaine and heroin, syringes and other drug paraphernalia, according to Detective Lt. James Pierce. Police also seized one car, one van and an undisclosed amount of cash.

The four suspects were arraigned in Woburn District Court on Sept. 26 by Judge Francis P. Cullen. A plea of not guilty was entered to the court on behalf of all four of the defendants.

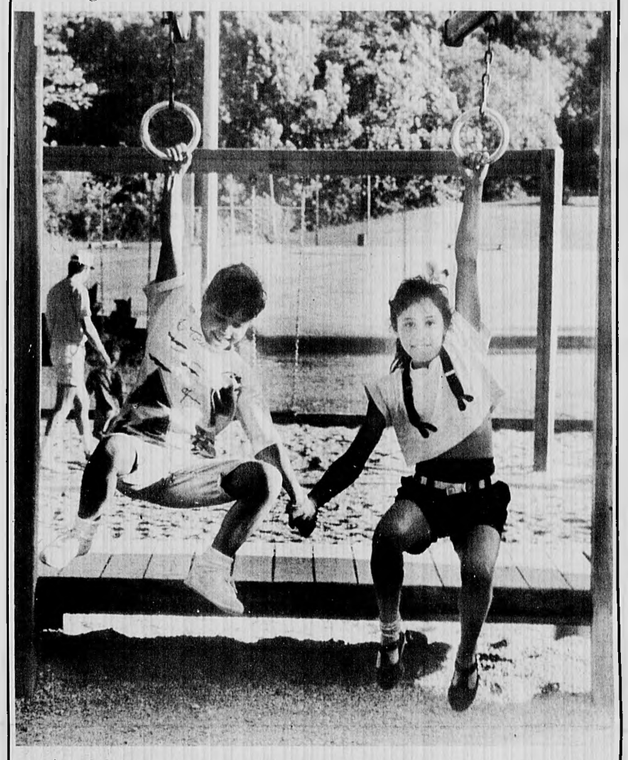

A pre-trial conference has been set for Nov. 3. In the interim, the confiscated drugs will be weighed and analyzed, according to Pierce.

Forester was charged with manufacturing/distributing a class B substance (cocaine) to a minor, illegal possession of a class B substance (cocaine,) possession of an instrument used to administer a controlled subtance (syringe,) conspiracy to violate controlled substance law and illegal possession of a class A substance (heroin.)

Bellino was charged with manufacturing/distributing a class

Tax bills sent out

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Although Winchester residents have a fairly good record for paying their bills on time, selectmen are looking to speed that process up, particularly as far as water bills are concerned.

Town Treasurer Carol Thomas met with selectmen Monday night to discuss the collection of tax and water bills.

According to Thomas, the town collects 97 to 98 percent of real estate taxes on the due date and approximately 90 percent of water bills.

As a result of that discussion, selectmen have asked Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer to look into the possibility of placing a lien on the second half of the tax bill for unpaid water bills. According to Thomas, all liens and betterments are currently added to the first half of the tax bill.

Selectmen suggested other ways to speed up the collection process, including adding a summons charge, increasing the interest rates on unpaid water bills, and more aggressive notification prior to payment, as well as requiring bills be paid before an abatement can be requested.

According to Thomas, water and sewer bills are now sent to Winchester residents quarterly. Tax bills are sent out by Oct. 1. The first half of the tax bill is due Nov. 1. Residents receive a second notice sometime around February, and the second half of the tax bill is due May 1, said Thomas.

Water bills are prepared and mailed through the water department, and are due 30 days after they are issued. If the bills remain unpaid, they are put as a lien on the following year's tax bill. For example, tax bills sent out on Oct. 1, 1989 include liens against property for water bills that were sent out but not paid in calendar year 1988.

Maurer said this is the first opportunity the town has to place liens on the property due to the tax billing cycle.

Mitsakos outlines local war on drugs

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

President Bush recently vowed to renew the war on drugs in America, and so too have local school officials armed themselves with an artillery of programs and activities — readying themselves to do battle with the problem of substance abuse here in Winchester.

At the Sept. 26 School Committee meeting, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Charles Mitsakos outlined a bevy of substance abuse programs, which fall into three stages — ongoing programs, new programs and programs in the developmental stages. Each of these programs has been specifically designed to address the causes and effects that stem from substance abuse among the town's young people.

"We feel if we offer such a variety, we will meet the needs of all the kids in some way," he added.

Mitsakos outlined five ongoing programs, which have met with success over the years and will continue throughout this school year.

The first is the substance abuse information given to students within the health education course. According to Mitsakos, the information is age-adapted and is part of the fixed curriculum for each grade level.

Also, peer teaching is a program made up of students in the high school who work with junior high and elementary age students to counsel these children on the issues of substance abuse.

Consultants at odds over site closing

Landfill tests get mixed reviews from different firms

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Results from soil, vapor and water testing at the Rock Avenue landfill site drew contrasting recommendations from the two consulting firms hired to evaluate the data.

In draft reports submitted to the Board of Health, the two consulting firms, EA Engineering, Science and Technology (EA,) the firm hired by the Winchester Board of Health, and Hidell-Eyster Technical Services, Inc. (HETS,) the firm retained by owner of the property Charles Ferrari, have analyzed the data from the borings and testings conducted since June, 1989.

HETS however, recommends closure of the site, while EA denounces closure as a viable option citing new evidence that shows the landfill contains hazardous materials.

Chairman of the Board of Health Dr. Stephen Black-Schaffer emphasized however, the report submitted by EA is in a draft form — and was submitted prior to the HETS report. EA was hired by the town to observe the testings and evaluate the findings of HETS' work, and therefore the information contained within EA's report cannot yet be considered complete until EA is able to review HETS' report.

The disagreement in the draft reports however, is just the latest in a string of controversy that has held the property in limbo for almost a decade. Neighbors of the site contend the landfill contains hazardous materials. In 1984, Ferrari retained the services of HETS to investigate these allegations. Since that time, the two groups have been at logger heads — Ferrari maintains the fill is not dangerous, the neighbors maintain that it is.

To settle the dispute, last spring, the Board of Health hired Dr. Sami Fam of EA to hammer out a written agreement between himself and John Hidell of HETS as to the scope of testing to be performed this summer. The scope of work was agreed upon, the results, it seems, are a different story.

An exerpt from the report submitted by Hidell-Eyster reads, "Given the data and findings of this and previous reports, it remains Hidell-Eyster's opinion that public health, safety and environmental interest will all be best served by the Board's (of Health) grant of the requested site assignment and closure of the site as approved by the DEP."

In a draft report submitted by EA, the firm says that new evidence uncovered during this summer's testing would preclude the closure of the site.

This new information consists of the determination that "1 / the only material on the site is not a virgin nor used oil but rather a sludge material likely to have been gener

Board seeks proposals for train station

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Selectmen are seeking proposals for the sale or lease of the Winchester train station.

The property, located on Waterfield Road, contains a building of 1,970 square feet. The building is currently occupied in part by the Chamber of Commerce while the rest remains unoccupied.

According to Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer, the proposal is set forth in an effort to increase revenue for the town and improve the area by adding to the business community.

At present, the cost to the town to maintain the building per year is $7,900 — $2,400 in property taxes and $5,500 in heat and electricity.

In seeking proposals, selectmen were unagreed as to whether parking spaces should be included in the town's offer.

"I don't think you're going to find someone willing to own or lease (the building) without some parking spaces," said Selectman Steve Powers.

However, Selectman Robert Deering disagreed. "We may own the property and we may be leasing it out, but we're no different from any other landlord. I wouldn't suggest we guarantee a number of (parking) spots," he said. Deering said it would not be fair to offer guaranteed parking at that building when most other landlords cannot do so in the downtown area.

Powers requested that Town Counsel Wade Welch and former State Representative Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh, who was instrumental in the town's acquisition of the building, be called in to provide some history of the project.

Proposals must be submitted to the Town Manager's office by Oct. 27 at 4 p.m., at which time they will be opened and reviewed. According to Maurer, the following factors will be considered: purchase and/or lease price, proposed use, compatibility of use to downtown area, use in relationship to the railroad facility, off-street parking requirements.

Ed Govostes enjoys new culinary fame

By GLYNIS GORDON
Special to The Star

If you were to walk into Ed Govostes' kitchen one evening, you might well witness an unusual scene. Although it looks no different from any typical kitchen in Winchester, it can be transformed by an activity rarely seen in the average home.

Two large TV cameras take up the only two unfilled corners of the room, and floodlights stand between them. Television monitors, strategically angled, sit proudly on the kitchen table.

And, perhaps more importantly, two chicken breasts lay near the stove next to other ingredients, ready to be cooked — and filmed — on cable television. This is "Ed's Place," the setting for a cooking show by the same title on Winchester's Channel 19.

In the midst of it all stands smiling Ed Govostes, casually dressed, with a white chef's apron tied around his waist. In his daytime life he is a master plumber, a 37-year veteran of the industry who runs his own plumbing and heating business with one of his sons. His career has been good to him, providing for his family (which includes three grown-up children) and serving the needs of the community.

And by night he teaches cooking on television. Why? It's not as incongruous as it seems.

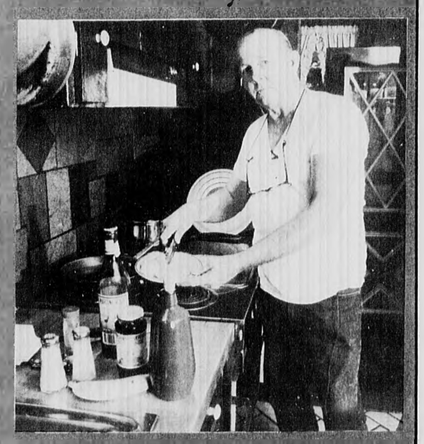

"My mother was a fantastic cook," he recalls. "And so was my father. As a child growing up, food was a big thing. The family centered around the table. And it was the same when I raised my family. We always sat down together, always ate together."

He credits some of this to his ethnic background. "Half my heritage is Greek. Definitely that is the influence. 'Some of the greatest chefs in the country are Greeks,' I tell everybody," says Govostes.

Although his culinary interests have roots in his childhood, it was more recently that it became a serious hobby. In 1980, he won the National Beef Cook-off, representing the state of Massachusetts in a national contest. Between that time and two years ago, he "did a lot cooking," throwing dinner parties for friends and achieving a fine reputation as a cook.

Then an original recipe he submitted for Yankee Magazine's cook-off in 1987 won him the prize in the Poultry Division — an elaborate four-day weekend for him and his wife at the Parker House. And there have been other contests.

POLICE LOG

Monday, September 25
1:25 a.m.

Officer Thomas Romeo was dispatched to the Mister Donut on Main Street to take a report of a larceny. The owner of the store told police that the night cook had allowed three employees into the locked shop at approximately 12:30 a.m. that morning.

According to police reports, the employees were three 17-year-old female Winchester residents. The night cook observed one of the girls open the cash register and put money back, said police. When confronted by the night cook, the girl told him she was replacing $40 she had observed another one of the girls take earlier in the day, said reports.

The night cook however, counted the cash register receipts and discovered that more money than the $40 was missing, according to police. Additional money was then handed over by the girl who had originally taken the money, said police reports. The night cook then contacted the owner who responded to the store and found the receipts to be $26.73 short. At this time, the police were called to the scene.

The girl in question admitted taking the money but said she returned all the money she had. She also told police she had been drinking and "couldn't remember anything."

The owner of the bakery told police he wants the balance of the stolen money returned. The mother of the girl who stole the money was unable to pay the balance and told police her daughter was "out of control" and asked that the matter be handled in court, according to reports.

Sunday, September 24
2:57 p.m.

Officer Theodore Yeanacopolis was called to a Main Street and Stowell Road location to take a report of an alleged hit-and-run accident.

According to reports, the officer spoke with a neighbor who showed the officer small car parts that were left on the ground by the hit and run vehicle, including the right side door. The neighbor had called the station 15 minutes after the crash and reported the accident and furnished the registration number from the vehicle's license plate.

The driver was found to be a Woburn man, and when contacted he admitted to police he had struck the hydrant and the barrier. The man told police he had allergies and was sneezing at the time of the crash, said reports. He also told Winchester police he had planned to report the incident to the authorities.

A preliminary investigation by police showed the man had been involved in numerous such accidents in the past. The driver was issued a citation for leaving the scene of an accident.

Damage at the scene was confined to a steel-eye beam that was bent and the fire hydrant was moved three inches. No leaks were observed, according to police.

1:50 p.m.

Officer Gary Rogers responded to a two-car accident on Cambridge Street.

The driver of the first car, an 80-year-old Woburn woman, was attempting to make a left turn from Cambridge Street into the Woburn Plaza lot, said reports.

The second car, driven by a Wellington Road man, was traveling north on Cambridge Street when the first car failed to yield the right of way and the cars collided, said reports. Damage was sustained to the second vehicle on the left front quarter panel and fender, according to police reports. A citation was issued to the first driver for failure to yield the right of way.

11:30 a.m.

While operating radar, Officer Steven Fields observed a 1984 Chevy Monte Carlo on Pond Street by Woodside Drive traveling at 47 m.p.h. in a 30 m.p.h. zone.

The officer stopped the vehicle and when the driver, a 29-year-old Medford man, rolled down the window the officer detected an odor of marijuana from the inside of the car, said police reports.

The officer also noted an open ashtray that contained what appeared to be several roaches and a roach clip, said police reports. The driver passed all field sobriety tests, but was cited for speeding and was informed that further action may follow regarding possession of a marijuana cigarette and roaches.

Officer Gary Rogers was called to the scene of a two-car accident involving an Arlington resident and a Cambridge resident.

The first car, driven by an 17-year-old Arlington woman, was traveling north on Cambridge Street and the second car, driven by a 69-year-old Cambridge man, was making a left turn from Cambridge Street onto Church Street. The first car was unable to stop due to the wet road conditions and struck the rear of the second vehicle, said police reports.

According to police, the second vehicle sustained damage to the right rear tail light and the right rear quarter panel.

Friday, September 22
6:18 p.m.

Officer Jonathan Dean responded to a two-car motor vehicle accident on Swanton Street.

According to police reports, the first car, driven by a 16-year-old Oneida Circle resident, was making a right turn from Florence Street onto Swanton Street when it came in contact with the second car's trailer. The second car, driven by a 26-year-old Mystic Street man, had been traveling east on Swanton Street when the accident occurred, said reports.

Party draws top GOP candidates

By GLYNIS GORDON
Special to the Star

One-hundred-and-twenty-five people swelled the Everett Street home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert King last Friday night.

"What's going on? Do you think it's a wedding?" a passerby was heard to say.

The guests were in high spirits, yes, but — no — they weren't gathered for a wedding. It was a cocktail party — and the guest list looked like at "Who's Who" of local and Massachusetts Republicans.

The fundraising event, co-sponsored by the Winchester Republican Town Committee, chaired by John Cannon, and by the Women's Republican Club of Winchester, headed by Joanne Galvin, provided a forum for potential gubernatorial and other candidates to make brief remarks and get better acquainted with local party members and potential supporters.

The enthusiasm of the group was notable.

"This breaks all records that I've seen in Winchester," said House Minority Leader Steve Pierce, speaking of the large number of people who turned out.

"The crowd here is fantastic," said Rep. Peter Torkildsen, who announces his candidacy for lieutenant governor in a couple of weeks.

"You'd think that the election was next month and not 14 months away."

Probable gubernatorial candidates present included Senator Paul Celluci, businessman and former U.S. Representative Paul Cronin and House Minority Leader Steve Pierce.

"We have perhaps the finest gubernatorial field that any party has ever had in the history of Massachusetts," said Rep. Peter Blute, a possible candidate for lieutenant governor.

"All of them are qualified, experienced, and credentialed."

"It's good to be back in Winchester," said Joe Malone, who plans to run for the state treasurer's seat.

"This kind of gathering brings back memories of the grassroots of politics days when John Volpe (who lived down the street) would come to my house. My parents would bring together a group of people and he'd get up there and give a good stem-winding speech."

Along with the other candidates, Malone expressed appreciation for the loyalty of supporters in Winchester in the recent past.

"I got into the Senate race late when no one else emerged, so I had only one month to collect signatures. No one worked harder than the people of Winchester to get me on that ballot."

Malone is now working on "a different sort of crusade," he said — to limit the terms of elected Massachusetts officials to two four-year terms. And he asked for help in collecting 51,000 signatures to get it started.

Another speaker was Dr. Mildred Jefferson, who is interested in a place in the U.S. Senate.

"I am a surgeon, and I'm accustomed to meeting teams for difficult activities," she said. "I'll be asking for your nomination to the Senate in order to help lead this team. There aren't that many medical doctors represented in civic politics. I don't have to have a committee to tell me about the homeless, the helpless, and the disadvantaged. As a physician, I am acquainted with the troubles of people's lives."

After Dr. Jefferson's remarks, Phyllis Johansen, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Republican Women, praised the Republican women of Winchester, saying they had the largest club in the state.

Next, a beautiful quilt, handmade by some of the members of the club, was raffled. Everyone laughed when June Cannon announced the winner — former state Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh!

There was a wealth of possible candidates for the lieutenant governor seat. In addition to the ones already mentioned were Deborah Cochran Mazzola, who has a long background of political and executive experience, and businessman Rick Armstrong from Cape Cod.

It seemed clear from the general goodwill of the possible candidates that becoming elected individually was less important to them than finding a Republican who could win for the state.

"All the ingredients are there for a victory," said Cronin.

Govostes at home in kitchen

"I'd been to a number of places where cooking shows were filmed," he says, "and always thought that I could do it too. Maybe immodestly. But I really felt I could do it."

Then one day he got a telephone call from Sunset Magazine on the West Coast, which had gotten his name from Yankee. A reporter arrived at his home shortly thereafter, interviewed him, and took away a tape. Several weeks later she returned with a producer and a director to talk to him about doing a film.

"It had nothing to do with cooking," says Govostes. "I made a one-minute film for them — one of these home shows — 'Making Plumbing Repairs.' It was the first experience I ever had in front of a camera."

His initial fear of nervousness stopped as soon as the filming started.

"I thought it was a cup of tea," he says. "It flowed very, very well. So then I knew I had to take a shot at it."

When Govostes approached Channel 19 with his idea of doing a cooking show, the response was enthusiastic. Seven tapes were broadcast last year, and it's possible that the shows being taped now may reach an even wider area than Winchester through Continental Cablevision.

There will be changes, though. Ed's kitchen is cosy, but it's a bit too cosy for the most successful television work. Future programs will be filmed in the Home Economics classroom at Winchester High School.

The show is more than just a cooking class.

"We're also doing interviews with chefs, and other people in the food industry," Govostes says. "We've been well-received in these restaurants — it's just amazing. They've allowed the cable people and me into the kitchen right during the dinner hour. Things were flying all over the place. But the camera operator got a broad sweep of the whole kitchen, and I interviewed the chefs. It was a great experience."

Govostes has advice for those who would like to meet some of the more famous chefs.

"You've got to be a groupie, like these kids that follow rock stars around. When I found out one night about a reception for Julia Child in Cambridge, I made a point to get a ticket and go. And when I go to a restaurant in Boston, I'm not bashful at all. I'll ask for the chef, I'll ask if I can go in the kitchen. And I'll express my views. This is a hobby with me," says Govostes.

For young people who might be interested in culinary arts, he offers plenty of encouragement.

"Whenever I get in company, I tell the young kids: It's a beautiful career — a beautiful way to make a living. Especially the way things are today."

Did he ever imagine, while raising a family, that one day he would have his own television show?

"Even three years ago, doing TV was the farthest thing from my mind," he says. "I always thought I could do it, but I never thought that I would be doing it. When you get a little older, you know, it's easier. Because you become less timid, less intimidated. When you get to be a certain age then all of a sudden you say, if I'm going to do it I'd better do it now. At least that's the way it was with me," Govostes says

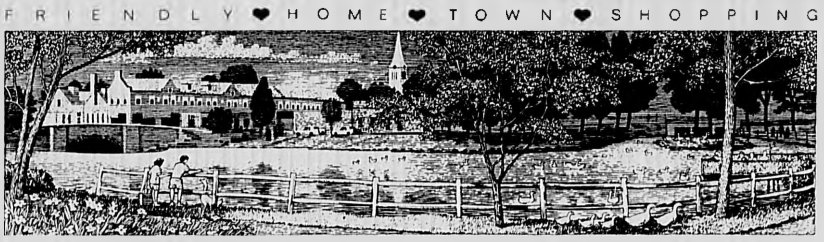

Govostes says he sometimes thinks about retiring from the plumbing business in three of four years. With approximately 30 of his own original recipes which he continues to add to, he says he might like to write his own cookbook some day. But he still is most enthusiastic about television.

"I hope that this thing expands and goes into something more than just Channel 19," he says. "We're hoping for a much bigger audience. But, if not, we gave it a shot."

Broadcasts of "Ed's Place" will be Thursdays at 6 p.m., with repeats every other Sunday at 10:30 a.m., beginning Oct. 1.

League serves as catalyst for town

By DAN CHANE
Special to the Star

As if heralding Autumn and a fresh start of political life in town, the September bulletin of our League of Women Voters arrived in the mail Friday.

This bulletin, ably organized by Candy Margles, highlights articles of interest by different members and is an invaluable educational resource as it elaborates on town and state political concerns.

Points of note in the bulletin this month inform on property taxes, the encouragement of Hispanic women to participate in the local political process, and more of interest on affordable housing in Winchester.

The League has performed invaluable service to Our Town in the numerous independent studies members have done over the years.

Prior to World War I, Winchester was largely supportive of women's suffrage and backed a substantial "Equal Suffrage Club" — a club which did much in town to further the rights of women.

The League of Women Voters, an offshoot of the earlier club came to prominence about 1920 as it helped educate Winchester's 2,000 new women voters and further their political interest.

Current projects of The League are "Recycling and Waste Management" under Lisa Cronin, "Child Abuse" chaired by Marcia Wood and Jeanette Baird, "Revenue Impact on Schools" organized by Candy Margles and Anne Bailey Berman, "Health Education" guided by Betty Small, "Housing" with Carolyn Dettinger as chairperson, "Child Care" with Kit Dobelle, and "Campaign for a Safer World" led by Ruth Terzaghi.

As if this richness of purpose were not enough, Winchester's League of Women Voters becomes the catalyst of local candidate platforms during the town election each year.

"Meet The Candidates," presided over by Town Moderator John Sullivan and produced by the League, has become something of a town tradition — enjoyable as well as informative — and is the singular forum for voters to get to know political hopefuls prior to the election.

President Pat Wells mentions, with becoming pride, that a recent Gallup Poll of public interest groups placed the national League of Women Voters second only to the American Cancer Society.

Our League of Women Voters has become a highly sophisticated force in the political community, as it has championed the public good over its 70 year mission.

Membership Chair Lindsay McSweeney would be pleased to hear from those interested in becoming an active part of this strong Winchester political group.

Word comes to us, too, that there is even a male member or two — another example of how The League adapts, with ease, to these fast paced times.

How about it, Guys?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sopper praises Twogood's work

TO THE EDITOR:

It is time the people in the Town of Winchester recognize their good fortune in having as one of its public employees Mark Twogood.

In 1982 Mark began his service to the Town as Budget Manager for the Department of Public Works. It was immediately evident that we had a very talented young man working for the Town. In 1984 he moved to the Town Hall as Assistant Town Manager. In this position he once again proved beyond doubt that Winchester had a dedicated and capable employee.

My personal experience with Mark was as a Selectman for three years and for the past six months as a private citizen. He has proved to me that as an employee of the Town he is concerned with maintaining the quality of life we expect and hopefully will continue in Winchester. He has never failed to graciously address and respond to any problem presented to him. He immediately utilizes all the resources of the Town government needed to resolve any problem. Mark Twogood has never failed to resolve every situation that was brought to his attention.

Mark's enthusiasm and effort in addressing any problem that is detrimental to the quality of life in Winchester is almost unbelieveable. He contradicts the feeling most people have that you "can't fight City Hall." Instead, in Mark Twogood the people of Winchester have a friend in the Town Hall.

The citizens of Winchester can also be assured that Mark Twogood is of tremendous help to the Town Manager in the conducting of the affairs of the Town of Winchester. I surely hope that the constraints of Proposition 2½ will not in any way jeopardize Mark Twogood's position in our Town.

Saraco responds to comments

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to take this opportunity to respond to several articles and comments that appeared in both The Times and The Star.

First of all, no officer of the Winchester Taxpayers Association was invited to be a member of the panel assembled by the Alliances to discuss the long range fiscal problems contronting our town. Mr. Smith's assertions are not only false, they are cleverly misleading. Moreover, it would be ludicrous to expect the WTA to adhere to the fiscal policy guidelines espoused by some of the very same people who advocated the spending policies that helped create the financial nightmare confronting Winchester.

Secondly, Mr. Chane's comments concerning the inevitable override of Proposition 2½ are premature and ill advised. He bemoans the dissolution of the Town Hall Committee "prematurely" while neglecting to inform the public that the Town Hall Committee spent $22,000 on a gold plated weather vane while the original is locked up in a vault for historical purposes! The WTA not only approves of the dissolution of the Town Hall Committee but we hope they will consider donating the restoration plans to the Chamber of Commerce flea market — specifically to the white elephant table!

Finally, neither The Times nor The Star chose to report the fact that the WTA supported a wage freeze on administrative salaries not covered by the collective bargaining process. The Board of Selectmen indicated their approval of this concept while the reaction of the School Committee spokesperson was unclear. We feel that a wage freeze is the first of many steps that must be taken to put our fiscal house in order.

In conclusion, I would like to remind the public that the road to economic recovery for Winchester is going to be a long and difficult process. Since last Spring's election, the WTA advocated a reduction in the school budget that was defeated by the Spring Town Meeting and at last week's Special Town Meeting we advocated an administrative wage freeze that just might be approved by the Selectmen and the School Committee. To assert that the WTA has not been actively involved in the ongoing fiscal process is false and misleading. Winchester deserves better coverage from the press and for that matter, so do we!

Things are only smooth on surface

TO THE EDITOR:

The school year has begun once again relatively smoothly. At the Muraco school, as parents, we are looking forward to a great year ahead with interesting and well-integrated curricula at every grade level. We have mercifully been able to avoid a grade split due to an unexpected increase in enrollment; the building and grounds are looking great and provide an excellent environment for learning. While everything appears to be functioning smoothly on the surface, however, there are underlying problems which must be addressed.

Problems are present throughout the system. Funding for basic supplies is frozen. Overcrowding continues at Lincoln School. Conflicting classes in advanced courses force undesirable choices among college bound high school students. Teachers are forced to teach more than one level of a subject at one time to the detriment of students and teachers alike. There are insufficient funds for aides making supervision of students immediately before and after school difficult. Several early childhood and kindergarten classes which have had aides in the past, do not this year.

Athletics are being forced to charge fees and to resort to private funding to maintain programs. Even the position of science director has been eliminated at a time when science education is critical for our future. The 5th/6th grade camping trip which is a key part of the elementary science curriculum is not possible without the payment of sizable fees by parents. Important supplements to the curriculum such as science kits, outside speakers and even Colonial Day would not exist without the funding of private sources such as parents' associations and C.S.A.

In fact, for several years all enrichment activities and field trips as well as significant upgrades of school grounds at Muraco School as well as at other elementary schools have been made possible only through the funding of parents associations.

It is not that the parents of students mind making the sacrifice of time and effort involved in fundraising for these activities. Most, but not all, parents can afford the individual fees. However, all members of the community should be aware that many of the parts of the Winchester School system which make it one of the "top ten school systems" in the Greater Boston area (Boston Globe, Real Estate, 9/16/89) are not in fact funded by the school department's budget currently.

As it is now, the responsibility for providing a quality education for the young people of Winchester falls increasingly on parents as individuals. With the lack of room in the town budget which has operated with increases of less than the rate of inflation ever since the enactment of Proposition 2½, the residents of the town must realize that the smooth operation of the schools masks a multitude of problems which will not go away given current and anticipated funding levels.

Muraco School Parents Association

Former resident troubled by some attitudes

TO THE EDITOR:

I had to write this about an incident that happened to me this week.

My only child started first grade this year and I found myself with too much time on my hands. I contemplated getting a part-time job, then decided that I'd really like to do some volunteer work with the elderly.

I called the Jenk's Center in Winchester and spoke to the director. Through our conversation the following took place:

She seemed very pleased and told me of all the different volunteer program's that could use help. She then asked me for my phone number. I started with '935' and she stopped me and said "Oh Woburn, we only deal with Winchester people".

I then stated that I was born and grew up in Winchester until I got married. She wanted to know if I was 'just over the line or in Woburn". I was surprised and replyed in Woburn. She asked where my child went to school. I told her and she said "Oh a private school!"

By now I felt that I was doing something wrong by applying for a volunteer position. I asked her "what difference it makes where you are from if you are willing to help someone!" She said she was afraid I would not be able to drive to Winchester in the snow.

At that point I knew nothing I said would help and said "Forget it".

Unfortunately this is what gives some people in Winchester their 'Better then Anyone' attitude.

Duffy comments on town's future

The following letter from Winchester Firefighter Ken Duffy, Local 1564 President to Alliance for Winchester's Future Chairman Lawrence Smith was received for publication in the Star. Duffy responds to an invitation from Smith to the Alliance's forum on fiscal planning tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Hall.

DEAR MR. SMITH:

First, I would like to thank you for your invitation to attend your forum. I must apologize that I will be unable to attend your meeting due to the fact that I will be out of state attending a "Symposium on the Occupational Health and Hazards of the Fire Service."

Mr. Smith, I believe it is important that your group and the people of Winchester be kept informed as to what Proposition 2½ has done to their public safety.

1. The fire service (department size) has been reduced from a level of 52 firefighters to a present level of 44 firefighters. This is the lowest level for the Town of Winchester since the 1960s.

2. Reduction of firefighters "on duty" per shift from the minimum of 12 firefighters to a level of 9 firefighters "or lower as budget problems persist." This level of on-duty firefighters puts the fire fighter at extreme risk and puts the town of Winchester back to the level of the 1950s or earlier.

For the first time in the history of the Winchester Fire Department, the town has eliminated the call firefighting force. This in a time when the volunteer fire department is all but nonexistent.

The town of Winchester has eliminated the "third first line pumper". There are not enough firefighters on duty to man this piece of apparatus. This is the first time since the 1930s or the Great Depression that the town has not had three line pumpers on duty for fire protection.

During the past decade the town of Winchester has seen a substantial growth in both residential and commercial property. During this time has your public safety kept pace ensuring, at least, the same level of protection and service? The answer is a resounding no. We have fallen behind in technology, training and manpower and our ability to protect our citizens at the same level of service before Proposition 2½ has been reduced.

Firefighting is an inherently dangerous profession with a high risk factor. How many other people do you know that are dedicated enough to be running into a dangerous area when everyone else is running away from it, including the rats — but at what risk?

The town of Winchester has spent thousands of dollars and hundreds of hours to train us, the firefighters, in the proper and safest ways in dealing with different types of emergencies. We are now expected to provide the same left, if not more, of emergency services with a reduction in our workforce. How do you expect us to fulfill our ever-growing obligations to the public with continued reductions in our budget?

The fire service, like any other budgets, must grow and expand to

Baptist Church dedicates new organ

By ELLEN KNIGHT
Special to the Star

Disaster often marks off eras of history. This may be because of the far-reaching and catastrophic effects and changes created by these adverse events. It may also be for the new beginnings that often succeed disaster.

Nearly two years ago, in November 1987, disaster in the form of a severe fire struck the Baptist Church in Winchester. Following upon rebuilding, the church has entered upon a new beginning. As part of this, the church welcomed the public to an organ dedication and recital Sept. 24 and opened not only a new chapter in its own music history but also the new musical season of the community.

The organ, the third for this church, built by Casavant Freres of Canada, replaces the church's former Casavant organ, only twelve years old, whose console had been burned and pipes melted and scorched by the fire. The specifications of this new instrument (19 stops, 25 ranks, and 1280 pipes) indicate that it is an instrument of wide coloristic resources, which was demonstrated during last Sunday's recital.

The recital was so structured, and the individual pieces registered, to show off the possibilities of the instrument. The program ranged from solid Baroque pieces (by Bach and Wesley father and son), to two energetic and full-voiced turn-of-the-century French works (by Lemmens and Dubois), to a sweet Romantic duet with piano (McCabe) and a light and gentle Allegretto (Fleury), to the marvelous splendor (or, from another point of view, the "bombast") of the Liszt Introduction and Fugue that concluded the program.

This program, tastefully and artfully constructed, was well performed. The musicians were Carolyn Skelton, John Skelton, and Henry Hoskins. All three graduates of the New England Conservatory, all are professional organists with impressive resumes. All three are to be congratulated on fine performances.

From comments overheard after the concert, it appears that, originally, not all favored the purchase of a pipe organ — a more expensive undertaking than an electronic organ. This recital should have proved adequately the magnificence of a true pipe organ, which the church must be commended for no abandoning. The actual sound of the instrument cannot here be communicated. Words cannot reproduce musical sound. But a report can recommend, and this report does. Should the church graciously offer future recitals, the community can only be encouraged to attend.

Looking forward to future community concerts, notice has gone out for the "Trio Classique" concert on October 15 at 8 p.m. To be presented by members of the Longy School of Music, this concert is also recommended. Tickets are available at the Recreation Department.

survive in today's environment which in itself is in a constant change. The dedication of your firefighters can only do so much. The responsibility for the level of protection lies with town government as well as the risk liability. To maintain the safety and health of the citizens of Winchester, the town government must set its priorities for their protection.

Public safety should be at the top of those priorities. Especially when times are hard and money is tight. Winchester has prided itself on its services. How much have we lost? When is enough, enough?!

Kenneth Duffy, President
Local 1564-Winchester Firefighters

Future of the town is at stake

TO THE EDITOR:

Winchester's fiscal problems are surely real, if not the catastrophe many would like us to think they are. There are hundreds of ways to begin attacking the problem. One that came to mind recently would be to stop the wasteful practice of regularly dispatching Fire Engine No. 3 with multiple personnel, to inspect battery-powered smoke detectors before real estate closings. Surely one fireman in one automobile will serve the purpose.

Examples of waste like this take on special poignancy in light of the short-sighted decision of the town to tax vacant, buildable residential land at confiscatory rates. My family occupies a single-family home on a single lot of 10,000 s.f., so it is not my ox getting gored. What will be gored over the next decade, is the quality of life in Winchester, which is going to decline as many residents who own and maintain an extra lot for a garden or lawn, are forced to sell for development. Dismissing such a notion by saying "well if they're rich enough to live on a large parcel they can surely afford the extra tax" is nonsense. Many of the homeowners affected are long-time residents whose income cannot easily sustain the crushing burden of extra taxes on top of already high rates.

In the end, as this sceanario plays itself out, Winchster will look much a densely developed Quincy or a Malden. This portends not only for the permanent loss of the pastoral quality we all appreciate (and I fear, take for granted), but for an additional burden on Winchester town services, including especially our schools. These infrastructure costs will surely exceed the additional tax revenue, creating an even worse fiscal crisis down the road.

This kind of quick-fix solution to the town's fiscal woes, like the current proposals to take parkland for low-income and mentally handicapped housing, if allowed to persist, will ultimately destroy the last vestiges of open green space in our town. Winchester's special character will then be lost forever — too late to retrieve, and too late for future generations to enjoy and protect.

Residents are taxing selves

TO THE EDITOR:

The prospect of a significant increase in the cost of dump permits confirms that, with or without an override of Proposition 2½, additional revenues must be raised for the town. As distasteful as it seems to many residents, raising the additional money through the property tax at least would permit the higher tax bite to be deducted from federal income taxes.

In a way, taxing ourselves through fee increases is more taxing than it needs to be.

HEALTH

Exercise a must during pregnancy

Physical activity and exercise are essential when a woman is pregnant. For the pregnant women and new mothers stretching and swaying to music at Winchester Hospital's prenatal and postpartum exercise classes are just the ticket. Maybe that's because their instructors know what it's like to bend and stretch for two.

"Even when I was pregnant with my third child, I taught these exercise classes twice a week," said Carol DiCecca, a Winchester Hospital physical therapist. "I hadn't exercised during my first two pregnancies but this time I found I recovered from the delivery faster and easier. The classes really helped me bounce back quickly. Now my daughter is 13 months old and I can share my experiences with the class."

Sponsored by the hospital's Rehabilitation Services Department and Women's Health Service, the eight-week sessions are held Mondays and Thursdays from 5:45 to 6:45 p.m. in the Kingsbury Seminar Room at the Winchester Hospital. A $60 fee includes a one-time evaluation by a physical therapist who evaluates each participant's ability to exercise safely.

After childbirth, participants often continue posture habits formed while pregnant so it's best to correct bad habits early, explained Ms. DeCecca. During the evaluation, the therapist checks the position of the mother's shoulders, head and spine and explains how to reduce stress on her back by pulling the pelvis backward. It's just like the first session at a good health club when they determine how flexible you are and set up a suitable program.

"Around three months into the pregnancy, women who have been in a routine exercise program should begin an appropriate prenatal exercise program with their obstetrician's approval," said Ms. DiCecca.

"We keep it fun and pace it gently. Frequently our participants continue up to the birth of their baby and then return for another session postpartum to help them get back into shape.

"Just as important is the feedback the women in the class get from the others in the group and the instructors," she said. "We talk about nutrition, what to expect during pregnancy and parenting. It helps to talk about your fears with others going through the same thing."

Classes begin with about 10 minutes of easy warm-ups and work into stretching and toning exercises. When limber, they glide into low impact aerobics including light jogging, aerobic line dancing and gently moving arms and legs in rhythm. More stretching begins a gradual cool down. Relaxation techniques conclude each session.

"We try to incorporate the abdominal muscles, pelvis and pelvic floor by doing partial sit-ups, pelvic tilts and contraction and relaxation exercises," Ms. DiCecca explained.

"If you don't exercise, you lose muscle tone, energy and endurance for activities. Exercising helps you to maintain a more positive self-image. It's especially important to improve and maintain strength of postural muscles in the back and abdomen as well as pelvic floor muscles.

Oral Surgeon to discuss dental implants

Dental implants are improving the quality of life for many people who have missing teeth, are frustrated by their loose fitting full or partial dentures or bridgework, or simply have spaces where one or more adult teeth never developed.

Steven J. Richter, D.D.S., a member of the Winchester Hospital Active Medical and Dental Staff, will discuss "Dental Implants" Oct. 19, from 7 to 9 p.m. in Winchester Hospital's Kingsbury Seminar Room. The cost of the program is $10.

Richter will review the dental implants available today. He will explain who should have them and when they are appropriate. Models of implants, slides and a video film will enhance his indepth presentation.

"Not everyone is a candidate for dental implants just because they are missing a tooth," said Dr. Richter. "The healthier you are, the better chance for success."

Richter was graduated from the Dental School at St. Louis University, Mo, in 1970, and completed internship and residency requirements at Lincoln Hospital.

Richter is Board Certified in oral and maxillofacial surgery and has advanced training in implants. He is an assistant clinical professor at Tufts University School of Dental Medicine and has a private practice in Winchester.

More information about the program may be obtained by calling 729-9000, Ext. 3010.

Babysitting class at hospital

A four-session babysitting course will be held Oct. 16, 23, 30 and Nov. 6 from 3:30 to 5 p.m. at Winchester Hospital.

The course will provide instruction about personal and home safety, toys and activities, child and infant care, fire safety, emergency procedures, and beginning first aid.

Attendance at all sessions is mandatory. Students who successfully complete the course receive certificates. The participants names will be added to the Winchester Hospital babysitting referral list with parental permission.

The course fee is $20. For further information and registration call 729-9000, Ext. 3010.

First aid course begins

Winchester Hospital will be offering two eight-hour Standard First Aid Courses, in two evening sessions Oct. 12 and 19, from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Woburn YMCA and Oct. 16 and 18 from 6 to 10 p.m. at 36 Woburn St., in Reading.

The training presented in this course will prepare participants to assist people who are in potential death and disabling situations.

Lifesaving emergency medical techniques will include CPR, rescue breathing, chokesaving techniques, control of severe bleeding, first aid for broken bones, proper treatment for poison and burn victims, signs and symptoms of a heart attack and the transportation of the injured.

The course fee is $40. Enrollment is limited. Students completing the course satisfactorily will receive a three year certificate in Standard First Aid and a one year certificate in adult CPR from the American Red Cross.

For registration and further information, contact the Education Department at 729-9000, Ext. 3010.

Hospital hosts asthma program

Asthma affects as many as 10 percent of American children, causing more hospitalizations and emergency-room visits than any other chronic childhood illness.

Parents can minimize trips to the hospital by recognizing asthma as it begins and starting early treatment.

Join Mary Horn, RN, pediatric pulmonary clinical nurse specialist from Children's Hosptial for a one session course Monday, Oct. 16, from 7 to 9 p.m. at Winchester Hospital.

How to make a child more comfortable by improving the conditions of his or her environment will be discussed. Participants will learn what they may need to include or eliminate in the child's daily activity.

The cost of the program is $17 per person or $25 per couple. For more information call 729-9000, Ext. 3010.

ABOUT TOWN

Albano speaks on Agent Orange

State Senator Salvatore Albano (D-Somerville) recently announced the adoption of a resolution memorializing the Congress of the United State to enact legislation to provide disability and survivor benefits to Vietnam veterans who have suffered health effects from exposure to the chemical 'Agent Orange'.

Senator Albano said "the 31,000 Agent Orange disability claims denied by the Veteran's Administration represent veterans whose needs are not being adequately addressed by the agency directly responsible for supporting them." Albano added "we must, as a nation, address the needs of our veterans who have been injured in the course of service to their country, to do otherwise is to ignore our responsibility to those who did not ignore theirs."

The resolution, filed by Albano and adopted by the State Senate, supports a bill filed in Congress by Senator John Kerry (D-Massachusetts) that would provide interim benefits to veterans who have health problems believed to be related to exposure to the controversial defoliant. "The Veteran's Agent Orange Exposure and Vietnam Veteran's Service Benefits Act of 1989" would provide interim disability benefits for Vietnam veterans suffering from non-Hodgkin's lymphoma and soft-tissue sarcoma, and would provide survivor benefits to their spouses through April 15, 1992. The bill also provides Congress with expedited procedures to extend or make permanent those benefits.

In addition to benefits, the bill requires the VA to gather, analyze and report clinical data from the health records of veterans examined or treated for disabilities related to exposure to dioxin or other toxic herbicides. Furthermore, the bill establishes other systems for gathering and analyzing data on a long term basis.

A recent San Francisco federal court action has required the VA to review the 31,000 claims that have so far been denied — only five have been granted. "This type of track record insults not only the integrity of the system but also the integrity of our veterans" Albano said.

Helping kids say 'no' to drugs is topic of talk

Find out what parents can do to make a difference.

A free movie, lecture and discussion will be held in the Winchester Room of Town Hall Tuesday, Oct. 2 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The presenter, Carol Sinder, M.Ed., has a background in drug and alcohol rehabilitation.

Fire safety is important, says McNutt

"Fire Play is the leading cause of fire deaths among preschoolers," says Chief Charles McNutt, of the Winchester Fire Department. "It kills three out of every 10 who die in residential structure fires in the United States."

Fire Prevention Week 1989, Oct. 8 to 14, focuses on the need for improved firesafety education, particularly match and lighter safety. Its theme is "Big Fires Start Small: Keep matches and lighters in the right hands."

About 75 percent of all residential fires in the United States are started with a match or lighter, and matches and lighters are what children most frequently use when playing with fire.

"Keeping matches, lighters and other heat sources where children can't obtain them is a good way to start making your home more fire-safe," says Chief McNutt. Teach your children - as well as their babysitters - that matches and lighters are tools for adults only, and reward them for bringing matches or lighters they find to an adult.

Girl Scout host uniform resale

Brownie, junior, older girls, and adults can buy quality uniforms at a fraction of the original cost on Oct. 19, 7 to 9 p.m. and Oct. 20, 9 to 11 a.m. at 19 Edgehill Road, Winchester.

Used uniforms are needed (good condition, current styles only). If you have a uniform to sell, please contact your Troop Leader, Gerry Sobkowicz (729-2594) or Nancy Goodwin (729-0347) by Oct. 12. Uniforms will be sold on consignment with profits to be sent to uniform donors or contributed to Winchester Girl Scouts to support troops and programs.

Please check your closets. A successful sale depends on having uniforms available for sale.

Haunted House plans underway

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce is in the process of planning the annual Haunted House which takes place every year at the boathouse on Wedge Pond.

Volunteers are needed to help with the various aspects of the actual design and execution of this event. If you are at all interested in participating in a scene or working on tickets, publicity, etc., please call the Chamber office.

A meeting will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 3 at 8 p.m. at the Chamber office to gather people together who are potential "ghostbusters". Dr. Craig Thayer and Allan Eyden are co-chairmen for this Halloween Winchester tradition.

Volunteers are needed at library

Do you enjoy your visits to the Winchester Public Library? Do you consider it a valuable resource? Do you have time you can spare? Then show your support by volunteering your time.

All kinds of interesting volunteer opportunities are available, both in the adult and children's sections. Library volunteers help by shelving books, visiting shut-ins, and doing other jobs that enable the library to run smoothly. In addition to knowing that you are performing a valuable service to your community, you will meet interesting people, explore the treasures of the library's collection, and get to know a little about how a public library runs.

Winchester Choir tours England

During the summer, 32 singers from the Senior Choir of the First Congregational Church of Winchester traveled to Britain in celebration of Winchester's 350th and the 150th year of the founding of First Congregational Church. Dr. Robert A. White, Director of Music at the Church and faculty member of the College of Music, University of Lowell arranged for the tour and directed the four performances.

The 32 singers were further supplemented by friends and handbell ringers who accompanied the choir on the tour. Altogether 42 people enjoyed the richness of a tour which included such places as London, Oxford, Stratford on Avon, Warwick Castle, Coventry Cathedral, York, Chester, Eastern Wales, Gloucester, Bath, Salisbury, Stonehenge, and Winchester.

A concert was scheduled for St. Michael's at Northgate in Oxford. Following the concert there, Mr. Chad Rosenberger, son of Dr. and Mrs. Peter Rosenberger of Winchester and student at Oxford, led the troupe on a guided tour of the ancient city.

An unexpected opportunity arose which enabled the choir to sing at Chester Cathedral. A most gracious Dean of the Cathedral was delighted to host a recital of a cappella sacred music which the choir had prepared for the tour. A sizable audience was present for the noon time event and visitors from many lands were present as well as local citizens.

Tewksbury Abbey was the site of the third concert. The lovely 12th century structure provided an ideal setting for the unaccompanied sacred motets of the Renaissance period.

The climax of the tour came with the appearance of the choir at England's most famous cathedral, at Winchester. The choir was most graciously received and announced during this noontime recital. Dr. White was interviewed and the choir was taped for broadcast on BBC. A large audience was present there in the middle of the day as the tourist season was by then in full swing. It was indeed a most auspicious occasion to perform the great sacred music spanning the 16th - 20th century in a Cathedral which has virtually been in constant use for over 1000 years and has witnessed the coronation of several of England's Sovereigns.

It appeared that the recital by the Choir was most fitting during this year of dual Town and Church historical celebrations. It was meaningful to re-cement some of the bonds which hold the two Towns together. Indeed the cornerstone of Winchester's Church of the Epihany, laid in 1905, was taken from the Undercroft of England's Winchester Cathedral. During the Second World War, many people in Winchester, Ma. provided warm clothing and knitted goods during those terrible years of struggle.

Although many individuals from Winchester have visited England's Winchester, it was a signal honor to be able to sing the great sacred music literature at Winchester Cathedral as a group of people extending hands, voices, and hearts across the sea as a gesture of friendship and love to our sister Town.

We look forward to the arrival of a Youth Orchestra from Winchester, England next August as a continuation of the spirit which binds these two Towns together.

Residents' tax bills are in the mail

If residents fail to pay their tax bills, the current practice is to place a lien on the property three years after the tax year, according to Maurer. He noted this involves notification in the newspaper and preparation of documentation to be recorded with the Registry of Deeds.

Maurer said Massachusetts law permits a shorter period of time for this process than the three years Winchester currently uses.

According to Thomas, Winchester residents are usually pretty good about paying their bills. "The percent of collections is fairly good in Winchester," she said. This, she added, is due to "getting the bills out timely and enforcing the collection."

The interest on tax bills is 14 percent as set by the state. However, according to Thomas, water bills are town collected. Therefore, it is up to the selectmen to set the interest rate. That rate is also currently 14 percent, but could be changed, she said.

Maurer suggested the town could either continue with the current practice, accelerate the notification to the minimum allowed by law, or a compromise between the two. Accelerating the process would mean the Collector would be required to post the notification 14 days after the demand notices are sent out.

As far as water bills are concerned, Maurer suggested that policy could also be amended. Water bills are currently due 30 days after the bills are sent out, Maurer noted. Since the inception of the quarterly billing cycle, the town does not send out demand notices. Instead, arrears are shown in the following quarterly bill, Maurer said in a memo to selectmen.

Maurer suggested that if a person's account is in arrears after the second bill, the Department of Public Works could shut off water service. Maurer noted that a recommendation should be made by the Board of Health prior to deciding on that option.

Selectmen were concerned that people looking for abatements were holding back on paying their bills.

"An abatement does not defer payment of the water bill," said Thomas. A bill should be paid before application for abatement is made, she said.

"This is the first year we've had the quarterly bills," she added. "I think it's more or less educating the taxpayers."

Selectman Steve Powers said he was interested in looking into changes for the collection process. "I think if we don't look for some changes in the collection process, that number (of uncollected water bills) is going to be larger," he added.

Powers suggested the town place liens on the property earlier, or increase the interest charged on overdue water bills.

Four arrested on drug charges

B substance (cocaine) to a minor, illegal possession of a class B substance (cocaine) and conspiracy to violate the Controlled Substance Act.

The woman was charged with manufacturing/distributing a class B substance (cocaine,) illegal possession of a class B substance (cocaine) and conspiracy to violate controlled substance law.

Griffin was charged with illegal possession of a class A substance (heroin) and possession of an instrument used to administer a controlled substance (syringe.)

Winchester officers Paul Deluca, James Gray and Daniel McGee were instrumental in the investigation and subsequent arrests, according to Pierce. The raid was led by Lt. Pierce and NEMLEC police officers from Arlington, Woburn, Stoneham and Burlington aided in the arrests.

"(The raid) went very smoothly," said Pierce, "we had no problems."

"The intense part of the investigation was conducted over the last three weeks," said Pierce, "but we've been looking into (102 Swanton Street) for a while." What Pierce termed "a lot of evidence" led police to obtain the warrant and proceed with the bust.

Winchester wages battle against drugs

Mitsakos also noted a plan that is currently in the works to interface some components of each of these two programs.

In addition, an ongoing program that has garnered much success is the Drop-In Center for youths at McCall Junior High School. Two other programs are the SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving) chapter that was started last year at the high school and the sophomore depression workshop.

New programs that have been introduced this year include a 12th grade course on drug and alcohol abuse that is being tested this year under a grant from the Governor's Alliance. Also, Friday evening activity nights at the First Congregational Church will supplement the school dance held each month at McCall Junior High. These youth activities at the church were arranged through a group effort of Recreational Director Lee Evans, Youth Minister Ashley Rooney and McCall Junior High Principal Evander French, said Mitsakos.

In addition, Mitsakos noted the "SuperTeams," which were developed last year to fight substance abuse among teens through a community effort, have brainstormed and developed a series of activities to be held throughout the year. A peer leadership program is also currently in the planning stages.

Another program is now being developed by the Winchester Police Department that will feature a guest speaker and draw parents and students together to heighten awareness of the drug problem and encourage open discussion. This session is currently being planned by Winchester Police Chief Joseph Perritano and Safety Officer Kevin Mawn.

Also, the Winchester Parents and Faculty Association is planning a "Great Expectations"-type format for a Winchester-centered program heralding the achievements of local youths.

"2./..ground-water quality at site does not seem to be affected by the overlying contaminated soil sludge,"

"3./..the limits of solid waste and hazardous waste fill have yet to be delineated by Hidell-Eyster. Solid waste was observed at Well P2 which had been claimed to be outside the fill limits,"

And finally, "the soil at the Ferrari property contains odorous organic vapors at levels of concern. These vapors do not appear to contain priorty pollutant organics."

Recommendations from EA's report read, "based on these new findings it is EA's conclusion that HETS' closure plan is unacceptable."

Health Director Joseph Tabbi was not available for comment when the Star went to press on Tuesday.

A public hearing will be held on Oct. 3 to discuss the findings.

Prepare your plants for winter months

For What's UP

WINTERING GERANIUMS

In the mildest areas of the North American continent, zonal geraniums can be left outdoors over the winter. But for the rest of us, the plants must be given special shelter.

Hanging the plants upside down, bare root, is a wintering method that many insist is foolproof. And I'm sure this was, and is, true where an old-fashioned dirt-floor cold room or cellar area is available. Geraniums will survive the winter stored this way only in a fairly humid, cold but frost-free place.

A little refinement on this method that makes it more sure is to loosely secure with a rubber band around the roots a plastic bag with a little damp peat moss in it. Make a few small slits in the bag to allow some air in.

In my own experience, however, geraniums are easiest to overwinter as potted indoor plants. This was the standard wintering procedure years ago. It makes a lot of sense, too, since zonal geraniums make fine winter houseplants. I take cuttings from our zonal geraniums in August or early September, for youthful, smaller plants to bring indoors.

But the plants that have bloomed in pots or the open garden all summer can be brought in, too, if you wish. Cut them back and clean them up, and carefully lift the pot and in-ground plants. I give our zonal geraniums two sprays spaced 10 days apart, and a good inspection, before bringing them indoors. Whitefly can be a terrible problem on indoor geraniums not meticulously cleaned before bringing them into the house.

A problem that arises in many modern homes is finding the space to house a collection of geraniums. I save space initially by bringing in just one or two small cutting-grown plants of each zonal geranium variety I want to save. Then in February, I begin taking cuttings from these plants until I have enough to fill the spaces or pots designated for geraniums in the current year's spring and summer garden.

Geraniums do need full sunshine to stay in fine shape, and give some bloom, during the winter indoors. And my own house has few fully sunny windows, with stingy windowsills at that.

To accommodate as many geraniums and other bright-light houseplants as possible at these windows, I installed sill extensions. These are just boards that come with brackets to hold them, and they're available at hardware stores and home improvement centers.

Another, similar solution to the space problem is to locate at sunny windows wherever possible book shelving, or some other piece of furniture that will serve as a sill extension.

Sun porches of course are ideal, and fortunate indeed are plant and flower lovers whose homes are blessed with these ideal places for growing off-season plants. Zonal, scented, and ivy geraniums will stay in fine shape, and even give some bloom during the winter indoors in sites that provide adequate sunlight and coolish night temperatures.

Martha Washington geraniums go also by the names Lady Washington, regal or show geraniums, or simply pelargoniums. These require more of a cool, dormant period in winter to set flower buds for the following spring and early summer. A greenhouse kept just frost-free, or a cool basement room are possible wintering quarters for these most flamboyantly blooming of all geraniums. For a really fine show of late spring and early summer flowers, provide winter temperatures at or slightly below 50 degrees Fahrenheit, and only enough water to keep the plants alive.

CHRISTMAS CACTUS BLOOM

Christmas cactus plants should be given some "time out" now from fertilizing and regular watering, to harden new growth and set the pads up for good flower bud formation.

If the plants have spent the summer outdoors, set them in some shelter from rain on a porch, against a balcony wall or on the lower, shaded benches of a greenhouse. Give only enough water to keep the pads from shriveling. Christmas cactus plants can be left out until night temperatures begin dropping to around 45 degrees F.

A dryish soil, along with lengthening nights and cooling temperatures, are the conditions that lead these forest cactus plants to their blooming phase. Indoors, provide long uninterrupted nights, bright daytime light, cool night temperatures and soil kept dryish to set the plants up for bud formation. When buds begin to form, step up watering.

Foods go along with holidays

By MARILYN BOESKY
Copley News Service
For What's UP

On Rosh Hashana, the Jewish new year beginning Sept. 29, it is believed that the Book of Life is opened.

The holiday is the beginning of the Ten Days of Awe, a period of contemplation, introspection and self-examination. This ends on Yom Kippur, Oct. 8, which is the Day of Atonement, the solemn day on which the divine judgment is sealed for the year.

In some areas the Tashlich ceremony is celebrated, with small bits of bread tossed onto flowing waters. Just as the bread drifts away, so does God wash away past sins of those who ask his forgiveness.

The Prophet Nehemiah is said to have introduced the Persian custom of eating sweets on this High Holy Day, proclaiming, "...eat the fat and drink the sweet..."

Feasting is part of the celebration of the new year. Families come together and the dinner tables are laden with foods filled with honey, raisins, carrots and apples, which when served are symbolic of the hope of a better year. Apples are dipped into honey and the following blessing is said, "May it be they will to renew unto us a good and sweet year."

The challah (egg bread) is baked in a special shape for his holiday. In many countries it is round, a symbol of life, happiness and good fortune without end. Or it can be topped with a ladder, symbolizing the ascent of God on high, as well as God's decree of who will ascend and who will descend, or a bird, as in Isaiah 31:5, "The Lord of hosts will protect his fledglings."

In Lithuanium tradition, a crown is fashioned. Other recipes will add saffron or raisins to the bread to add to the sweetness.

Carrots, along with apples, are probably the most symbolic food served on this holiday. They can be cooked whole and then sliced into circles resembling coins in color and shape. Carrots signify an increase in numbers and wealth, and can be included in everything from puddings, salads, cookies and cakes to candy.

Honey cakes, holding the promise of a sweet year, are traditionally found in some form on every table.

The Jewish traditional foods surrounding this holiday come from around the world.

The Sephardic Jews eat pumpkin, fenugreek, leeks, beets, and dates, all of which grow rapidly and are symbols of fertility, abundance and prosperity.

In France, red apples are eaten, in Provence, white grapes and white figs.

Moroccans will not eat black foods such as olives or eggplant — the color and bitter taste may bring evil.

Sports foundation holds penny drive

The newly-formed Winchester Sports Foundation will kick off its fundraising activities with something new for the town. A Penny Drive is scheduled for two Saturdays in October, on Oct. 14 and 28.

The Penny Drive will take place at the Transfer Station during the morning, from 8 a.m. until 12 p.m. and at Manchester Field, site of home football games both of those Saturdays, from 12:30 to 4 p.m.

Everyone is encouraged to save their pennies, and bring them to the Penny Drive. Members of the Foundation will receive penny collections from anyone who tosses pennies in a jar and never counts them.

The Sports Foundation began as a result of severe budget cuts to the Winchester High School's athletic budget. Interested parents and sports enthusiastics are concerned that, with the bleak financial outlook on the state and local levels, a continued threat exists to the sports programs. Last year $30,000 was trimmed from the athletic budget. The result of that cut was the institution of a $35 per student, per sport user fee for the current school year.

However, Winchester hosts the traditional Thanksgiving football game with Woburn this November, and that game realizes almost $30,000 in revenue. Next year, in the fall of 1990, Winchester will not host that game, and therefore, will not benefit from the game receipts. That means, with level funding from this year's budget, the athletic budget would be $60,000 short. At that point, the sports program would have to be cutback, and/or an increased user fee would result.

The Penny Drive for Oct. 14 and 28 is the first of other fund raisers planned by the Sports Foundation during this year. Please gather all your pennies and bring them to the dirve to benefit the young people of Winchester.

Questions We Are Often Asked . . .

Question: Why should I use a real estate agent to sell my house?
Answer: There are many reasons why it is to your advantage to use an experienced, professional real estate agent. Some of the best are:

• The real estate agent deals with a number of buyers and is able to match their needs with what you, the seller, are offering. It has been estimated that fewer than 5 percent of the buyers eventually purchase the house they first call about. It has been suggested that a person selling his or her own house is like a fisherman with one line, while the real estate agent — with all of the contacts available — is like a fisherman with a net. As your agent, it is my task to sort out prospects and direct the appropriate ones to your house.

• The real estate agent is available more than just eight hours a day during the week. They are available evenings and weekends, with a backup service that covers a wide range of space and time. This means you get extensive coverage while freeing your time for other matters.

• The real estate agent screens prospects. Every prospective buyer brought to your house will be looking for property like yours and will be capable of buying it. This type of screening saves time for everyone.

• The real estate agent discusses details of the sale with the buyer. Buyers usually talk more freely to an agent rather than the homeowner.

• The real estate agent provides a marketing analysis. The agent has means for properly researching the value of your house. Pricing is an important part of selling a property. This includes — but is not limited to— knowing the selling price

• The real estate agent arranges appointments to show the property. As your REALTOR®, I will clear appointments with you in advance and will conduct the actual showing of your house.

• The real estate agent periodically calls the sellers to update them on what progress has been made.

• The real estate agent helps to negotiate the contract of sale. Based upon experience of past transactions, I will help you deal with finances and the various aspects of legally "closing" the negotiation.

These are some of the basic reasons for using my services to sell your house or the property of someone you know. Others include fix up advice (when needed), advertising, open houses, transfer of title and after sale follow-up information.

Boys soccer squad ties Lexington, sinks Stoneham

By ARAM GOUDSOUZIAN
Special to the Star

With the previous Tuesday's match against Reading cancelled because of inclement weather, Winchester High boys soccer coach Gene Bouley looked ahead on the schedule and saw only league doormat Stoneham in the way of the Sachems' Saturday morning match against rival Lexington. Looking to improve his team's fitness level, he put them through four days of practice that made double sessions look like a warmup.

The only interruption to the team's "Fitness Fest" was Thursday's game versus Stoneham, which served as more of a distraction than a challenge. The Sachems sleepwalked through a 4-1 victory that lacked the intensity that has become the trademark of this year's usually overachieving squad. Players tallying goals were Dave Rodriguez, co-captain Mike (Don't call me Kevin) Queenan, Jan Pyro and Jeff Tahnk.

The game against Lexington was quite a different story. Now in excellent shape, the Sachems were pumped for their first big home game, and they dominated the match. They won the loose balls, passed well and played solid soccer until a defensive mishap left a Lexington striker alone 15 yards in front of the Winchester goal. The Minuteman wasted no time, and the Sachems suddenly found themselves down a goal.

True to form, Winchester roared back in the second half. Rodriguez sent a hooking long ball that Pyro picked up on the fly and finished off in the lower lefthand corner. Rodriguez, starting to show quite a penchant for clutch goals, added his own to give the Sachems a 2-1 advantage. His consistency and reliability earned him his second consecutive "Sachem of the Week" award.

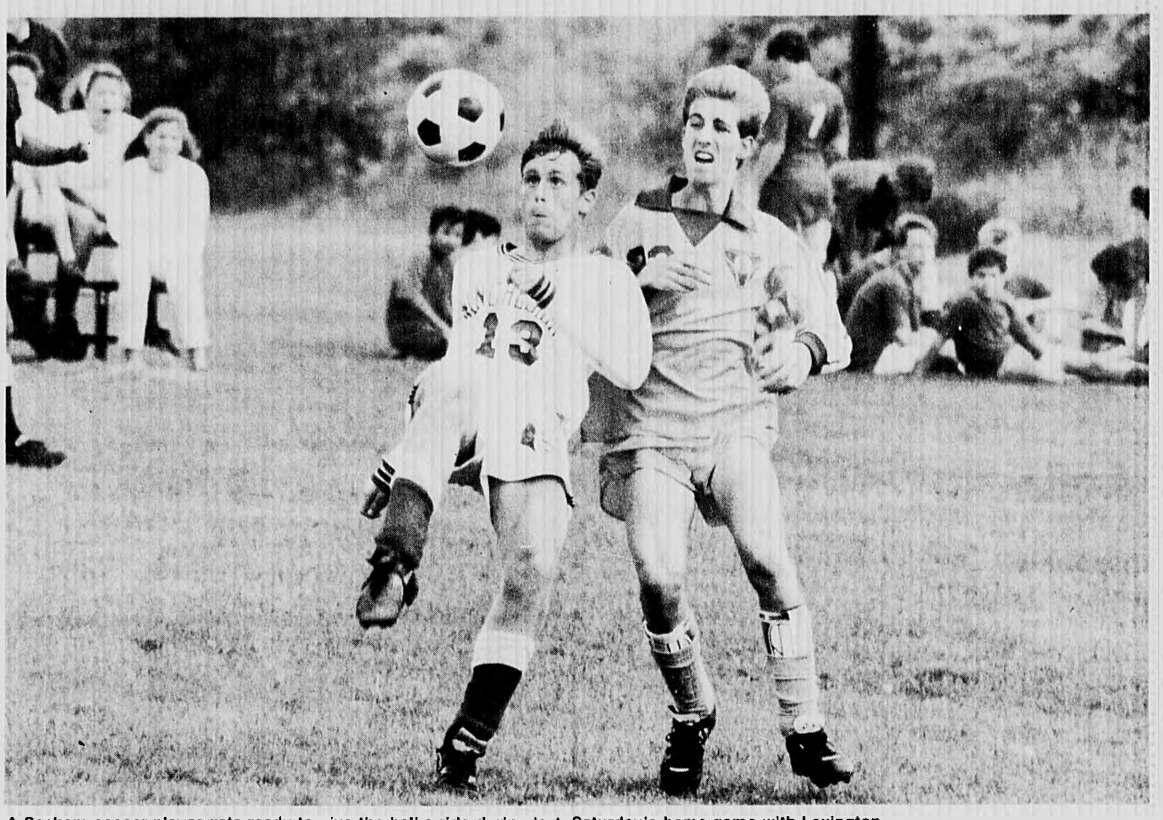

In the end, disaster struck. Lexington scored the equalizer when Winchester failed to clear a loose ball in the Sachem penalty box that bounced around for what seemed like an eternity. The controversial goal was scored after a handball and ensuing dangerous play were left uncalled. An excellent effort left only a 2-2 tie to show for it.

Conversely, the Sachems won a game they didn't deserve on Monday. Playing an average Reading squad, Winchester came in mentally unprepared, and for the third time in four games, the Sachems surrendered the first goal. Winchester tied it up before halftime on a textbook play when Jason Law sent a corner kick that co-captain Kiley Hertel headed into the lower right corner.

Just when it looked like they might end up with a second straight tie, the Sachems caught a break. Coach Bouley, needing to give his starters some rest, sent in bench players Takish Sato, Mike Cramer and Aram Goudsouzian to try and add a little scoring punch. It paid off when an indirect kick from Queenan found the head of Goudsouzian and, luckily, the ball somehow made its way over the Reading goalkeeper, slipped under the crossbar, hit the inside of the post, and went in.

The Sachem defense held up for the final 10 minutes, and the locals escaped with a 2-1 victory. The team and the coach were relieved but not happy with Monday's performance. If the team shows up for any of their next three matches — Belmont, Wakefield, Woburn — in this condition, they will most certainly falter.

The Sachems' (4-0-2) next home game is against league-leading Wakefield (5-0-1) this Friday at 3:30 p.m. They'll need all the support they can get.

Cross country runs over Watertown, 20-39

By CHRIS POWERS
Special to the Star

The mighty Winchester High cross country team earned its second victory of the season, defeating an ill-prepared Watertown squad, 20-39.

The race was held in last Friday's grueling heat and humidity, and began at 4:10 p.m. with the sound of a single command, "Go!"

After an initial sprint, the lead pack was formed. Leading the way was Sachem senior marvel, Kevin Guarnotta. At the one-mile marker, the lead pack consisted of six Sachems and only two Red Raiders. By the two-mile marker, the picture had changed slightly. A Watertown runner had taken the lead over Guarnotta with a time of 11:18 but Winchester athletes held the next six places, all within 45 seconds of each other.

When it was all over, Kevin Guarnotta had placed second with a time of 17:45, followed by junior Didi Chen (17:47), senior Paul "Mad Dog" O'Neill (18:08), junior Jesse "The Body" DeGeorge (18:37) and junior Chris Powers (18:43) finishing third through sixth. Senior Finn Pullen (19:16) was ninth and junior star Mike Aleo (19:44) was 10th.

Although Watertown's Scott Coutts had an excellent race, the Sachems dominated and set an amazing 18 personal records for the entire team.

"We (the coaching staff) were very pleased with the team," said head coach Joe Cantillon, who is ably assisted by Lorin Maloney. "Especially in that our five lead runners narrowed the gap between their times down to one minute as opposed to last week's two-and-a-half minutes."

The Sachems faced Burlington this week and will host Reading on Friday before travelling to Stoneham on Tuesday. The team would like to thank their newly acquired group of fans (led by all-around t Sachem fan, Frank Perrone) and encourage others to come to the meets.

Swim team falls to tough Belmont team, 49-33

The Winchester High girls swim team lost to perennial powerhouse Belmont, 49-33, last Saturday at the Northeast Regional Vocational School in Wakefield.

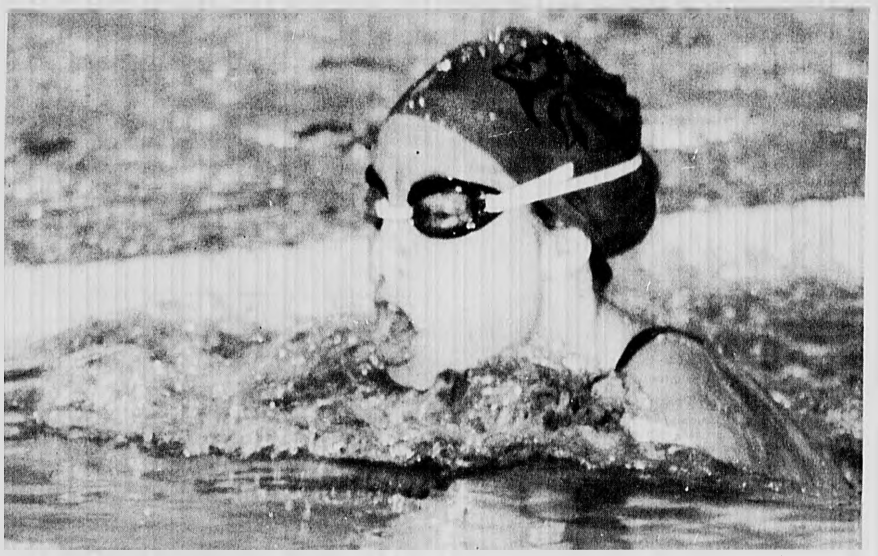

The Lady Marauders, who have a pool at their disposal inside their school, are always a tough team to beat; and this year proved no different from the previous 10. The Sachems swam gallantly, but Belmont still prevailed.

The standout swimmers for Winchester were Sheila McCarthy, Julie Buchanan and Tara Juwa. McCarthy captured the 50 freestyle (25.59), the 100 backstroke (1:04.14) and was part of the foursome that took top honors in the 400 freestyle relay. Buchanan was second in the 200 freestyle (2:15.39) and the 100 butterfly (1:08.78). Juwa finished second in the 100 breaststroke (1:19.66), third in the 200 individual medley (2:34.92) and was also part of the victorious relay team.

Other key performers for Winchester included Rachel Bonnell, who was second in diving (181.55 pts.); Heather Minihan, who was second in the 500 freestyle (6:19.6); and Amy Doe who came in third in the 50 freestyle (28.81) and the 100 freestyle (1:03.17). Meghan Herlihy was third in the 200 freestyle (2:19.31) and Brooke Foley placed third in the diving competition with 179.45 points.

Also swimming impressively were Diana Coughlin, Kara McGillicuddy, Suzanne Foley, Vicki Tohakis, Karen Herlihy and Amy Provenzano.

The girls' next meet will be next Saturday against Melrose.

Field hockey falls to Lexington

The Winchester High field hockey team fell to one of the stronger teams in the Middlesex League when they were overpowered by Lexington, 3-1.

Led by constant scoring threat Melissa Mills, the Minutemaids peppered Sachem goaltender Amy Poltak for 26 shots in the contest. Poltak did well to keep the game from getting out of hand.

After Lexington built a 2-0 lead in the first half, Winchester's prime source for scoring punch, quadcaptain Kathryn Colson, brought the Sachems back within one at 2-1. Colson collected a pass from Lorette McWilliams and fired home her fourth goal of the season.

Winchester tried valiantly to knot the contest in the second half but, the Minutemaids notched an insurance goal to put the game away.

The Sachems play at Wakefield on Thursday before returning home against arch-rival Woburn on Monday.

Girls soccer squad stays undefeated

By MARK NADEAU
Sports Editor

The Winchester High girls soccer team will be facing its two toughest opponents this week. After Tuesday's rainout, the Sachems will host Belmont today (Thursday) before attempting to extract revenge on Friday when they travel to Wakefield. Winchester (6-0-0) is well prepared for these two matchups after hammering Stoneham, Lexington and Reading in the last three games.

Last Thursday, the Sachem offense ripped through Stoneham's defense like Hurricane Hugo, leaving destruction and a 12-0 victory behind in their wake. Coach Chris Scanlon was far more pleased with Saturday's 6-0 thrashing of Lexington.

"It was a very satisfying victory for us," said Scanlon. "For the first time this season, we came out and played 80 minutes of good soccer."

Freshman Liz Kelley had an outstanding game for Winchester, scoring four of the Sachems' six goals. Sophomore Jenny Gilpatric had a goal and two assists and freshman Renee Bussell scored the sixth goal.

Winchester kept the momentum going during the early stages of Monday's game in Reading, scoring three times in the first 23 minutes. Senior Shana MacConkey had the hot foot as she scored twice in the first 10 minutes. She finished off a nice pass from quad-captain Shalagh Murdock for one goal, and then redirected a perfect Kelley cross into the upper-left corner of the net for another. Several minutes later, Murdock retrieved the ball at the right side of the Rocket goal, then slipped a pass back to senior Denise Delaney, who picked the short side for a 3-0 lead.

Reading made history just before the half ended. A Rocket midfielder lofted a long ball over the heads of the Sachem defense. Reading forward Dawn Woodland gained control of the ball and fired a hard shot past the outstretched hands of goalkeeper Kathryn Ford. It was the first time ever a Rocket player had scored a goal against Winchester.

The Sachems came out strong in the second half and put a lot of pressure on the Reading goal. Gilpatric wound up with a loose ball in front of the net and rolled it into the corner for a 4-1 lead. Winchester retained control the rest of the way, but despite several golden opportunities, they were unable to augment their lead.

"I thought we came out really strong in the first 10 minutes," said Coach Scanlon, who felt a little letdown could have expected after the team's high level of performance against Lexington. Sophomore Sara Noonan was an all-around standout for Winchester.

The Sachems are hungry for today's battle with the Lady Marauders (6-0-0). Belmont sophomore goalkeeper Sarah Moon, who has yet to be scored on this season, is cat-like quick and aggressive, presenting a good challenge for Winchester's potent offense. The Lady Marauders will be without All-Scholastic candidate Susan Condelli, who plays a large role in Belmont's offense, so Winchester should have no problem maintaining offensive pressure.

The Sachems roll on into Wakefield (4-2) on Friday to try and avenge last year's Warrior victory. That stunning defeat toppled Winchester from first place for the first time in Middlesex League history. Wakefield has a new team and a new coach, but this won't keep the rivalry from heating up once more.

Freshman Renee Bussell scored the Sachem's sixth goal in a 6-0 romp over Lexington.

It had been three long years since Winchester High had beaten Melrose in a Middlesex League football contest, but last Friday night in Melrose, the Sachems snapped the three-year jinx, 24-0. With the shutout victory, Winchester sent out a message to the league that the Sachems are going to be tough in 1989.

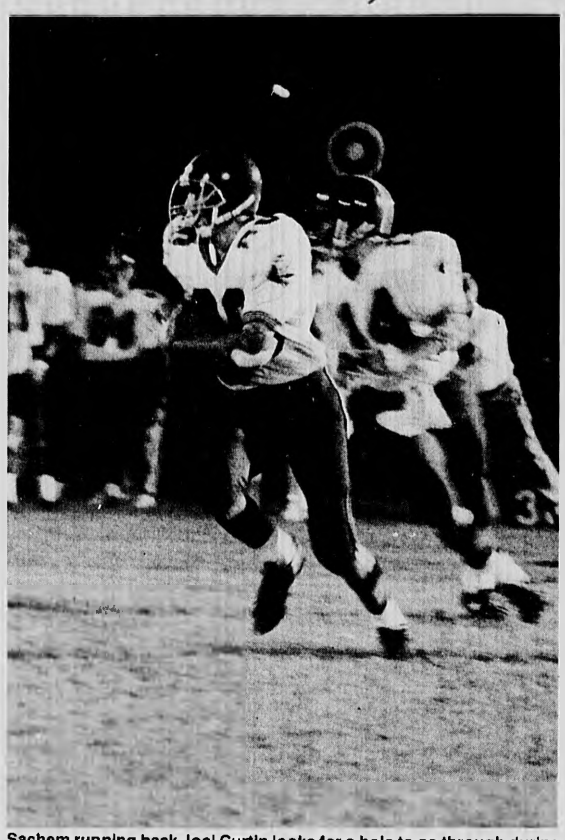

It took Winchester only seven plays to score its first six points of the night. Jim McGeehan recovered a Melrose fumble on the 28-yard line. The Winchester offense went to work and capitalized on the break as Robbie Meehan took it in from the four, staking the Sachems to an early 6-0 first quarter lead.

In the second quarter, Winchester capitalized again as defensive back Dan McGrath – roaming the pass routes — picked off Melrose quarterback Andy McNeilly's pass on a third and two situation, setting up the Sachems' next scoring drive. The drive was highlighted by a 46-yard pass from quarterback Chris Umscheid to tight end Sean Donlon. That left the door open for Joel Curtin, last week's big gun, to take it in from the four, giving Winchester a 12-0 lead, which was where the contest stood at halftime.

The Sachems, knowing they were on the verge of a win, added some insurance in the final quarter. A 14-yard keeper from Umscheid and John Szczepanski's 32-yard scamper off a sweep wrapped up Winchester's second win of the season. The Sachems move to 2-0 overall, 1-0 in Middlesex League play.

"It was a nice win. Our kids played well and our defense was sharp in keeping them shut out," said head coach Manny Marshall. "Also, keeping speedster Scott Sciretto contained to only 32 yards was a great effort by the defense."

Winchester takes on Watertown at home Saturday at 1:30.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

U.S. Gov't. Approves Patent Claims for New Diet Pill

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)— An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" you steady fat loss and calorie reduction by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

The U.S. government has just approved the doctors claims for a hard-to-get patent that confirms "there has never been anything like their fat-bonding pill process before." It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough and is revolutionizing the weight loss industry.

You Can "Eat Normally"

Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire without exercising".

Flushes Fat Out of Body

The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body because they cannot be absorbed.

Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.

"Automatically" Lose Fat

According to one of the inventors, Dr. William Shell, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, "the new fat-bonding process is a "lazy way" to lose weight because the pills alone "automatically" reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe and not a drug."

The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer, trimmer and more attractive again.

Now Available to the Public

If you are trying to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these "no-risk" highly successful fat-magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calorie-reduction plan for even better results). Send $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$3 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. WX33, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. ### Belmont Hill student earns merit honors

Christopher Wadsworth, Headmaster of Belmont Hill School, announced this week two semifinalists from Belmont Hill in the 1990 National Merit Scholarship Program. Semifinalists include the highest scorers in every state and represent half of one-percent of the state's high school graduating class. These young people demonstrate exceptional potential for scholarly contributions and leadership that will benefit the nation in the future.

James V. McCarthy, son of William F. and Nicole McCarthy of Winchester, is one of the semifinalists.

Belmont Hill School is an independent day and five-day boarding school for boys in grades 7 through 12. Small classes, a rigorous and traditional academic program, school-wide athletics and other activities provide students with the opportunity for personal development and strong college preparation.

High School lists merit students

Winchester High School Principal John M. Ritchie recently announced that 22 students have been named Commended Students in the 1990 National Merit Scholarship Program. A letter of Commendation from the school and National Merit Scholarship Corporation, which conducts the competition, will be presented to these outstanding seniors.

They are: Carolyn L. Augart of Brooks Street daughter of Paul and Laura Augart; Amy L. Callahan of Amberwood Drive daughter of John and Carol Callahan; Elizabeth H. Cavitch of Yale Street daughter of Joanna Cavitch; Cheryl Cramer of Westgate Road daughter of Vincent and Kathleen Cramer; Vanessa N. Jessica L. Tobiason of Hillside Avenue daughter of Lawrence and Barbara Tobiason; Brian A. Vernaglia of Swan Road son of Paul and Lydia Vernaglia; Peter H. Waltman of Rangeley Road son of Arthur and Faith Waltman.

About 35,000 Commended Students nationwide are being honored for their outstanding performance on the 1988 PSAT/NMSQT, which ranks them in the top five percent of more than one million students who entered the 1990 Merit Program by taking the qualifying test. Commended Students scored slightly below the level required to continue in the 1990 competition for Merit Scholarships, but they have shown exceptional academic promise.

An official of the Merit Program stated that "to be designated a Commended Student in this extremely competitive program is an attainment deserving of public recognition and is a credit to these young people and their schools. Commended Students were included in a Merit Program service through which they could be referred to two colleges or universities of their choice. We hope that the referral service and the recognition they are now receiving will enhance the higher education opportunities of Commended Students and increase their motivation to use their abilities to the fullest. The continued educational and personal development of academically talented students will benefit the entire nation."

By MARY P. KELLY
Special to the Star

Winchester seniors are fortunate to have Ellen Kimball again this year to direct the Art group, which will get under way on Wednesday, Oct. 4, at 9:30 a.m. This will be the first of seven sessions during the fall, under Ellen's direction, and anyone interested in drawing and painting is welcome.

During the summer some of the work of our seniors was on exhibit in the lobby of the Jenks Center and the display of talent was most impressive. Come and join this group of Winchester seniors who are interested in art and experimenting in various techniques, pen and pencil, crayons, acrylics, oils, watercolors, and pastels, under the gentle guidance of Ellen Kimball, who volunteers her time with the seniors during these sessions. Mark your calendars: Wednesday mornings at 9:30, Oct. 4 through Nov. 15. Call the Center to sign up, 721-7136.

Catherine Snell and Arthur Fonesca are active members of the Jenks Center's art group which meets Wednesdays at 9:30 a.m.

Please note that, due to the cuts in the allotment of vaccine, there will not be a "make-up clinic" this year.

No advance sign up is necessary for the clinics on Oct. 17 and 19 but the Health Department will require on site registration and consent forms. If you have any questions, please call the Health Department at 721-7121.

If you're pregnant or planning to be soon, you've got some important decisions to make. We can help you with one of the biggest: where you want to have your baby.

One thing to think about is the hospital staff. They should be warm and friendly, and be trained in the latest technology. Since every birth is a little different, they should be willing to accommodate your individual needs. And they should share the attitude that you and your baby deserve the best care it's possible to give. In short, they should be just like the staff at Great Beginnings.

So find out about Great Beginnings, the maternity center at Malden Hospital, by calling 397-6551. We make choosing the hospital the easy part.

Cholesterol should be controlled

By LEONOR RICH
Special to the Star

Current literature pertaining to physical fitness emphasizes the need to control cholesterol and fat in the daily diet. In the interest of maintaining good health, the Winchester Hospital Education Department under the direction of Susan E. Powers, R.N., B.S., conducted two cholesterol screening clinics at the Jenks Center open to people of the town. During the clinical sessions, the Boehringer Mannheim Diagnostic instrument was used in the measurement of blood cholesterol by means of the Reflotron System, the instrument overwhelmingly preferred for screening by health professionals.

The 1989 Boehringer Mannheim Corporation of Indianapolis states that cholestrol reading falls in one of three catagories as established by the U.S. government health experts: High Blood Cholestrol — 240 mg/dl and above; Borderline-High Blood Cholesterol — 200-239 mg/dl; and Desirable Blood Cholesterol — less than 200 mg/dl. However, they advise that one test is not enough to confirm high blood cholesterol.

"Factors that escalate your risk of heart disease according to the Boehringer Diagnostics are: elevated cholesterol; high blood pressure; cigarette smoking; diabetes; vascular disease; family history of coronary heart disease before age 55; obesity; and being male."

The Greater Boston Diabetes Society states that polyunsaturated fats may help to lower blood cholesterol levels. Dr. Ng Nakasako, R.D., provided a classification of fats and oils as follows: Polyunsaturated fats and oils containing no cholesterol are: corn oil, safflower oil, sesame seed oil, soybean oil, cottonseed oil, and margarine with liquid oil listed as the first ingredient.

Monosaturated fats and oils having no effect on blood cholesterol levels are: peanut oil, olive oil, partially hydrogenatd shortenings, margarines made with partially hydrogenated oil listed as the first ingredient.

Saturated fats and oils high in cholesterol are: lard-based shortenings, butter and products made with dairy fats, beef, organ meats, palm oil, and coconut oil.

Milk Group: Use skim milk and low fat dairy products, skim and low fat milk cheeses, yogurt, and cottage cheese instead of the whole milk counterparts.

Vegetable, Fruit, and Bread Groups: Vegetables, fruits, breads and cereals contain no cholesterol or saturated fat. They provide a good range of vitamins, minerals, and fiber.

Meat Group: 1. Limit egg intake to no more than three egg yolks a week, including eggs used in cooking; 2. Select fish, chicken, turkey, and veal for meat meals often. Use moderate sized portions of lamb, pork, and ham less frequently; 3. Trim all visible fat from meat before cooking; 4. Limit fried foods and use cooking methods that help remove fat: baking, broiling, roasting, stewing, and boiling; 5. Limit fatty luncheon meat. Use sliced chicken, lean roast beef, turkey, peanut butter or tuna packed in water for sandwiches.

Fat Group: Select margarines made from vegetable oils only.

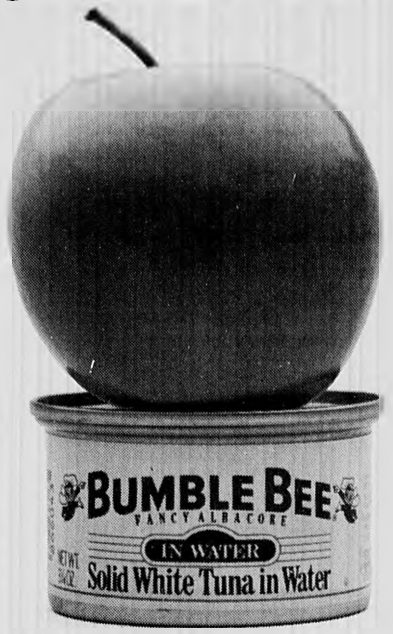

Robert E. Kowalski in his book entitled, "The Eight-Week Cholesterol Cure," says, "Control of the blood cholesterol is a complicated problem. The right amount helps to build the membranes that form the walls of the body cells and aids in the synthesis of a number of the body hormones vital to human function ... The results of lowered cholesterol in volunteer participation of a low-fat diet along with oat bran is both safe and effective in reducing the risk of coronary heart disease by preventive measures ... More than 20 health organizations state that serum cholesterol levels should never exceed 200/mg regardless of age or sex."

Each person's health is in his own hands to a very large extent and each has a role in his own destiny. Beat the odds by taking steps to cut the risk of life-shortening diseases. The "Fountain of Youth" is a fantasy but eliminating as much fat from the diet as possible is a reality. Achieving longevity is a worthy goal.

Fay Bolivar

Fay Bolivar, who retired from a photographic business in 1984, is a desk volunteer at the Jenks Senior Center.

"I was a senior and I thought it would be nice to meet new people," said Fay, who just visited the center for a calligraphy course and a nutrition class.

The mother of 1 son and grandmother of 2, Kay, a widow of 2 years, also found support through the widow to widower group at Jenks.

"You've got to vent things," she explained, "you can just regale your friends for so long."

Owner of 2 Alfa Romeos (she used to have 4) and current vice-president of the Alfa Romeo Club, Kay, who served with the U.S. Navy during WWII, also enjoys reading, photography and collecting Hungarian stamps and Early American glass.

In October, Fay, who has made her home in Winchester since 1949, will be moving to Port St. Lucie, Florida.

"It's time for a change," she said. "The first 20 years of my life I belonged to my son; the third, my husband and I made choices together and now the rest of it is mine."

BUSINESS NEWS

Teresa's moves, expands store

Teresa's Fashions recently celebrated its move to 547 Main Street with an open house.

The business began in 1984 when the Pisacretas, Teresa and John, became aware that the "Dress Unique" boutique was closing its doors. With the encouragement of friends and family, the Pisacretas purchased the business and continued to operate it under the "Dress Unique" name until 1986 when it was changed to "Teresa's Fashions".

The move to the larger, more modern quarters provides testimony to the success that the store has enjoyed. What has been the key to success? Where did it really start?

Perhaps we can begin in Teresa's hometown in Stigliano, Italy during her high school years. She recognized that the small town had little to offer and with the support of her parents she moved to a large city, Naples, to seek employment. Being the second oldest of 10 children and the oldest female, she was well-versed in running a home and making and mending clothes.

Teresa applied and was accepted for the position of sales representative for the Necchi Sewing Machine Co. Her job was to sell machines to retail outlets and independent distributors.

As part of her preparation, she underwent extensive training to master the machines. She not only was required to demonstrate how to use the machines but had to teach classes on the subject as well. Through hard work and God-given talents, Teresa consistently surpassed her sales quotas. After four years with Necchi, she applied for a leave of absence to take a trip to America to attend the Worlds Fair in New York and to visit her brother, who was living in Woburn at the time. Little did she realize she would never again return to Necchi.

It did not take her long to sense the excitement and opportunity this great country provided. While she still loved her native land, she knew her future was in America. She received a three month visa. In the last week of her stay she visited family friends. There was a gathering of 10 people. The women were busy making pizza and macaroni; the men were drinking home-made wine and playing cards. Teresa noticed that one of the players was paying more attention to her than the card game. Later on, after coffee, sambuca and some milling about, Teresa found herself sitting at the kitchen table with none other than the inattentive card player. The rest is history.

Four days later they became engaged. Teresa left for Italy the next day. "Gianni" followed a month later and the wedding took place in Stigliano in January, 1965. In April of that year, Teresa returned to America to start her career as a housewife. Among her belongings was a state of the art sewing machine that was presented to her by the Necchi Company in appreciation of her service. Twenty-five years later, the machine and Teresa continue to work wonders.

While raising two children and maintaining a home, Teresa found time for alterations and making clothes for family and friends. Word of her talents spread quickly and it wasn't long before she could not handle the numerous requests. After the children were finished with school and on their own, she became aware of the "Dress Unique" situation. The timing was perfect. As in all new ventures there was a little uncertainty at the outset although there was never any doubt that it was the right step.

It soon was clear that the expectations that Teresa and John had developed would be surpassed. The positive feedback and personal satisfaction derived from the clientele left little doubt about the future of the store. A further positive event occurred in early 1988 when Connie Houlihan was hired as manager. Connie came with an extensive background in retailing including a stint with Saks Fifth Avenue. Most recently, she was with Town and Country where she developed a loyal following. Like Teresa, she understands the business and customers.

Teresa realized from the start that she had a combination of strengths that was unique and extraordinary. Her knowledge of fabrics, fashion and design; her ability with the sewing machine; her knack for coordinating colors and styles and matching the outfit with the individual personality and figure and special talents. The game plan was to provide a large selection and to capitalize on these strengths by providing a service to customers that was impossible to duplicate in the malls and department stores.

Together with a diligent work ethic and a pleasing personality, the plan has succeeded in building a strong following. According to Teresa, it is in a sense sort of like a love relationship with joy on both sides. The women feel better about themselves and the way they dress, says Teresa. They love the admiration and compliments that come their way. For Teresa, the look of affection and esteem in the faces of satisfied customers says it all. As for the future, Teresa says the emphasis will continue to be on innovative approaches to strengthen old and build new relationships.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

THE IMPORTANCE OF CONDOMINIUM DOCUMENTS

As condominiums become a popular form of home ownership, especially for first time buyers, many local governments are passing laws giving buyers an opportunity to review the condo documents before committing themselves to the purchase of a unit. Even where such laws don't exist, buyers may request a document review contingency in the contract.

The most important papers are the condo association's Bylaws, Rules and Regulations, and the most recent budget showing income, maintenance and capitol improvement costs, and the financial reserves. By examining these documents, you will find answers to most of your questions about the venture. Can you have pets? Who is responsible for repairs? What is included in the condo fee? Are there any special assessments to cover improvements not covered by the reserve funds? Are the fees likely to increase? If you take the time to examine your condo papers carefully, your purchase will be fully informed.

If there's a move in your future, the real estate professionals at The Bixby & Porter Company Realtors are ready to serve you. Call us at 729-7000 or drop by our offices at 33 Thompson Street in Winchester.

128 Service

by Dan Hogan,
Service Manager

All factors being equal — the make, model, year and mileage — a car that has been routinely maintained can have a resale value $200 - $500 higher than a car that has been neglected by the owner. While many sellers will spend time and money to fix-up or "detail" a car at trade-in or résale time, quite often seasonal maintenance is the best investment. You should start with a basic two-step washing; After your wash job, give your car a close examination for surface rust and chipped paint; have your car waxed wherever paint begins to show dulling; the interior should be thoroughly cleaned, including vacuuming of carpets. Remember — all it takes is a little time and energy, and the investment will pay off at resale time.

Total automotive service awaits you at PETER FULLER OLDS. Open 8-5. M/C. Visa & A/E. We use a computerized scheduling system enabling us to inform you when certain work is scheduled to be done.
